Welcome Home!

We’re glad you picked up Mapping Your Future: A Guide for Successful Reentry. Whether you spent many years in prison or just a few, it can help you start your life on the outside. This guide gives you information about employment, housing, education, healthcare, and more. If you are the family member, friend, or service provider for someone who is coming home, this book can help you, too. We hope you will find resources in this book that will help you.

There Are Five Main Sections in Mapping Your Future:

- Before You Leave gives advice about getting ready for release.
- Once You’re Out helps you set up your life once you’re out.
- Healing and Moving Forward is about getting used to life after prison.
- Our Reentry Directory contains contact information for useful resources. See also reentryillinois.net.
- Our Forms section includes helpful forms, and some you can tear out and use.

Getting used to life on the outside is hard. In prison you were separated from your loved ones, and it was expensive to stay connected. Prison life changes you. You may face a lot of challenges because of your criminal record. You may have trouble finding a job. People might treat you differently. Your parole may feel unfair. Sometimes you might feel like there are too many challenges in your path! How can you succeed?

Mapping Your Future will help you meet the challenges. Maybe it will even make you want to work for change. We believe in YOU and your ability to make a difference in the world. Don’t stop believing in yourself.

In this book, you’ll find helpful words from people like you who went through reentry. Many of them are graduates of the Education Justice Project, a college-in-prison program at Danville Correctional Center. It was their idea to write Mapping Your Future. They, and so many others, have successfully reentered the outside world. You can, too.

If you can, try to read the entire guide. You can also skip around to the parts that are most important to you. If you are reading this guide in prison, we hope you’ll take it home with you. If you need a copy of your own, you can ask for one by writing to the address on the next page.

Please keep in touch. We’d love to know how you’re doing and how we can make Mapping Your Future better. Your comments can help those who follow in your footsteps. Again, welcome home. We’re glad you’re back.

About Mapping Your Future

Mapping Your Future was made by members of the Education Justice Project (EJP). EJP is part of the College of Education at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Since 2008, EJP has taught college courses to people incarcerated at Danville Correctional Center in Central Illinois.

We created Mapping Your Future because we care about people like you who are being released from prison. The guide is made by a group of committed EJP members called the Reentry Guide Initiative.

This guide is also available in Spanish. To request a copy, write to the address on the next page and ask for Construyendo tu futuro: Una guía para la reintegración exitosa.

The world is changing all the time. That means we can’t be sure everything in this guide is right. We’ve tried to use the best, most up-to-date information from trusted sources.

☆ DISCLAIMER

We have listed a lot of programs, services, and businesses in this guide as resources for formerly incarcerated people and their families. We don’t endorse any of these organizations. We also don’t guarantee that these resources will be helpful (although we hope they are).
What kind of information will you find in this guide? For one thing, it will show you how some common myths you might have heard aren’t true. Here are a few:

Myths

No one will hire you if you’ve been incarcerated.
False. You can find a job. Employers in Illinois can choose not to hire you because of your criminal record. But they can’t ask to see your record until after they have found you qualified for the job. Learn more in our Employment chapter. The Directory also has employment resources.

You have to pay for all your own medicine after you leave.
False. It is true that you will have to pay for your medication. But, prisons will give you a small amount of medicine when you leave, usually between 30 and 90 days. See our Health Before Release chapter.

You can't get financial aid for college if you have been incarcerated.
False. If you are on parole or probation, you can get most financial aid. For more information about education options and how to apply for financial aid, see the Education chapter.

You can't get a bank account if you have been incarcerated.
False. You can open a bank account, though you will still have to meet their rules. For more information about banking, see the Finances, Credit, and Taxes chapter.

You can get Social Security benefits for your time in prison.
False. You cannot get Social Security benefits while you are in prison. But if you were getting Social Security before you went to prison you can start getting it again. See our Resources to Meet your Basic Needs chapter.

You can't receive VA benefits after being incarcerated.
False. If you are a veteran, you can have your benefits restarted 30 days before your release date. See our Veterans chapter.

People with criminal records can't vote.
False. In Illinois you can vote after release, and should. See our Voting chapter.

Prepare Mentally for Release

It’s never too early to get ready to leave prison. Even if you have a very long sentence, keep your eye on life after release. Find ways to learn and grow while you are there.

- Take Adult Basic Education classes or get your GED.
- Take college classes or vocational classes.
- Meditate, play an instrument, draw, join a choir or read a book.
- Start going to religious services.
- Attend substance use programs or anger management classes.
- Get involved in volunteer activities.

These activities can help you meet other people who can support you. They will help you move beyond thinking of yourself as just a prisoner who has nothing to offer. In fact, we think you have a lot to offer!

You can still make a difference in prison. Education Justice Project students created a program to teach English to others behind bars. They run anti-violence discussion groups in the prison. Many incarcerated people donate to local charities like food pantries and Habitat for Humanity. What can you do?

If you’re getting released soon, there is a lot more you should do to get ready. Reentry is very hard. It may be hard to find a job or reunite with loved ones.

You will need to accept that things may not be perfect or easy. Forgive yourself if you make mistakes. You will probably have some awkward talks with people on the outside. Let yourself laugh them off. People in the outside world have awkward experiences all the time! You may think everyone will know you’ve just gotten out of prison, but they probably will not.

Patience is important on the outside. Everything may not go the way you want it to. Sometimes you will feel confused by how much things have changed since you went away. Go slow. Breathe. It is normal to feel stressed sometimes, but you don’t want it to get out of hand.

How will you relax once you’re out in the world? Life on the outside can feel very rushed. EJP graduates said visiting Lake Michigan, taking long walks, biking, and gardening have helped. How can you include activities like this into your life?

You might join a group that is learning to practice mindfulness, offered through some hospitals, social services, and a few churches. Our chapter on Mindfulness has a lot of advice on getting started and even has a few guided meditations.

Connect With Family and Friends

People often isolate themselves during tough times. But it can help to stay connected to positive friends and family members. Think about the people you know. Who are the people you’re counting on to be there for you? Contact family members and friends. Be honest about what you need from them, whether it’s housing, help with money, or just support and love. Find out what they expect from you.

Use this “Getting Ready to Get Out” checklist to help you plan your release. You can use this checklist to find out what areas would be useful for you to start working on now.
Prepare for Challenges

Before leaving prison, work on practicing patience, both with others and yourself.

What skills do you use to manage stress?

When things go wrong, or when you’re disappointed, what can you do to keep yourself on track and focused?

Know Your Strengths

What have you done in the past to successfully adjust to major life changes?

What skills, habits, or traits helped you to stay motivated, build positive relationships, and maintain self-respect?
“Best thing that can reduce anxiety is to have a plan. You don’t have to be rigid with that plan, because you’re going to get out and realize that the world isn’t what you expected it to be.”
—Joe Joe

Gather Your Documents

You will need your birth certificate, Social Security card, and ID on the outside.

As your release date gets closer, you should start the process of getting them. It is harder to get them on the outside. Try to begin this process at least one year before you are released.

Field services (part of clinical services) can help you get your documents. You will need to reach out to them and ask.

“Work with clinical services as much as possible. As early as possible. Find out what programs, classes, or resources are available to prepare for release. Sometimes that stuff is hidden. Make inquiries into what necessary steps you must take to secure documents that would assist you with housing, identification, mental health services, as well as food and clothes shelters in your area.”

—Kilroy

“Take responsibility and look for as much information as you can. Go talk to the law clerks, everybody that you can to get information.”

—Anonymous

STEP 1
Verification of Incarceration

To get started, ask clinical services for a verification of incarceration. You’ll need this to get your other documents. It’s also a good idea to gather any transcripts or certificates from classes you’ve taken in prison. You can use those documents to get your birth certificate, Social Security card and ID.
All US citizens and permanent residents have a Social Security number (SSN). This number is used by the government to keep track of your taxes and Social Security benefits. You will need your Social Security card when you get a job or open a bank account. If you have lost your card, you can apply for a new one. There is no fee for requesting your Social Security card.

To get your Social Security card while you are in prison use the form at the back of this guide to request a card by mail. You can also ask clinical services, your prison library or counselor for a form. Fill out the form and mail it to the address on the form. You will need:

- Your verification of incarceration.
- Another document that shows your name and current address, such as a GED certificate, a transcript from prison education programs, or medical records.
- $15 fee.

Make sure your Social Security card stays in your master file until you are released. Be aware that sharing it with another person could put you at risk for fraud.

STEP 2
Birth Certificate

Next, you will need a certified copy of your birth certificate. This means a birth certificate that has a state seal and is signed and dated by the county registrar.

You can request a birth certificate at any time.

You will need to mail in a form to get your birth certificate. See our Forms section for Cook County and Illinois Birth Certificate Request forms (for anyone born in Illinois). You can also ask clinical services, your prison library or counselor for a form. Fill out the form and mail it to the address on the form. You will need:

- Your verification of incarceration.
- Another document that shows your name and current address, such as a GED certificate, a transcript from prison education programs, or medical records.
- $15 fee.

When you get your birth certificate, put it in your master file to keep it safe.

If you cannot get your birth certificate before you get out, you can request it at a county clerk’s office after you are released. If you were born in Illinois, you can find the nearest county clerk’s office in the directory. Call them before you visit to get instructions.

OUTSIDE ILLINOIS

If you were born in another state, ask a friend or family member to help you get a birth certificate from that state.

STEP 3
Social Security Card

“I needed a second form of identification to get my social security card. If you are in this sort of dilemma you can retrieve a copy of your medical record as a second ID. If you do not have your medical record you can go to a free clinic, take an H.I.V. test and request a copy of the record; you can use this document along with your birth certificate to get your Social Security card.”

—Antonio
At some Illinois prisons a Mobile Secretary of State Unit can help you get a state ID or driver’s license before you leave. Ask clinical services if this is an option for you. More information about getting your State ID or driver’s license after release can be found in our Getting your ID chapter. To get a state ID you will need:

- Your birth certificate.
- Your Social Security card.
- Your verification of incarceration or other document that shows your name and current address.
- $20 fee (you won’t have to pay this if you are in prison or if you get your ID within 30 days of your release).

If you can’t get your ID before you leave, ask for an Identification Card Verification Form issued by IDOC. You can use this form to get a State ID. You can also ask for a 90-day temporary ID card from field services. You will need to go to a Secretary of State facility during that 90-day period to get a State ID. The temporary ID card doesn’t count as a real ID most of the time, but it can help you get your State ID.

If you are under an alias: If you are locked up under an alias, it is really important that you start gathering your documents early. First, write to the county where you are convicted or the state’s attorney office. Ask them to change the charging document to reflect your real name. The court probably will not change all of the court documents to fix this problem. You may need to talk to a lawyer to see if there are any legal steps you can take.

Prepare for Your Job Search

If you are getting ready to leave prison, you’re probably thinking about getting a job. This is an area where you are likely to hit many roadblocks and challenges. The good news is that there are employers who are willing to give you a chance. There are ways you can prepare while still in prison to find a good job. Be hopeful. Many people have found jobs after incarceration. As long as you’re prepared, persistent and have the right attitude you can find one too.

STEP 1
Build Experience

Does your prison let you earn certificates, learn new skills or work? Any experience like this can help you find a job on the outside. They can also make you more confident and help you build skills you didn’t know you had.

School is another good way to get ready for work on the outside. Enroll in school programs, from Adult Basic Education to college programs. School can also show employers you are intelligent and dedicated. Try other things too. Arts, parenting classes, and other programs will give you new skills and confidence.

STEP 2
Write Your Resume

Another important thing you can do while you’re in prison is to write your resume. A resume is a summary of your skills, strengths, and work experience. You will need a resume to search and apply for jobs. Even if you don’t have a computer or typewriter, write your resume out while you are still incarcerated. You can type it out after your release. Your resume should have several parts:

1. Your name, address, and contact information. If you are not sure of your address yet, ask a friend or family member if you can use theirs.
2. Education. Your resume should have a list of schools you’ve attended. You can add any education you had in prison, especially if you earned any degrees or certificates.
3. Work experience. List your jobs, including volunteer work. Include where, when and for how long you held each job.
4. Other professional skills. This includes certifications, technical skills, and languages you speak other than English.
5. Awards (optional). If you’ve ever received an award for your work, like employee of the month, or a scholarship, list them at the end of your resume.

Are you worried what people will think when they see school or work you did in prison? You do not have to put those on your resume if it worries you. The sample resumes in our forms section can show you how other formerly incarcerated people have created their resumes. For information about how to find and apply for jobs once you are released, see our Employment chapter.
“Be ready to pivot. Be patient with yourself. You’re eager to get out, eager to do all of those things. Be realistic with yourself, what you can really do, what is within your control. You’re going to be facing a lot of things.”

— Roberto

“If you sat at a table playing cards for ten years and now you want to come out and you want to go out and get yourself a job that’s paying $18-20 an hour – well, be realistic. You’re not gonna do it. You’re not going to have that job because you didn’t do anything to prepare. What are you going to put on your resume, that you played cards for ten years?”

Find Housing

Transitional Housing

If you are not able to live with family members or friends upon release, you may live in a halfway house or transitional house. Some transitional houses allow people to stay six months, others up to two years. Some are free. Others might ask you to pay some of your income if you are working.

Many transitional housing programs provide support services, such as employment help, case management, life skills training, and medical referrals. Some programs help people recover from drug and alcohol addictions (often called “recovery homes”). Transitional houses usually have strict rules you have to follow. They might have a curfew, or you might have to have a job or attend religious services.

⭐ Note: The terms halfway house and transitional housing often mean the same thing.

Finding the Right Fit

There is a lot of good and bad transitional housing out there. Here are a few questions you can ask your counselor or the people at the transitional house to see if it is a good fit for you:

- Who do you serve?
- How long can I stay?
- What is the cost?
- What programs and services are offered? What will I be doing when I live there?
- Do you provide mental health or substance use treatment?
- What restrictions will I have while I am there? What freedoms will I have?
- Is this a faith-based program? Will I be required to attend services?

Almost all transitional houses do not let in people who have been convicted of sex-based offenses, and some do not let in people with violent offenses.

For a list of housing resources, including transitional houses, see the Housing directory.

How to Find Housing

Usually, counselors will call to place you in a halfway house a few days before your release. A lot of people need the spots. It’s hard for them to know ahead of time what will be available. This can create a lot of stress. It may be useful to bring a list of transitional housing/halfway houses to your counselor.

Here are some places you can look

- Our directory provides a list of different transitional housing programs throughout the state, and a few in St. Louis. You can access it online at reentryillinois.net.
- If you live in Chicago, complete an assessment through the Chicago Coordinated Entry System by calling 312-361-1707. Go to transitionalhousing.org or shelterlistings.org for transitional housing options nationwide.
- Ask around. Do you know people who have had good or bad experiences with these places?
Health Before Release

Planning for healthcare before you leave prison saves money and helps you avoid problems. There are a few steps you should take before you are released.

Enroll in Medicaid.

Ask clinical services to help you get started. If you have a loved one with internet access, they may be able to help you apply at healthcare.gov. Otherwise, you will need to get a paper copy to mail in.

Once you submit your form, it takes 30 days to get insurance, so get started early! This is especially important if you have a health problem that requires treatment.

Get Your Health Records.

Fill out a form to get your health records about 90 days before your release. You may have to pay for copies, though the first 50 pages may be free. There are separate forms for medical records and HIV and mental health records.

After release, you can request your health records from the facility where you were held. But if you wait more than a few months, you will need to request your records from the Department of Corrections in Springfield.

Get Your Exams.

Request a dental exam, an eye exam, and a physical exam before you leave prison. Start early (a year before release) in case they find something you will need to address.

Make a Birth Control and Sexual Health Plan.

If you plan to be sexually active after release, discuss birth control and safe sex during your physical exam. This may help you avoid unwanted pregnancy and STDs. Women should request a gynecological exam with a PAP smear and ask for a mammogram if over age 40.

Consider your options carefully. Some forms of birth control, like condoms and diaphragms, are easy to get and are fairly cheap. They need to be used every time you have sex and may not as effective as other options. Other kinds of birth control require a prescription from a doctor or a medical procedure. When you have your physical exam, you may be able to request longer-term birth control options, like pills, patches, or intrauterine devices (IUDs). Implants or IUDs can protect you for several years from unwanted pregnancy.

No doctor should pressure you into a permanent or long-term birth control or sterilization procedure. Unfortunately, some doctors at prisons have pressured women to have hysterectomies (sterilization) and men to have vasectomies. These procedures will prevent you from ever conceiving. Take time to ask questions and decide what is best for you. If you are feeling pressured, remember: it’s your right to say no.

Make a Medication Plan.

Prisons offer people a 30 to 90-day supply of medication upon release. Generally, you will pick up your medications the day before you are released, but you may want to request these medications ahead of time, just to be safe. The doctor will usually give you a prescription so you can get more. Make a plan to get more medication after you leave. Set up an appointment with a doctor on the outside so that you don’t run out. This can help you avoid going to the ER to get medications filled, which can be costly.

Plan for Doctor Visits After Release.

Before you are released, you will likely receive a medical card that has a list of healthcare providers that accept Medicaid. If you have a serious mental or physical health issue, be proactive and set up appointments ahead of time. A counselor or family member may be able to set up the appointment for you. Our directory includes a list of many health clinics throughout the state.

You may have been in a drug or alcohol treatment program while in prison. Continue treatment after release to make sure you don’t relapse. Ask your doctor, clinical services, or a family member to help you find a treatment center. Try to schedule the appointment for a few days after your release. Our directory includes a list of many low-cost health clinics and substance use treatment centers.

A warning: The first few hours, days, and weeks after release are often the hardest. People are at greater risk for suicide. Many return to old habits, like drug or alcohol use. People are at greater risk for overdose because their bodies aren’t used to drugs anymore. If you can, be proactive and schedule appointments with health care providers ahead of time. You may not need them, but you’ll have a plan just in case.

For more information, see our Health chapter, our Trauma and Mental Health chapter, and our Substance Use chapter.

Prepare for Reunification

This chapter covers the following topics:
• Staying Close to Loved Ones While in Prison
• Preparing for Reunification
• Preparing to Reunite with Children

Staying Close to Loved Ones

For many, the hardest part of being locked up is the strain it places on relationships. The separation is hard for both you and your loved ones. While you may feel love, concern, and care, there may also be feelings of guilt, loss, frustration, anger, and grief.

“If you have any emotions at all, you’re going to have guilt about making your family suffer the pains that you’re going through. Because you’re not suffering alone. They suffer with you while you’re in there.”

— Tony C.

Healthy relationships are open, honest, and deep. Try to maintain regular, open lines of communication through letters and phone calls, when possible. Staying in touch with your loved ones will make reunion smoother.

“The complexities of being in prison can startle any relationship. That’s why understanding and communication is key. In reality no one wants to be a burden; however, everybody needs someone. The pressure of maintaining a healthy relationship is hard for two people in the free world. When I was doing time, I had to understand the sacrifices I needed to make to maintain a healthy relationship with the people that mattered the most to me. I had to remember what it was like to be free, and I had to educate my family and friends of what it was like to be incarcerated.”

— Antonio

“A lot of times people get discouraged when family don’t take their phone calls. They don’t get a response, and they get discouraged. They think, ‘To hell with it, they don’t want to hear from me.’ Even if they don’t respond, you still have to try to cultivate those relationships. A lot of times people are super busy out here. It’s not that they don’t want to talk to you. Keep cultivating those relationships because they are what’s going to help you when you get out.”

— Anonymous
“It’s hard, but you have to make your kids understand that you don’t want to be away from them... You love them and you’re going to do everything you can to make sure you’re in their life.”

—Tony C.

During incarceration, some relationships may end, and all relationships will be challenged. Some find it so difficult that they distance themselves as a form of self-preservation. Be aware that this distance can be very hard to overcome upon release.

“You spend so many years in there and so much time keeping people at an arm’s distance. You never let anybody get close... But when you come home, you’ve gotten so used to keeping people at a distance that you just continue to do it. It’s hard to make new friends.”

—Tony C.

“You don’t want to worry your family with those issues. You get on the phone, and you grind your teeth. Regardless of what you’re feeling, you’re going to tell them that everything is going to be OK. You get in this habit of keeping things bottled up, and you’re dealing with some degree of loneliness and emptiness, because you’re not sharing it with your family.”

—Roberto

Explore other ways to maintain relationships. While it’s painful to not be physically present in your loved ones’ lives, there are other ways to be present. Talk, listen, and provide emotional and mental support when and how you can.

“Try to find ways to make it easier for them to accept you being gone. Because if you just sit and tell them how horrible it is and you bark at them every time they come to visit you or you yell at them in letters or on the phone, then they’re gonna get frustrated with dad and say, ‘Well hey, you’re not even here, so what can you do?’”

—Tony C.

Relationships aren’t a one-way street. Family members can also do a lot to maintain relationships. They can help those who are incarcerated feel included. Share everyday things to help them feel connected.

“I send him a little bit of money, enough to keep phone calls going, you know, and pictures and stuff and try to set up options for him so he knows he doesn’t have to go back to the same stuff. Just let him know that there’s help, there’s better things in life. I try to talk to him about the good stuff, about working and going to church, when we’re playing games with his little sister and stuff like that.”

—Heather B.

Preparing for Reunification

You might be scared, worried, or excited about reuniting with family and friends. You can prepare by reflecting on your relationships. Be honest about who is likely to be a positive, supportive influence in your life. You and your loved ones can also set realistic expectations. You are all in transition. A period of adjustment will be necessary.
It is hard to be left at home and hard to come home, even if you were only away for a few months. For loved ones, having the person come home can take some getting used to as well.

You might begin by letting your loved ones know what you are hoping for and what you will need from them during your reentry. This could include both emotional and financial support. Never be afraid to ask for patience.

Listen to the needs and concerns of your loved ones, too. Reuniting will be easier if you can talk ahead of time and learn to compromise.

“The key thing is honesty. [If] you come out being honest with yourself and with [your loved ones], you can’t go wrong, because you’re not feeding them a fairy tale. You’re giving them you.”

—Keke

“Keep in mind that you are entering somebody else’s space. You must be mindful of the relationships around you.”

—Pablo

If you were locked up for a long time, you’ll need to relearn who you are and who your loved ones are. Children who were young when you left may be teenagers or even grown up with children of their own. You may have different ideas of what the new relationship should look like.

“Don’t come in like they’re supposed to know you or even respect you a little bit, because you’ve been gone. You gotta gain that respect and that trust back when you’ve been gone so long.”

—Keke

“Recognize that we haven’t been part of that house for years, so I can’t come in and put down my dominance, something we’re used to doing when we’re in the cell. We’re used to carving up space and making it our own.”

—Joe Joe

Acknowledge the ways you have changed. You and your loved ones have both grown. Allow for this growth. Be open to the person before you and who they are now.

“First you gotta get yourself together, mentally. Because you might think you know them because they’re part of you, but you really don’t know them and what they’ve been through. You know what they tell you. Same thing with you.”

—Keke

“Never expect anyone to evolve at your pace. When you are dealing with people you haven’t lived with in a while you have to be analytical, you have to examine the structure of your own character. And the character of those you live with. Once you are fully in tune with the compound presence of your household you should become as flexible as a bamboo stick, but it won’t be easy. So, get an evaluation and accept some help from those who can help you with your transition.”

—Antonio
“Oftentimes when people are anticipating going home, they have ideals and expectations on how their reunification with family will be. There’s the dream and there’s the reality. It’s good to have these great expectations, but don’t set yourself up for disappointment if people don’t live up to the expectations you have of them. People have lived experience that might color the way they interact.”

—Joe Joe

Preparation to Reunite with Children

You may have young children you are looking forward to being with. You may be excited to see your kids again or you might be nervous and stressed. It’s ok to have mixed feelings. There’s no right way to feel.

There are things you can do to parent from prison and prepare yourself for regaining custody of your kids, if that’s your goal. Show your commitment to your children. This will make it easier to get them back when you are out. Here are some ideas:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Before Your Release</th>
<th>After Your Release</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Stay in touch with your kids through regular phone calls and letters. Record the dates and times so that you have evidence of your involvement.</td>
<td>Prioritize getting safe and stable housing.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Attend all hearings about your child. It’s your right!</td>
<td>Follow all parole rules and requirements.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Take parenting classes if offered.</td>
<td>Visit your kids as often as you can. Record details about the visits.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Take job training as well as academic and technical classes.</td>
<td>Continue to attend parenting, job training or other classes. This shows your commitment to providing a stable home for your child.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

If you’ve been separated from your children, you may be eager to reunite with them as soon as you can. But don’t rush things. First you need to have a stable job, safe housing, and sobriety. Getting your kids back too soon can cause more harm than good if you are unable to provide a healthy and safe environment for them.

If guardianship for your child was turned over without the court being involved – by signing a “caregiver affidavit” – usually you can get your children back quickly.

If your parental rights have been terminated, you will need the court’s permission to get your children back. Illinois Legal Aid provides information and guidance on this topic: https://www.illinoislegalaid.org/legal-information/dcfs-cases-and-child-protection-services

Even if you don’t get your kids back as soon as you would like, you can still make changes and be involved in decisions about them. If getting your kids back is what’s right for your family, don’t give up, even if there are roadblocks!
When you are released from prison, you will probably be on Mandatory Supervised Release (MSR), commonly called parole. In the state of Illinois, every felony prison sentence has a term of MSR. This means you will be supervised by the Illinois Department of Corrections until your parole period is over.

While on parole, you’ll have to follow some rules. We realize that it is frustrating to know that even though you are getting out of prison, you will not be completely free. Hang in there. Parole is difficult, but many people have gotten through it. You can, too.

This chapter covers:
• Preparing for Mandatory Supervised Release
• Parole after Release
• Parole Rules and Violations
• Registries

Parole: Mandatory Supervised Release

The parole process usually begins around six months before your release date.

STEP 1
Visit with the Prisoner Review Board.

The board will make plans for your parole conditions. For example, you may have to go to an anger management class, or you may be placed on electronic monitoring for a little while.

STEP 2
Find a place to live.

In your parole plans, you will have to submit the address where you plan to live. This is called your “host site.” The board will have to approve it. If you are doing electronic monitoring, a parole officer will visit the home and decide if it is ok for you to stay at. If you aren’t doing electronic monitoring, they may just call the home and make sure you can stay there.
Transferring parole to another state. If you plan to live in another state, talk to your counselor about transferring your parole. Submit a transfer request within 120 days of your release date. After release, you can apply to transfer your parole to another state at any time. You will need to have a family member who has lived in that state for at least six months. Work with your parole officer to apply for the transfer.

Parole After Release

When you arrive at your host site, call your parole officer within 24 hours. You should get your parole officer’s name and phone number before you are released. It is your job to get in touch with your parole officer. If you cannot reach your parole officer or do not know who they are, contact a nearby parole office for help.

When you call your parole officer, they may set up a visit with you in the next few days. Do not leave your home until your parole officer visits. This will usually happen within three days.

Electronic Monitoring

Many people are given Electronic Monitoring (EM) with their parole. If you have EM, you will have to follow some extra rules.

Step 1. Sign the form
On the day you are released, you will sign an Illinois Department of Corrections Offender 360 Reporting Instruction document.

Step 2. Go straight home and call the parole control center
When you are released, you have to go straight home and check in at the Parole Control Center by calling (800) 666-6744. You cannot leave. Stay there and wait for more instructions.
Step 3. Get your electronic monitor
A technician will come to your home within three days to set up the electronic monitor. The monitor has an anklet and a box that plugs in the wall. Make sure the monitor stays plugged in.

Step 4. Find out when you will be allowed to leave your home
Once the monitor is set up you and your parole officer will decide what times you will be allowed to leave your home.

Step 5. Check in regularly with your parole officer
Remember, it’s very important you answer the phone when the parole agency calls. Not answering could get you in trouble.

Electronic monitoring can be hard for everyone in your house. Until you find a job, you will be home most of the time, which can cause stress. If you need rides during your movement times, you will need to work that out. Talk clearly with the people you will live with. Let them know what you need from them, what they need from you, and how you will address problems.

BI SmartLINK

Your parole officer might ask you to download the BI SmartLINK® app on your smartphone. BI SmartLINK® is a tool that lets parole officers and case managers communicate with you on a phone or tablet.

With the SmartLINK app, parole officers don’t have to come visit you in person as much. Fewer in-person visits may be nice for you and the people you live with. But the app also lets parole officers see a lot about you. For example, parole officers can use the app to see where you have traveled. The SmartLINK app has the following features:

- Check in. Parole officers can check in with you to make sure you’re following the rules.
- Resources for housing, health and employment.
- Messages. Send messages to your case manager or supervising officer.
- Supervision terms. See all the rules of parole you should be following.
- Calendar. Get reminders for check-ins and other important dates so you don’t forget.
- Documents. Send photo documents to your parole officer: court documents, payroll stubs, proof of ID and more.

🌟 Don’t know how to use a smartphone? Ask your parole officer to help you use the app. Our Technology chapter can help.

Parole Rules & Violations

Parole officers have the final say for parole rules. These rules are written on a legal document. Make sure you understand all of the rules and instructions before you sign. Ask questions! Some of the most common rules include:

- Do not commit any criminal acts
- Report to your parole officer on a regular basis
- Do not possess firearms

- Allow the parole officer to inspect and search you and your residence
- Refrain from using drugs
- Do not leave the State of Illinois

If you break the rules of parole, you may be sent back to prison. Sadly, this happens a lot. Follow the rules of your parole very carefully so you can stay on the outside. If something happens that makes it look like you broke your parole, call your parole officer right away to explain what happened. If you haven’t broken any rules, your parole office can ask that you not be charged.
If you are charged with violating the terms of your parole, the law states that:

1. The Prisoner Review Board (PRB) will appoint a lawyer for you if you need one. You won’t have to pay for the lawyer.
2. Your lawyer can show evidence and bring in witnesses to help make your case.
3. You don’t have to answer any questions about what happened.

See our Legal Matters chapter for places where you can get help.

Registries

The Illinois State Police keeps several registries, including the Sex Offense Registry and the Murderer & Violent Offense Against Youth Registry. These registries are online databases that anyone can see. They have photos and information about people convicted of sex offenses (name, address, birthday, place of work, sex crime conviction history, age, victim gender).

If you have to register, you will likely face many challenges. People will make hurtful comments. It will be very hard to find housing and a job (see our Transitional Housing chapter). Focus on your self worth. You are more than your conviction. We believe in you.

Ask your counselor before you are released if you need to register. You can also ask someone you trust to contact the Illinois State Police for you. Before you are released, you will get a form that tells you when and how to register.

Make sure you know and understand the rules. It’s easy to make a mistake and go back to jail. You may be charged with “failure to register” because you missed a deadline or didn’t know you needed to register again.

You don’t have to figure it out alone. There are people and organizations who can support you.

- The Chicago 400 Alliance is a group that works to reduce or abolish the use of public conviction registries and residency restrictions. Learn more at chicago400.net

Where will I register?

You will register at your local police or sheriff’s department. This is something you will need to do right away when you get to your host site.

How often will I need to register?

It depends. You may have to register every 90 days or once a year. If you are homeless and don’t have a permanent address, you may have to register every week. The registration process can be long. Call ahead to find out when they are open and if you need to make an appointment.

What should I bring when I register?

You will need proof of address (driver’s license, rent or utility bill, official document with address) and your state ID. They will take a photo of you and post it on the sex offense registry website. They may also take fingerprints or a DNA swab. You will have to sign registration documents. Be sure you understand what you are signing before you sign.

How can I stay organized so that I don’t miss an appointment?

Keep a calendar of all your deadlines and dates to re-register. Call ahead and make appointments if you can. Keep your documents in a safe place so you can get to them easily. Hold onto documents that explain the conditions of probation or parole, your registration documents, and certified receipts.

How long will I have to register?

It depends on your conviction. If you were sentenced to probation, you must register every year for ten years. For more serious convictions, you must register for the rest of your life.

Do I have to register every time I move?

Yes. If you live in a place for more than three days, you will need to register. You have three days to let law enforcement know that you have moved. You may also have to re-register if you have a change of job or if you change your email address or your online identifiers.

Will I have to pay to register?

Illinois requires a fee of $100 or 100 hours of community service per year, and failure to pay is a felony.
What are the restrictions for people on the Child Sex Offense Registry?
Common restrictions include not being allowed to go in school buildings or on grounds, or live within 500 feet of a school, playground or childcare facility. You won’t be allowed in parks or public park buildings. You can’t use social media, like Facebook or Instagram. You won’t be allowed to live with children who aren’t your own.

Where can I learn more?
Information about the Sex Offense Registry and Murderer & Violent Offender Against Youth Registry can be found at the Illinois State Police website (www.isp.illinois.gov). You can also call the I-SORT hotline at (888) 414-7678.

Transferring Registries

In some cases, you can transfer from the Sex Offense Registry to the Murderer & Violent Offender Against Youth Registry. This will mean fewer restrictions. It’s easiest to do the transfer while still in prison. That is why it’s a good idea to ask your counselor about the registries before you are released. If you think you want to transfer, your counselor can help you do it before you get home.

People with these convictions may be able to transfer from the Sex Offender Registry to the Murderer and Violent Offender Against Youth Registry:

- First degree murder of a child
- Kidnapping
- Aggravated kidnapping
- Unlawful restraint
- Aggravated unlawful restraint
- Child abduction
- Forcible detention

Transfering to another registry can be confusing and frustrating. Remember, ask for help from your counselor if you are still in prison. If you have already been released, you can ask your parole officer for help.

You can start by getting in touch with the State’s Attorney’s Office in the county in which you were convicted. If you’re having trouble getting them to send the form, get someone to help you. You can:

- Contact Illinois Legal Aid (https://www.illinoislegalaid.org/). They can help you get a lawyer who will work for you for free.
- Contact one of the advocacy groups from our directory.
- Politicians like aldermen or state representatives might help you. You can reach out by calling their office, telling your story, and asking for their help.

Congratulations, you’re out! Now that you’re free, you’ll need an ID. Hopefully, you already have your birth certificate and Social Security card. If not, here’s how you can get them:

- Go to the county clerk’s office in the county where you were born. They can help you get your birth certificate.
- Go to a Social Security Administration Office to get your Social Security card. Call before you go to set up an appointment and find out what you need to bring.

Do you need to get both a new birth certificate and Social Security card? This can be tricky. In this case, you might think about getting your birth certificate from VitalChek at https://www.vitalchek.com. You don’t need an ID to use VitalChek. Instead, it checks your identity by asking you security questions. VitalCheck costs about $50. Once you have your birth certificate, you can use it to get your Social Security card.

State ID or Driver’s License

Once you have your birth certificate and Social Security card, you can get a state ID or driver’s license. These are the most common forms of ID. To get either a state ID or a driver’s license, you’ll need to visit Driver Services. To find out which Driver Services facility is closest to you, either call toll free at (800) 252-8980 or go to https://apps.ilsos.gov/facilityfinder/facility.

Do you plan to get a driver’s license? Read the Illinois Rules of the Road first. You can pick up a copy of this booklet at any public library or download it at https://www.ilsos.gov/publications/pdf_publications/dsd_a112.pdf. If you’ve been incarcerated for a long time, we recommend getting a learner’s permit. A learner’s permit lets you practice driving until you feel comfortable taking the driver’s test. To get a permit, you will need to pass a written test and a vision test. Once you get the permit, you can drive with another driver who has a license.

Note: You can get a free state ID if you visit the DMV within 30 days of leaving prison. If you have a temporary ID from IDOC you have 90 days. You will need an Identification Card Verification Form from IDOC to get the free ID. This form can be requested from field services before you leave.

Visiting Driver Services can take a long time, so be sure to bring everything you need:
- An original document with your written signature (credit card, court order, or Social Security card)
- An original document with your date of birth (birth certificate, passport, high school transcript, college transcript from classes you have taken at prison)
- An original document with your Social Security number (Social Security card, IL driver’s license record, or military service record)
- Original documents proving you live in Illinois (bank statement, credit report, utility bills, medical record, HIV test)
- Payment
“It took me seven months to get my Social Security card and ID; this time would have been cut in half if I would have been given the information shared here.”
—Antonio

Suspensions

Is your license suspended? A license can get suspended for many reasons:

- Not paying traffic tickets, parking tickets, or tolls.
- Driving while drunk or using drugs. This is called Driving Under the Influence, or a DUI.
- If you do not make child support payments. See our Legal Matters chapter for instructions on how to change your child support payments so that this doesn’t happen.
- If your license was suspended, you can get it back after the suspension is over.

Revocations

Revoked means your driver’s license is taken away for good. Driver’s licenses are often revoked for more serious DUIs. For example, if someone was injured or killed because the driver was drunk or using drugs. If your license is revoked, you can get a new one. But you will have to wait for some time. The waiting periods for applying for a new license are:

- 1st DUI offense: one year
- 2nd DUI offense: five years
- 3rd DUI offense: ten years
- 4th DUI offense: life-time ban

If your license was revoked because someone was killed while you were driving, you may not be able to get a new one. But you should still check to be sure.

☆ If you choose to drive without a license, you may face more serious penalties (more time without a license, jail time, car seizure).

Getting Your License Back

How do you get your license back if it was suspended? First, contact Driver Services. Ask them how long before you can apply for a new license. Instructions on how to see your driving record can be found on the Illinois DMV website at https://www.ilsos.gov/departments/drivers/drivers_license/purchaseabstract.html.

You can also ask to meet with a hearing officer at a DMV office. Locations and phone numbers can be found here: https://www.ilsos.gov/facilities/facilitylist.html

The hearing officer will let you know if you can get your license back. They can also help you get ready for your hearing.

“Make appointments for anything and everything. Don’t wait until you have all the requirements in your hand. Just make the appointment. You can always reschedule if you need to.”
—Roberto

Informal Hearing Process

You can schedule an informal hearing if you have only one DUI and if that DUI is not a criminal DUI. Contact the Driver Services office nearest you. During the hearing, an officer will tell you what you need to do to get your license back. You will probably need to:
Pay a fee and any traffic or parking tickets you haven’t paid yet.

If your license was suspended or revoked because of a DUI, you will need:
- A Drug/Alcohol Evaluation by a licensed agency.
- Papers showing that you have completed a DUI Risk Education Course.
- Papers showing that you have completed substance abuse treatment.

If your license was suspended because you did not pay child support, you will need papers showing that you have changed your child support payment plan to one you can afford, and that the court agrees to these changes. See our Legal Matters chapter.

Formal Hearing Process

A formal hearing is stricter than an informal hearing. If you have multiple DUIS or a criminal DUI, you will need to schedule a formal hearing. This kind of hearing may include witnesses and evidence. To request a formal hearing:

2. Mail the form to the nearest Driver Services office.
3. Pay a $50 fee.

At the hearing, a Driver Services hearing officer will make a decision about your license. They may say you can get a new license. They may give you a temporary driving permit, or they may deny you a license. It is a good idea to bring documents to show you are a safe driver who won’t get another DUI. You can also bring witnesses to talk about how you are safe, trustworthy, and responsible. Some people hire lawyers.

Do you need a license to get to work or school? Bring papers that show that you have a job or take classes. This may help you get a temporary driving permit.

"If you go with the frame of mind that you are going to spend a hell of a lot of time in that place, it helps. Go with the right frame of mind, otherwise you’re going to be miserable.”
—Anonymous

Chicago CityKey Card

If you live in Chicago, you may be able to get a Chicago CityKey card. This is an ID card for all Chicago residents, including people who are undocumented. It is easier to get than a state ID. The CityKey card is also a library card, transit card, and gets you discounts at some businesses and cultural sites in Chicago. The card also gets you discounts on medications. You can’t use the card to open a bank account, but you can use it as an ID for a lot of basic things. For more information visit the City Clerk of Chicago’s website at https://www.chicityclerk.com/chicagocitykey/about.

Selective Service

Did you know you may still have to sign up for “the draft”? The draft is called the Selective Service. It is a program that lets the US military call men to serve in the military. You need to register for Selective Service if you are:

- Male
- Between 18-25
- Are a US citizen or an immigrant

Registering with the Selective Service does not mean you are in the military. It means you may be called to the military if there is a crisis.

If you are 18-25 you need to register for the Selective Service right away. If you don’t, you could be fined or go to jail. You also cannot get a job with the government or get government training. You can register online at sss.gov/register. You can send the form by mail to:
Selective Service System
Registration Information Office
P.O. Box 94739
Palatine, IL 60094-4739

You don’t have to register if you were incarcerated the entire time you were 18 to 25. You will need to request a status information letter at https://www.sss.gov/verify/sil/.

What if you weren’t incarcerated but you still didn’t register? You can also request a status information letter. The letter should say that you did not “knowingly or willfully” fail to register for Selective Service. You could mention if you were incarcerated shortly after your 18th birthday, left school early, or any other things that might have made it hard to register.

🌟 You can get marriage licenses and divorce decrees at the county clerk’s office in which you were married or divorced.
Resources to Meet Your Basic Needs

Leaving prison is exciting, but not always easy. Many people have trouble finding a place to live or buying food after they leave prison. Other people struggle with drug or alcohol use or mental health issues. Be patient with yourself. Take your time as you figure things out. There are places you can go for help.

This chapter has two main sections:
- How to apply for government benefits to meet your basic needs
- Other places to go to meet your basic needs

Apply for Benefits

Did you know the government can help you with some basic needs? One of the first things you should do after release is apply for government assistance programs. If you need help, go to a Department of Human Services (DHS) Family Community Resource Center (see our directory). You can also visit a hospital, non-profit organization, church, or other service provider and ask for help applying for benefits.

To get these benefits, you’ll have to meet certain qualifications. For some programs, you have to be a certain age. For most, you must meet income requirements (not make a lot of money).

You can apply for these benefit programs by going to abe.illinois.gov or calling (800) 843-6154.

- Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP). This used to be called food stamps. Each month, money is put onto a special debit card called a LINK card. You can use the card to buy food from most grocery stores.
- Medicaid and All Kids. Medicaid is a program for people who make little or no money. It helps people pay for medicine, hospital visits, doctor appointments, and more. All Kids is a similar program that helps pay for health care for children.
- Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF). Provides money for families who need it.
- Aid to the Aged Blind and Disabled Cash Assistance (AABD). Provides money for people who have disabilities or who are blind.
- Medicare Savings Program (MSP). This program helps pay for the costs of Medicare for older people and people with disabilities.

Here are some more programs you may be able to use. People at the Department of Human Services Offices can help you apply.

- The Illinois Rental Assistance Program helps people who need help paying their rent each month. Call (866) 454-3571 for more information.
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) helps people pay their utilities each month (gas, electricity). Call (877) 411-WARM (9276) or visit www2.illinois.gov/dceo/CommunityServices/UtilityBillAssistance to learn more.
- Lifeline (Phone and Internet Program) is a program you can use to help pay for either your phone or the internet. The program will give you up to $9.25 for your bill. Learn more at lifelinesupport.org/.
- The Child Care Assistance Program (CCAP) helps parents who have a job or who go to school. The program provides money for childcare. Learn more at dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?item=30355.
Social Security Programs

The Social Security Administration has other benefit programs that you may be able to use now that you are out of prison. These include:

- Medicare. This program provides health insurance to people older than 65 and people with a disability. See www.ssa.gov/benefits/medicare/.
- Supplemental Security Income (SSI). This program helps people over 65 and adults and children who have a disability. It gives people money every month to help with things like food, clothing, and housing. See https://www.ssa.gov/benefits/ssi/.
- Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI). This program gives money to adults and certain family members with disabilities. To use this program, you need to have worked for many years.

- Social Security Retirement Benefits. These payments are for people older than 62. To get the money, you must have to have worked before you went to prison.

🌟 Note: Almost all disability applications are rejected at first. If you don’t qualify, don’t give up. Keep trying.

Learn more and apply at ssa.gov, or call (800) 722-1213 for help. Get in-person help by making an appointment with your local Social Security office. Go to https://www.ssa.gov/locator.

“I came home after ten years, I went to a homeless shelter and three days later I had a job. A week and a half later, I had an apartment. My first paycheck, I got a cheap studio apartment. So you can do it. Don’t let your feelings from being incarcerated judge who you are and what you can do. Because you can make it.”
—Tony C.

“The advice I would give is to be patient. Things in the outside world move very quickly and I think that you have to be aware and accepting that you don’t have to catch up.”
—Edmund B.
Housing After Release

Finding a place to live is one of the most important parts of the reentry process. It can also be one of the hardest parts. The challenge is to find housing that is accessible, low cost, and stable.

This chapter covers the following topics:
• Transitional housing (halfway houses)
• Emergency housing
• Public & subsidized housing
• Private housing
• Help with rent
• Your legal rights
• Housing for people on the sex offense registry

Transitional Housing

Many people who leave prison go to a halfway house or transitional house. Some transitional houses allow people to stay three months, others up to two years. If you are looking for transitional housing, please see the Prepare for Parole chapter for more information. Our directory also has a list of transitional houses.

Emergency Shelters

If you find yourself without a place to stay, there are emergency shelters. Some shelters are for men only. Some are for women and children. Most do not allow people on the sex offense or violent offense registries. Many shelters offer food, laundry, and support services to help you find more permanent housing. How to find emergency housing:
• Our directory has listed a number of emergency shelters in Illinois. Access it online at www.reentryillinois.net
• Call 3-1-1 in Chicago or 2-1-1 in the rest of Illinois and ask which shelters are accepting people.
• Go to www.shelterlistings.org to find an emergency shelter in any state.

Subsidized and Public Housing

There are several different subsidized and public housing options in Illinois. These options are supported by the government and have rent that is cheaper than in the private market.

• Public housing is owned by the government. People who meet income requirements can live there. Contact your local Public Housing Authority (PHA) to find out about public housing in your area. Go to https://resources.hud.gov/ to find your PHA.
• Section 8 housing is a program where the government provides housing vouchers to help cover rent. You can live in a private apartment or house of your choice, and they will give you a voucher to help you pay for it. Section 8 housing is offered through your local Public Housing Authority (PHA).
• Project-based subsidized housing, or affordable housing, is housing that is owned by private property owners. They receive subsidies from the government to make their housing cheaper for low-income people and families. Go to this website to find this type of housing: https://ilhousingsearch.org/. Your local PHA may also have a list of project-based subsidized housing.

• Permanent supportive housing. If you are a senior, veteran, or if you have a disability, mental illness or HIV/AIDS diagnosis, or if you have been homeless, you may be able to get permanent supportive housing. Permanent supportive housing includes support services, such as medical care and counseling. There is no limit to how long you can stay there. There are several ways to find this type of housing:
  - The Illinois Department of Human Services (IDHS) funds supportive housing programs and maintains a list of housing providers here: https://www.dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?item=30361.
  - Visit a Continuum of Care agency (CoC) to locate public supportive housing in your area. https://www.hud.gov/states/illinois/homeless/coccontacts.
  - If you live in Chicago, use the Central Referral System to apply for permanent supportive housing: www.csh.org/chicagoces/.

How much does subsidized or public housing cost?
How much you pay for housing depends on how much money you earn. Many places will require you to pay 30% of your income to rent.

Can I stay in public housing if I have a record?
In the past, many people with criminal records could not get into public or subsidized housing. This is changing, however. In Illinois, the recently passed Public Housing Access Bill allows most people released from prison to live in public housing upon reentry. Here are some of the key things you should know about the new law:

- Public Housing Authorities (PHAs) can’t consider arrest records and findings of not guilty, juvenile records, expunged records, and sealed records.
- You can apply right after you are released; there is no waiting period.
- The PHAs can look back at your criminal record six months from the date of your application. PHAs can (but don’t have to) deny people with recent felony convictions within the six month look-back period. If you were recently convicted of a violent crime, drug use, or making/selling drugs, you may be denied.
- If you were incarcerated or convicted during those six months, you have an opportunity to present your case.
- Family members can no longer be evicted if you live with them.
- PHAs must keep records of the number of formerly incarcerated people who apply for public housing.

Two groups of people still CANNOT live in public housing under federal law:

- People on the sex offense registry.
- People convicted of producing meth.

Chicago’s Just Housing Ordinance also makes it easier to access public housing.

How should I apply?
Public and subsidized housing programs often have long wait lists. You should apply as early as you can. We have listed county and city Public Housing Authorities in our online directory: reentryillinois.net. Call them and ask for instructions, or apply online. Once you have applied, they will let you know when there is a place available. You can call and check to see where you are on the waiting list.

Private Housing

Private housing can be easier to find than public housing because there is more of it. However, it also costs more. Private housing can be found online and in the classified section of newspapers. Some websites include:

- www.apartments.com
- www.zillow.com
- www.forrent.com
- www.craigslist.org
- www.trulia.com

You are likely to run into barriers because of your criminal background. It may take a while to find a landlord who will rent to you. Large property management firms almost always conduct background checks, so you may have better luck with units in smaller complexes or in private homes. Sadly, we are not aware of any lists of landlords that rent to people who have been incarcerated.
Others who have come home from prison before you may be your best source of information. If you are part of a reentry program, use it as a resource. Use your network of friends and family. They may know of places where you can stay.

Renting an Apartment

Once you’ve found an apartment, call the landlord and set up a time to view it. Arrive on time and dress nice. You want to give a good first impression.

At your visit, you may be asked to fill out an application and pay an application fee. The application will ask for information such as your employer, rent history, and current address. You may also be asked for references—people who can vouch for you, like employers or church leaders.

The application may also ask about your criminal history. Many landlords conduct background checks. You may worry that if you share your history, you may hurt your chance of getting the apartment. Even though this may be true, we suggest that you be up front if they ask. It may not disqualify you.

Warning: If anyone asks you for money before you have even seen the apartment, you are probably being scammed. Do not pay anything before you have seen the apartment.

If a landlord agrees to rent to you, you will sign a lease or a rental agreement.

- A lease is usually a year-long commitment, and you agree to pay a certain amount each month for the whole year.
- A rental agreement is typically month-by-month. After 30 days, both you or the landlord are free to back out or change the agreement.

Read it carefully before signing or paying any fees. It is legally binding. You won’t be able to back out once you have signed. Keep a copy in a safe place.

Security deposits

Many landlords require one to two month’s rent as well as a security deposit before you move in. The security deposit shows that you are serious about renting the apartment. If you choose not to move into the apartment, the landlord keeps this money. Ask for a receipt for the security deposit and any other fees you pay.

When you move out, your security deposit will be used to cover any damages to the apartment that you caused. Your landlord should not use your security deposit to pay for regular wear and tear of living in your apartment, but for items like a broken light fixture or carpet damage. You should receive a receipt for damages when you move out. Any leftover money from the security deposit should be mailed to you within 30 to 45 days.

Breaking a lease

If you need to move out before your lease ends, you can do so, but you will have to pay a fee. The amount that you pay should be listed in the lease, so read it carefully. You may have to keep paying rent until they find someone else to rent the apartment.

Help With Rent

If you need help paying rent or utilities, there are several programs that can help.

- The Illinois Rental Assistance Program. Go to an Illinois Department of Human Services (IDHS) office to apply. You can also call the IDHS Help Line at (866) 454-3571.
- Several cities and counties have rental assistance programs.
  - Chicago Rental Assistance Program. Visit a City of Chicago Community Service Center to apply or visit https://www.illinoisrentalassistance.com/
  - Lake County Federal Emergency Rental Assistance Program (FERA). Apply online. For questions or help with your applications, call 2-1-1 or text your zip code to 899211. You can also email EmergencyAssistance@LakeCountyHA.org.
  - Madison County Rent & Mortgage Assistance.
  - McHenry County Emergency Utility and Rental Assistance Program.
- Community Action Agencies across the State provide help with rent and other services, like help paying for utilities. Call 2-1-1 to find a Community Action Agency near you.
- Call “Help is Here” at (833) 2-FIND-HELP ((833) 234-6343) and be connected to the Homeless Prevention Program. This program helps with rent and utilities for people who are in danger of eviction, foreclosure or homelessness or are currently homeless.
- Call 2-1-1 to be connected to local health and human service assistance.
Your Legal Rights

Important Housing Laws

Below we've listed some of the housing laws to be aware of. If a landlord breaks one of these laws, you can file a complaint. These laws apply if you are renting or buying a home, getting a mortgage, or seeking housing assistance.

Federal Fair Housing Act
• Cannot discriminate based on race, color, national origin, religion, sex (including gender identity and sexual orientation), family status, and disability.

Illinois Human Rights Act
• Cannot discriminate based on race, color, religion, sex, pregnancy, national origin, ancestry, age, order of protection status, marital status, and sexual orientation.

HUD Fair Housing Act Guidelines
In 2016, the US Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) added guidelines for how the Fair Housing Act applies to people who have records.
• Arrest records and convictions can be used to deny people housing, but landlords cannot automatically refuse someone with a criminal record.
• The landlord must prove that they are refusing someone to protect their property or the safety of people living in their housing.

Just Housing Ordinance (Chicago)
• Criminal history cannot be considered if it is more than three years old, unless you are on the sex offense registry.
• Arrests that did not result in convictions cannot be considered.
• If your criminal history is less than three years old, a landlord must conduct an assessment before denying you housing. They can consider things like the nature of the offense, how severe it was, age, and evidence of rehabilitation.
• Background checks cannot be performed until after the initial screening process to see if you qualify for housing. Screening criteria may include income, rental history, and credit score.
• Landlords can only conduct a background check after the initial screening process and you have prequalified. They are not required to perform a background check.

Visit https://www.cookcountyil.gov/content/just-housing-amendment-information-landlords to learn more.

Some other cities also have housing discrimination laws. For example, the Urbana Human Rights Ordinance forbids discrimination on the basis of criminal history.

Eviction

Are you worried about getting kicked out of your apartment? Go to https://www.hud.gov/states/illinois/renting/tenantrights to find information about landlord issues, your rights, and resources across Illinois. Here are a few programs that may help:

• Eviction Help Illinois: https://evictionhelpillinois.org/ or (855) 621-0811
• Cook County Legal Aid for Housing and Debt: cookcountylegalaid.org or (855) 956-5763
• Chicago Eviction Resources: Chicago.gov/eviction or (312) 742-7368

Housing Discrimination

If you have been discriminated against, there are several ways you can file a complaint:

• You can file a complaint with the Illinois Department of Human Rights by phone, in person, or in writing. You will have 300 days to file a complaint. The Illinois Legal Aid Organization has instructions, forms and resources to file a complaint: https://www.illinoislegalaid.org/legal-issues/housing-discrimination
• You can file a complaint through the Housing and Urban Development (HUD) agency. Submit the complaint as soon as possible. Call them toll-free at (800) 669-9777 or (800) 877-8339, or email ComplaintsOffice05@hud.gov
• You can file a complaint in the city where you live. For instance, if you live in Urbana, you can file a grievance at the city’s Human Relations Commission

Legal Assistance

Here are a few resources to help:

• Lawyers Committee for Better Housing: (312) 347-7600 or www.lcbh.org
• Center for Conflict Resolution: (312) 922-6464 www.ccrchicago.org
• Metropolitan Tenants Organization (773) 292-4988 www.tenants-rights.org

Housing for People on the Sex Offense Registry

Sadly, there are very few housing options that will accept people on the sex offense registry. We wish we had better news, but the reality is it is VERY hard for people on registries in Illinois to find housing.

We know of many people who are required to register who have not been able to parole because they could not find housing. Some people have even stayed past the end of their prison sentence because they don’t have a place to stay.

Many people on the registry are homeless and are required to register every week because they don’t have a permanent address. People on the registry are at greater risk of returning to prison—not because they have reoffended, but because they violate parole, often because of lack of housing options.

Still, there is hope. Here are the few options that you may be able to access:
• Living with family members: If you are on the child sex offense registry and plan to live with family, you cannot live within 500 feet of a school, playground, or other facility that serves children. If there is a new daycare or school that opens in your neighborhood, you will need to move.
• Transitional housing: We have tried to find out whether the places we list in our housing directory accept people on the sex offense registry, but were not able to reach all of them. Below we have provided a short list of housing that we know accepts people on the registry.
• Private housing: While public housing won’t be an option for you, you may be able to find private housing. Keep in mind that the same restrictions apply. If you are on the child sex offense registry, you cannot live within 500 feet of a school, playground, or other facility that serves children. You will have to move if a new facility opens.

Help and advocacy: We encourage you to reach out to the Chicago 400, an organization that helps and advocates for people on the sex offense registry. Check out their website: chicago400.net. You can call them at (978) 414-5373 or email Laurie Jo Reynolds at ljr@uic.edu.

Employment

You will hear a lot of discouraging talk about getting a job with a record. While it is hard, there are companies that are willing to hire people with records. Don’t give up.

The good news is that there are lots of job openings right now. Many employers are having a hard time filling jobs. This doesn’t mean it will be easy to find work, but you may have more options than you expect.

There is a lot involved with finding a job, so this is one of the longest chapters. It covers these topics:

• Employment resources
• Make a plan
• Popular job options
• Women and employment
• Apply for jobs
• Your legal rights
• Unemployment benefits

Employment Resources

Finding a job and building a career is hard, especially with a criminal record. We strongly suggest that you find people or programs to help you. Here are a few places to start. There are many more listed in our online resource directory: reentryillinois.net

• American Job Centers help people search for jobs and find training. Go to careeronestop.org to find a location of an American Job Center near you. This website has many resources to help you with your job search. Call (877) 872-5627 for help.

• The Chicago Cook Workforce Partnership (a partner of the American Job Center Network) helps people in the Chicago area find a job and build a career. Call (800) 720-2515 or go to their website: chicookworks.org

• The Illinois Department of Employment Security (IDES) https://ides.illinois.gov/ offers many resources for people who are unemployed or who are looking for jobs.
  ○ https://illinoisjoblink.illinois.gov. Search for jobs, download a resume, look for training and other resources.

  ○ https://ides.illinois.gov/unemployment.html Learn about unemployment insurance and how to apply.

• Reentry programs. Many of the reentry organizations and transitional housing we’ve listed in our directory, such as Safer Foundation, St. Leonard’s Ministries, Phalanx Family Services, Target, and READI Chicago, offer employment services.

• Your parole or probation officer may have ideas about jobs and training you could apply for.
Job Planning Worksheet

Fill out this worksheet alone or with a career counselor.

What am I good at? Knowing your strengths is an important first step.

What are my weaknesses? What kinds of things are hard for you to do? What things don’t come naturally to you?

What do I know how to do? Take some time to think about your skills. This could include skills you learned on the job, in prison programs, or by caring for family members.

✔️ Check some of the things you like to do.

- I like to work with people.
- I like working with food.
- I like working with animals.
- I like routine.
- I like using my hands.
- I like working with computers.
- I like solving problems.
- I like building things.
- I like being creative.
- I like communicating with others.
- I like making a difference.
- I like helping people.
- I like caring for people who are sick.
- I like being part of a team.
- I like being my own boss.
- I like being a leader.
- I like variety in the things I do.
How will my criminal record impact my ability to get a job in these fields?

Make a Plan

For many people who leave prison, the goal is to get any job that pays, even if it isn’t ideal. The job may not be something you want to do forever, but it can help you get back on your feet. It can give you experience and lead you to a better job in the future.

Even as you look for jobs to meet your basic needs, it’s good to explore different careers. Find out what careers match your interests and skills. Look for careers that are in demand where you can earn good money. Learn about the training that you will need.

Take time to make a plan. Talk to a career counselor about your skills and interests and the kind of job you are looking for. You can use the worksheet on the previous page to explore some of your career interests.

Here are a few of the many websites that can help you explore different careers:

- careeronestop.org Explore careers, find training, check out their toolkit, search for jobs, and more.
- mynextmove.org Explore careers and get information about what you can do to get a job.
- myskillsmyfuture.org Find out how your skills, experience and interests can lead to a new career.

We also recommend reading “Take Charge of Your Future.” This guide for formerly incarcerated people will help you take steps to get education and training for a career. It was developed by the US Department of Education. Request a FREE copy by calling (877) 433-7827 or emailing edpubs@edpubs.ed.gov. You can access it online here: https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ovae/pi/AdultEd/take-charge-your-future.pdf

In the next few pages, you will find information about popular career options for people with records. These options are just a few of the many options that are available.
Commercial Drivers

Commercial drivers transport goods, people, and materials. They drive buses, delivery trucks, diesel trucks, and more. Many people who have been incarcerated have had success finding jobs as commercial bus or truck drivers.

Prepare in prison: If you don’t already have your GED, get it! Safer Foundation offers a program at its Adult Transition Center that prepares you to get your Commercial Driver’s License (CDL).

Outside of prison: Here’s how you can get started in this field:

- Apply for a temporary commercial learner’s permit. If you have had a CDL in the past or in a different state, speak with the Vehicle Services Department to find out what you need to do to get a license. Your learner’s permit is good for 180 days.
- Complete CDL training. If you have not already had training, you may want to take a class at a commercial driver’s training facility. Many community colleges (Olive Harvey) offer this training. If you live in Illinois, you can find a list of Illinois certified training facilities at: https://www.cyberdriveillinois.com/departments/drivers/driver_education/home.html
- Take the road and written tests. A study guide for the tests can be found here: https://ilsos.gov/publications/pdf_publications/dsd_ds9.pdf. You may be able to find a hard copy in your prison’s library or resource room.
- Get your CDL. You will need to pay $60 for the license and it will need to be renewed every four years.
Construction and Landscaping Jobs

There are many different construction and landscaping careers. People in these careers build and repair homes, buildings, roads and more. They maintain yards and parks. They install and service heating and cooling (HVAC) systems. They install solar panels. Jobs include:

- Road worker
- Painter
- Heating and air conditioning technician
- Welder
- Solar installer
- General laborer
- Landscaper
- Building maintenance jobs

Note: Some construction jobs (such as plumber, electrician, carpenter, or mason) often require an apprenticeship with a trade union. Some of these unions have restrictions about hiring people with criminal records. It’s a good idea to check before applying for an apprenticeship.

Prepare in prison: If you have the opportunity, take construction, building maintenance, or horticulture training while in prison. Many IDOC facilities have these programs.

Outside of prison: There are lots of ways to get started in a construction field.

- Some jobs don’t require any training at all. Look for entry level jobs. You’ll get training on the job.
- Community college certificate programs. Many community colleges offer training in the construction trades.
  - Community Colleges of Chicago have certificate programs in HVAC, welding, CAD, carpentry, masonry, plumbing, and more. See https://catalog.ccc.edu/programs
  - Illinois Central College in Peoria has certificate programs for CNC machine operators, HVAC technicians, Computer-aided drafting, Welding operators, and more. https://icc.edu/academics/catalog/view-all-programs/
- Chicago Women in Trades offers opportunities to women who are looking to enter either construction or welding. All opportunities are free of charge, but you need to apply.

Prepare in prison: If you can, get training while in prison. Stateville, Sheridan and Dixon offer barbering or cosmetology training. Cook County Jail also offers a barbering school, administered by Larry’s Barber College.

Outside of prison: There are lots of ways to get started.

- Training. Larry’s Barber College offers courses in four locations in addition to Cook County Jail. Legacy Barber College reopened recently by a man who was wrongfully convicted, perhaps making it especially open to recently released students.
- Self employment. If you already have the skills and equipment, you can begin working for friends and build up a client base by word of mouth. Think about what you might be able to offer that others won’t. Can you work outside of regular business hours? Are you willing to do house calls? Eventually, you may have to incorporate and pay taxes. You can read more about the process of starting your own business below.
Computer or Information Technology Jobs

There are many jobs for people who like to work with computers. Jobs include help desk technicians, computer network support specialists, computer programmers, computer systems analysts and more. This industry is constantly growing and well paid. Many of these jobs require only a small amount of training and are in great demand.

Prepare in prison: Take advantage of any opportunity to use computers while in prison and learn some basic skills, such as how to use Microsoft Office. There are a few facilities that offer special computer or IT training: Illinois River, DuQuoin, Decatur, and Lincoln.

Outside of prison: There are many different training programs you can take.

- Libraries, adult education and community centers often offer basic computer classes. Goodwill career centers offer training in computer and digital skills, and some classes are online.
- Go to Northstar at digitalliteracyassessment.org to test your digital literacy skills and build your skills. You can access classes online or find a Northstar location where you can attend classes. They offer certificates for skills you have mastered.
- Most community colleges offer IT certificate programs and degree programs. Many are very affordable.
- If you are a good self learner, try taking computer and IT classes online. Hackbrite Academy offers a free online course on Python (a popular programming language). Skillcrush teaches other important programming languages like CSS. If this is unfamiliar to you, don’t worry, you will have the chance to learn. Programming languages create instructions to tell a website what you want it to look like and do. Edx and Coursera also have a lot of free courses for learning skills like coding or data entry.
- Columbia University’s Justice Through Code program is a free semester-long intensive coding program for formerly incarcerated people. There are openings each semester, and you can complete the course online. The program helps people find jobs after they complete their training.
Dining and Hospitality Jobs

There are many good opportunities in the dining and hospitality industry, though entry level wages can be quite low. Right now, the industry is also seeing major shortages, which means that you might be able to move into a more advanced position more quickly.

There are many different kinds of hospitality companies, and many different kinds of roles within those companies. For a typical restaurant job, there is front of house, back of house, and bar. There are also positions in fast food chains, bars and clubs, hotels, and catering companies.

Many of these jobs require unconventional hours. This may put a strain on your personal relationships, if you are gone most evenings and weekends. These hours can be good if you are available to provide childcare during the regular working day.

Prepare in prison: Many facilities have food service programs where you can get experience. Take advantage of those programs if they are available.

Outside of prison: There are many different training programs you can take.

- Many community colleges and other training programs offer food services certificates. See Southwestern Illinois College, for instance.
- The COLORS Hospitality Opportunities for Workers operates in Chicago and offers comprehensive free training opportunities for restaurant industry personnel.
- Hospitality Opportunities for People (re)Entering Society (HOPES) also “connects adults of all ages with current or previous justice-involvement to career opportunities in the restaurant, foodservice, and hospitality industry.” They provide training and assistance in gaining employment in the industry. In Illinois, they work with IDOC and Safer Foundation.
Human Services and Advocacy

Many of EJP’s alumni work in human services to help people who have been incarcerated. They are caseworkers, counselors, educators, social workers, mediators, and program managers. They advocate for change and better policies.

We need people who have been incarcerated to help make our systems better! You have experience and wisdom that others can learn from! People will be able to relate to you because of your experience.

Social service careers can be a meaningful way of moving on and helping others. But they can also be stressful. Be aware that working with others who are struggling may be difficult as you cope with your own challenges and past trauma.

| Education needed | High school diploma or GED
Some jobs require short-term, on-the-job training.
Many positions require an associate’s or bachelor’s degree or a license. |
| Other requirements | Strong people skills, ability to work in stressful situations. Most positions require basic computer skills. |

Prepare in prison: Find ways to get involved in programs that help others. Can you help lead workshops? Tutor others? Be part of a peer support group? Help teach a reentry class? These opportunities will give you a taste of what it’s like to work in human services. They can help you develop leadership skills.

Most jobs require some education. Get your GED and take some college classes if you can. Take some basic computer classes if they are available.

Outside of prison: There are lots of ways to get started.

- Get involved & volunteer. We recommend that you get involved in reentry programs or other services that interest you. As you participate in these programs, ask the people who are helping you about their jobs and what they do. Then ask if there are things you can do to help out. Volunteering is a great way to get your foot in the door. We know of people who got jobs after volunteering for a while. Even if you don’t get a job at that organization, they may be able to help connect you to another similar job.

- Take advantage of leadership/advocacy training. There are several organizations that offer advocacy training. The Illinois Alliance for Reentry and Justice, for instance, offers advocacy training for formerly incarcerated individuals. https://www.ilarj.org/

- Go to school. Depending on what your career goal is, you may need an associate or bachelor’s degree or an advanced degree. See our Education chapter for advice.
Self Employment

Being self employed has its merits. You can set your own schedule and the money you make is yours (after you pay taxes). You might buy some equipment to do landscaping in your community. You might rent out a small booth to cut people’s hair. You might repair people’s homes. You might offer computer support. We interviewed David, a formerly incarcerated individual who started his own business. He offered the following advice.

To get started, you’ll need:

1. A good idea. Jot down a few ideas on paper first. Ask yourself, what am I good at? What services can I provide? Is there a clear need for this in the community?

2. Training. Get all the training you can. Take business or computer classes. You will need strong finance skills. You will need math skills, customer service skills, and more.

3. Equipment

4. Space for work and storage. Depending on your idea, you may be able to work at home or rent a storage shed. Maybe you can rent a small booth.

5. Feedback on your plan from others. They might see a challenge or a good idea that you initially overlooked.

Growing your Idea into a Business

Some people who are self employed decide to grow their idea into a business by hiring a few more people and getting a more permanent location. You might start your own barbershop, a tutoring business, an HVAC business, or a restaurant.

Starting your own business takes a lot of work. Many of them do not succeed. Here are the basic things you’ll need to turn your self-employment venture into a small business:

- Capital. You’ll need money to start your business.
- More space. Maybe you rent an office space or garage.
- Employees and ability to grow a client base.

- Marketing plan.
- Information. You’ll want to do lots of research about the industry. What other businesses offer these services? What technologies do they use? How do they get clients?

We recommend that you seek out professional business help. There will be lots of paperwork to manage. You’ll have to do taxes and finances for your business. In Illinois, you need to file with the state to make your business official. Talk with someone who understands the ins and outs of loans and taxes. Lawyers who advertise experience with incorporation can file your paperwork, but they also charge a fee.

Free resources do exist. Here are a few:

- PERC is a Chicago-based entrepreneurial training program for both incarcerated and previously incarcerated citizens who want to start or expand a business. See [http://www.percempowers.org/] or call (773) 341-2070. They offer pre-release training and community training.

- Those who complete training may apply for small business loans offered by the Chicago Neighborhood Initiative Micro Finance Group.

- Illinois Small Business Development Centers are a statewide resource that provides planning advice, counseling, training, and access to financing programs. To find one near you, go online to www.illinois.gov/dceo/SmallBizAssistance.

- Look for a small business accelerator. Seek out your local business association or Chamber of Commerce to get help.

“Starting a business can put a strain on your relationships. Talk about your plans with the people you care about. Keep them in loop. Take care to maintain your relationships even when things are busy.”

Women and Employment

It can be especially hard for women to find jobs after release. They are more likely than men to be unemployed. When they do find jobs, they often get paid less or work fewer hours. They are more likely to get hired in temp jobs and entry level jobs, even when they have skills and training for more advanced jobs.

As a woman, here are a few things you may face.

- Greater discrimination. People don’t expect women to be locked up and often judge them more harshly.
- Difficulty balancing family and jobs. Perhaps you have young children, parents, or grandparents you are caring for. It’s hard to work a job and care for your family at the same time. It’s hard to find childcare.
- Many of the popular job options for those with criminal records hire mostly men. You may feel uncomfortable if you are the only woman on the crew.
- You may feel unsafe at your jobs, or unsafe getting to the job.

Despite these challenges, we recommend that you approach your job search with patience and hope. There are barriers that you will face, but many women have found jobs after prison. You can, too.

Here are a few suggestions:

- Get as much education and training as you can while in prison.
- Find reentry and job programs that serve women. They can help you access childcare and get the emotional support you need. We have listed a few in our directory.
- Be confident! Sometimes women think that they are not qualified. Don’t pass up a chance to apply, even if you don’t meet all of the requirements.
- Don’t be afraid to look for jobs in fields with mostly men, such as construction or IT. In fact, these fields need and want more women! There are free training programs to bring more women into these jobs.
- Be realistic. You will probably have to apply for a number of jobs. You’ve already dealt with a lot of difficult things, so try to be patient and open minded to the opportunities that arise.

Look for Jobs

Look for jobs that you qualify for. What experience, education, and training do they require? Is the job a good fit for your skills? Even if you don’t meet all of the requirements, think about applying anyway. Don’t sell yourself short! Be confident in your skills and abilities. Sometimes, you can get the training you need on the job.

It’s important to be realistic. You will probably have to apply for a number of jobs before you get hired. Be confident in your skills. You’ve already dealt with a lot of difficult things, so try to be patient and open minded to the opportunities that arise.

Networking. Networking is probably the most important way to find a job. Successful job seekers often talk to many different people. These people may not have a job for you right now, but they could have career advice. Maybe they know someone else with a job lead. They might learn of a job in the future. Mention that you are looking for a job to friends, family, and casual acquaintances. Contact people who do the kind of work that you are interested in.

Online. These days, many people find jobs through websites like monster.com, careerbuilder.com, and snagajob.com. Indeed.com is one of the largest sources of job postings in the world. It collects job postings from employer websites, job boards, and more. These sites can be good if you want to work for a large employer. Lots of people submit online applications, especially to large companies. It may be hard to stand out.

You may have better luck looking at company websites. Often, you will find a link to “Current Jobs,” “Careers” or “Employment” on the home page. The website “Jobs that Hire Felons” has a long list of companies whose hiring policies include people with a background: jobsthathirefelons.org.

When searching for a job online, be careful to avoid scams. Scammers may request money or ask for information like your date of birth, Social Security number, or debit/credit card number. Be careful about giving out this personal information on the internet.

☆ Need to use a computer? Visit your public library.
Attend job fairs. Meet employers, recruiters, and schools. You may learn about a new field or opportunity that you didn’t think of.

Keep a record of all the places you have applied to: online applications, visits made in person, initial phone calls, follow-up phone calls, interviews.

Job application forms. The purpose of a job application is to get an interview. Most hiring managers will review your application for 15 to 30 seconds. They’ll want to see a form that’s neat and complete.

Many job applications need to be filled out online. If you don’t have access to a home computer, visit a local library or community center.

If you will be filling out a paper job application at a job site, bring notes about previous jobs and training: dates, job titles, former employer contact info. This is better than trying to remember the details and making mistakes.

Tips for filling out the application

• List your past jobs and describe what you did. What skills did you develop? What things did you do during your shift?
• Focus on what you have to offer. Downplay the negatives.
• List work experience from your personal life. Were you a caregiver for your siblings, children, parents, or grandparents? What skills did you develop? Did you learn to communicate, resolve conflicts, manage people’s health, take care of finances?
• Consider the skills they are looking for. If they want good customer service skills, explain how you worked with customers in your past jobs.
• Use examples from your personal life to explain your passion for this work. Maybe when you were a young child, you took care of your sick grandmother. This inspired you to become an excellent home health aid.
• Do not list your wages from past employment. Instead, write “will discuss at the interview.”
• We suggest you list the jobs you held while incarcerated. You gained relevant experience and skills. For in-prison jobs, you can list your employer as the State of Illinois.
• If they ask you for your “Reason for Leaving” give a positive reason, if possible, even if you were fired or let go. Here are a few positive reasons for leaving:
  ○ You relocated (you left because you went to prison, or you were transferred).
  ○ You wanted a career change.
  ○ You became a full-time student.
  ○ The work was seasonal.
  ○ You wanted to advance or make more money.
• In Illinois, most employers are not allowed to ask about felonies on job applications. Some still do. If they ask, “Have you ever been convicted of a felony?” we recommend that you check “Yes.” Write, “Will discuss at interview.” If you lie, you may get the job, but you could get fired later if they find out.
• The application may ask you for references, people who can vouch for you. These should not be family members or friends. Be sure to ask people if they are willing to be your reference before writing their names down. Good potential references include:
  ○ Former or current employers
  ○ Supervisors
  ○ Teachers
  ○ Social workers
  ○ Religious leaders
  ○ People you volunteer with

Resumes and cover letters

Many job applications require a resume and cover letter. A resume maps out past jobs, your skills, and your interests. Your cover letter is an actual letter from you to the employer. It tells a short story about who you are—why you want the job, your background, and what’s important to you. Keep your letter to one page.

Writing good resumes and cover letters takes time. Examples of resumes and cover letters can be found in our forms section. Here are a few online resources:

• https://hbr.org/2014/02/how-to-write-a-cover-letter
• https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/purdue_owl.html

“I thought I’d be prepared because I had my resume in hand. As it turns out, you need several resumes, adjusted to different jobs, and the ability to write cover sheets on the fly.”

—Pablo
Interviews

Once you’ve submitted your job application, wait to be contacted. Hopefully, they will be interested in interviewing you. Most applications do not lead to interviews. Be patient. Continue to apply to other jobs until you have a job offer. Many job seekers are nervous about interviews. They want to say the right things and make a good impression.

- Practice what you’ll say. Indeed.com has a list of common interview questions and answers that you can practice with a friend, counselor, or family member.
- Bring your resume and contact information for your references. Bring copies of work licenses, your driving record, and your Social Security or immigration cards. Bring a pen and notebook to write down information.
- Arrive 10 to 15 minutes early. This shows you are responsible and eager to be there.
- Wear appropriate clothes. Wear something a bit more formal than what you would wear for the job.
- Consider your body language. Even when you are not speaking, you are sending a message. Make good eye contact, stand and sit tall, and smile.
- Test your equipment. If your interview is online, test your video and internet connection beforehand. Make sure you're in a place without disruptions.
- Come prepared to ask the employer questions. At the end of a job interview, most hiring managers will ask if you have any questions. Here are some examples:
  - What is the organization’s plan for the next five years?
  - How will I be evaluated, and in what timeframes? By whom?
  - What are the day-to-day responsibilities of this job?
  - What computer equipment and software do you use?
  - When will a decision be made about this position?

Talking about your criminal record

You may have a hard time answering questions about your criminal record. Here are a few tips to increase your chance of getting hired:

- Own it. “At that time I was making some bad choices and I was convicted of... (state your offense).” Address any concerns an employer might have.
- Redirect. After addressing your background, steer the interview back to your skills and what you bring to the job. “I can see why that might concern you. But that was several years ago. Since then, I have had a solid work record. I come to work on time. I am a hard worker and quick learner.”
- Unrelated to job. If your felony conviction is not related to the job you are applying for, you might say, “Yes, I was convicted of a felony, but it was not job related.”
- Keep it positive. “I thought a lot about where my life was going and I decided to make some changes.” Talk about your current activities and future career goals. Mention education and job training, community work, and other activities.
- Encourage the employer. “I am a good worker and I want to work, I just need an opportunity to prove my skills to an employer.” Tell them that you want the job!
- Make a good first and last impression. Employers are more likely to remember their first and last impression, so if possible, try to address your criminal background history in the middle of the interview.

Advice from an Employer

We reached out to Tanja, an employer who has hired many people who have been incarcerated. In the interview below, Tanja explains what employers are looking for. She gives advice about how to talk about your criminal history with employers.

“No criminal record? Look good, smell good, speak good.”
— Tony C.

“Interview tips? Look good, smell good, speak good.”
— David T.
What are the most important qualities you look for in a job candidate?
For me, the most important quality is reliability. I also appreciate it when people are eager to learn and respond well to constructive criticism. The fit between the person and the position is also critical.

How much do you need to say about your criminal background?
I think it really depends on the position. It is a mistake to come in and tell me your whole life. That is too much too soon. But being super vague will make me wonder if you are trying to hide something. For me, honesty is critical. I let people know I am not here to judge and as far as I am concerned, they have done their time. What I care about is the present and the future. Can they do this job now? How much training and supervision will they need? What are their skills and how can these skills aid in the job performance?

What impresses you about candidates?
I am usually impressed when I see someone who has done their homework. They know what the position is, they Googled the company and they know what we are looking for. It is ideal to tailor your history to the position and capitalize on your skills. Link these skills to the job announcement and tell me how these skills will be used to help me. Also demonstrate enthusiasm for what the company does. If it is the restaurant industry, tell me how much you enjoy the food and why.

What questions should the interviewee ask the employer?
Do your homework about my company, the job description, and ask me questions as if you had the position. Ask details about logistics: How many hours, what days and times do you need me? What qualities are you looking for in a worker? What would a typical day be like in the job? What are the opportunities for growth? Do you offer training, and if so, how does that work? Who will be my supervisor? What is their management style? These questions will make me believe you are serious about the job.

What questions can they expect in an interview, and how would you handle the tricky ones?
• Why are you applying for this job now?
• What is your availability? Convince me that you will be available and reliable. Make sure you can make the work schedule work.
• What are your best skills? What skills would you like to develop in the future?
• What were you doing before? This question can be tricky if you have a big gap in your resume. If you were just released, be honest, but capitalize on the skills you have that make you right for this position even though you have been out of the market for a while. Emphasize how the situation has changed, point me to your references and how they will assure me that you are worth taking a chance on.

Your Legal Rights

Equal Employment Laws
The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) is a federal agency that administers and enforces civil rights laws for the workplace in all states. Their guidelines address the following issues:

Employers who wish to do a background check must:
• Get the applicant’s written consent ahead of time.
• Tell the applicant if they will not be hiring them based on the content of the report.
• Give the applicant a copy of the report.

• Notify the applicant after the employer makes a final decision not to hire them based on the report.

Employment denial
In order to legally deny you employment based on a conviction, employers must consider:
• The nature and gravity of the criminal offense or conduct.
• How much time has passed since the offense or sentence.
• The nature of the job (where it is performed, supervision & interaction with others).
If there isn’t a direct relationship between the job and your offense, employers cannot legally use the offense to deny you employment. For example, it would be legal for a bank to deny someone convicted of credit card fraud or theft. But, it would most likely not be legal for them to deny someone who was convicted of drug possession.

Employers can still choose candidates with more or better experience, but irrelevant criminal history should not be a deciding factor in hiring. If you believe you have been discriminated against, you can file a complaint by mail, telephone (800) 669-4000, or in person at an EEOC office: https://www.eeoc.gov/

Certificate of Rehabilitation

A criminal record can prevent you from getting a license in certain fields, including education, transit, and childcare. You may be able to get a Certificate of Rehabilitation. This allows you to apply for jobs that require these licenses. It does not remove any offenses from your record, but it may allow you to get a license. See the Legal Matters chapter.

Work Opportunity Tax Credits

If employers seem reluctant to hire you, you may want to tell them about the Work Opportunity Tax Credit. Employers who hire people with convictions receive a tax credit of up to 40% of the employee’s yearly wages. The tax credit is only for employers who hire people who have left prison within the last year.

Fidelity Bonding

When interviewing for a job, you may also want to tell the employer about the Illinois Fidelity Bonding program. Fidelity bonding is an insurance policy that protects employers from employee dishonesty or theft. The state offers six months of free fidelity bonding insurance for employees with past convictions. The bond covers up to $25,000 in damages if the employee steals from the company.

Ban the Box

By law in Illinois, employers who have more than 15 employees on the payroll cannot access criminal background checks until after an interview is conducted. This law is called “Ban the Box” because it prohibits employers from asking you to check a box on your application if you’ve had a criminal conviction. You may submit a complaint against an employer who violates this rule by visiting: https://www2.illinois.gov/idol/Laws-Rules/FLS/Pages/Ban-TheBox-Complaint-Form.aspx

Conflicts and Safety

If you are being harassed or discriminated against because of your race, gender identity, or sexual orientation, your civil rights are being violated. If you are comfortable enough where you are working, you can speak to Human Resources about what you have experienced. Sometimes it’s better to seek help elsewhere.

There are resources that can support you. If you have been sexually harassed, you can contact RAINN, the National Sexual Assault Hotline at (800) 656-4673 for personal support. They can help you file a complaint.
It is a good idea to get a lawyer before starting a lawsuit (there are pro bono lawyers who can help—see our directory). If you are ready to file a complaint on your own, you may do so at the US Department of Justice Civil Rights Division.

If you are working in a place that is unsafe, you can file a complaint with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) by calling (800) 321-6742 or online at https://www.osha.gov/workers/file-complaint. If you think that something may be unsafe, but don’t have proof, you may notify your employer in writing. If they do not resolve the issue, you may then file a complaint with OSHA.

Of course, it is hard to address these problems if you are in an insecure position and need to keep your job. If you are able to talk to a pro bono lawyer, they might be able to give you advice so that you are not put in a worse situation. See our Legal Matters chapter.

Unemployment Benefits

Most people who leave prison are not able to get unemployment benefits, but you may be eligible if you have been working for a while. You must have lost your job through no fault of your own, such as a layoff, and you need to have made at least $1600 in the last 12 months before you filed your claim. You cannot receive unemployment directly after you return home if you lost your previous job due to your incarceration or if you were in prison for more than twelve months.

The next step is visiting your local Illinois Department of Employment Security office or an Illinois Work Net Center. To find a location near you, use the Illinois Department of Employment Security website: http://www.ides.illinois.gov/Pages/Office_Locator.aspx
Education

A lot of people think about going back to school after they leave prison. Going to school helps you learn more about the world. It can also help you meet new people and get better jobs.

This chapter has information about:
• ABE and GED Programs
• Vocational Training and Apprenticeships
• College
• Paying for College

It is never too late to learn or go to school or college. Learning can even make you feel happier and more fulfilled. You can go to school part-time or full-time. If you are still in prison, take classes before you leave.

ABE and GED Programs

Adult Basic Education (ABE) programs can help you get better at reading, writing, math, listening, and speaking. Usually, you can find ABE programs at adult schools, career centers, libraries, and community colleges. They are free, or cost only a little. Agencies like Kaplan and ELS Language Centers also offer ABE, but they charge more money.

ABE programs can also help you learn English or prepare for the GED. A list of ABE programs in Illinois can be found at www.ilcco.net/AdultEd/index1.cfm.

The General Education Development (GED) test is like a high school diploma. If you did not graduate from high school, you can take this test and it will count on your resume as a diploma. The test will have questions about things you would learn in high school. A GED or high school diploma is a requirement for many jobs. If you don’t have your GED you should try to get one.

You can register online to take the GED test at ged.com. You will probably take the test on a computer at an official GED testing site.

The GED is not an easy test. You will probably need to study. A lot of places have free preparation programs that can help you get ready:

• Community colleges
• Adult learning centers
• Online study programs

A lot of programs will let you sign up at any time. They can also give you a study plan to help you get better in harder subjects. For more info see study.com/illinois_ged.html

Do you need help learning how to use new technology? Go to Northstar at digitalliteracyassessment.org to get help. They have online classes and in-person ones at different locations. They will give you certificates when you gain new skills.

Vocational Training and Apprenticeships

Vocational programs help you learn how to do a job. They can teach you things like welding, car repair, plumbing and more. You can go to community and technical colleges, as well as trade schools to take vocational classes.

A lot of prisons have vocational classes. Take them if you can. Vocational classes help you get some experience and see if you like the work. Once you leave, you can get an entry-level position or an apprenticeship.
Apprenticeships help you get training and experience. You'll also get paid through an apprenticeship. Apprenticeships are usually offered through trade unions.

Visit the Illinois workNet website to find a vocational program: illinoisworknet.com. The Illinois American Job Center is another good place to look: usa.gov/find-a-job

For more information on apprenticeship programs in Illinois, go to https://www.illinoisworknet.com/ApprenticeshipIL/Pages/default.aspx

College

Community college
If you haven't been in school for a while, you might want to start at community college. Community colleges cost less and have a lot of different kinds of classes. A lot of them offer programs where you can get a GED and college credit at the same time. Community colleges usually offer associate degrees (career degrees), certificate programs, and workforce training.

4-year college
Many people go to community college for a year or two. Then they transfer to a 4-year college to finish their bachelor’s degree. You’ll save money for the first two years because community college costs less than 4-year schools.

You have to earn a certain number of credits to get a degree. Some credits have to be in general subjects like science, math, and history. If you finish these credits at a community college and then transfer to a bigger school, your credits can transfer over too. Make sure to check that your school will count your transfer credits.

Check out the website of the Illinois Community College Board for information about planning for college, paying for college, and picking a college. Visit it at www.iccb.org/students/. You can also explore the websites of the schools you're interested in, or you can call, email, or visit an admissions counselor or academic advisor at these schools.

Where should you apply?
Deciding where to go may take some time. Think about what kind of degree you want and what kind of college you want to go to. Research colleges online or at the local library. Almost all colleges have websites where you can learn about their price, academic programs, non-academic activities, the town where they are located, and many other things.

Applying for College

Step 1: Get the application
For most colleges, you will apply on their websites. You can also call or email the school’s admissions office and ask them to send you a paper application. Or you can go to the admissions office and pick one up.

Step 2: Gather your information
To apply for college you will probably need:

- Your Social Security number.
- A state driver’s license or identification card.
- The dates of high school and previous college attendance.
- Unopened transcripts from high school, GED, and/or college transcripts, whichever you completed most recently.
- Many four-year colleges will also ask for ACT or SAT test scores.

Some applications may ask about your criminal history. If you tell them you have been convicted of a felony, some schools will ask for more information. Just because they are asking for the information doesn't mean you will be rejected, but different schools have different policies about backgrounds. You can also ask to speak with an admissions counselor about this step.

Step 3: Take the SAT or ACT exam
Is this your first time applying for college? Many four-year colleges require you to take the ACT or SAT college entrance exam. An admissions counselor can give you more information. It helps to study. You can buy study guides or get them from your public library. Khan Academy offers online SAT test prep for free at https://www.khanacademy.org/sat

Paying for Your Education

Paying for your education can be hard. Below we describe how you can get money for college.

Free tuition programs
Some colleges offer free tuition if you meet certain income requirements. Many community colleges in Illinois offer free tuition and a stipend through the Workforce Equity Initiative. Learn more at illinoiswei.org. The University of Illinois offers free tuition for in-state students whose family income is less than $67,100. Veterans can also get money for college. See studentaid.gov/understand-aid/types/military.

Even if you have tuition covered, you’ll need to pay for living expenses, books, and fees.

Financial Aid: FAFSA

Do you need financial aid for college? The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is the place to start.

How do I apply?
You can find the FAFSA online at www.fafsa.gov, or you can request a paper copy from 800-4-FEDAID (800-433-3243). Applying for federal student aid is free. But it can be complicated. If you're worried or have questions, ask for help. College financial aid offices can help you over the phone or email or in person.

When is it due?
Check on the form to see when it is due for your state. You should also ask your college when it is due. They might want it much earlier. Look at the school’s website or call the financial aid office. Turn in your FAFSA as soon as you can because some financial aid runs out fast. If you can, turn in your FAFSA while you’re in prison. That way everything will be ready in time for you to start school.

What kind of aid will I get?
The aid you get will depend on how much money you make and the cost of your school. Your aid package may include the following:

- Pell Grants are government grants that are based on financial need.
- Scholarships can come from the college or from other organizations. Ask your financial aid office about scholarships. Scholarship information can also be found at public libraries and online.
- Loans have a lower interest rate than banks, and you won’t have to start paying it back until after you graduate. Be aware that if you take out student loans, you will have to pay them back. Think carefully how you will repay your loans. Your loans will impact your decisions about money and jobs.
- Work study positions allow you to pay for college by working for the school. You can say you are interested in work-study when you fill out the FAFSA. Work-study is a good way to make money and get more work experience. They are often offered first come, first served.

Your financial aid package may include several kinds of aid. You don’t have to accept the whole package. You can choose the parts that work for you. For example, you could accept a grant but not a loan. Reach out to the office if you have questions or want help understanding your package.

Can I get federal student aid if I have a criminal record?
In most cases, yes. There are two exceptions. You cannot get federal student aid if:

Step 4: Complete the essay
Most four-year colleges require a “statement of purpose” essay. This might be the hardest part of the application, but these essays let you shine. Make sure you put your goals in the essay. Ask a few people you trust to check your statement for mistakes. Ask them to also make sure you sound purposeful and confident.

Step 5: Submit the application
You’ll probably hear from a community college within a few weeks. They’ll let you know by phone or letter if you’ve been accepted. Four-year colleges can take longer. If you have questions, contact the school’s admissions office.
You were convicted of a drug offense (a misdemeanor or felony) while you were receiving financial aid in the past. And it still might not affect you if enough time has passed, or if you have completed drug treatment. Drug convictions from before you started college shouldn’t have any effect. Ask your school financial aid staff for more information about this.

You were subject to an involuntary civil commitment after completing a period of incarceration for a forcible or non-forcible sexual offense. If this is the case, you cannot receive Pell Grants.

For more information on financial aid for those with a felony conviction, see studentaid.gov/understand-aid/eligibility/requirements/criminal-convictions. It would also be helpful to speak with a financial aid officer at the schools you are applying to.

If a grant, loan, or scholarship offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. There are many for-profit companies that take advantage of people who are looking to go to college. Applying for financial aid should be free, and you should research the agency or company before applying.

Remember to keep copies of all applications and related paperwork in your portfolio.

“A full-time, work-study student with Link benefits can bring in $800 a month plus free transportation. That is a game changer.”
—Earl W., EJP Alumnus

EJP scholarships
The Education Justice Project (the creator of this guide) has a scholarship program. All of our scholarships are need-based, meaning they go to people who need financial help. You can use them for school costs (tuition, books, fees) at accredited postsecondary schools. The deadline for application is usually in November.

EJP offers:

• One $1000 scholarship to a family member of an EJP student.
• One $1000 scholarship to a family member of an IDOC or IDJJ staff person.
• One $1000 scholarship to a family member of an incarcerated individual.
• Two $1000 scholarships to individuals who have been released from an IDOC adult facility.
• One $1000 scholarship to an individual who has been incarcerated in an IDJJ juvenile facility.

We also offer scholarships to formerly incarcerated individuals who have been deported to Mexico or who were incarcerated in Mexico. Applications for these are due on March 15 of each year. These scholarships provide support for study in Mexico:

• One $10,000 MXN scholarship to an individual who was formerly incarcerated in Mexico.
• One $10,000 MXN scholarship to an individual who was incarcerated in the US and deported to Mexico, or to a member of their immediate family.

For more information about how to apply for an EJP scholarship, please contact scholarships@educationjustice.net.

For useful information about how to get your education after incarceration, see Study.com’s guide, “How to Earn Your Degree and Get Hired After Incarceration.” You can access it here: https://bestaccreditedcolleges.org/resources/formerly-incarcerated-education-career-guide

Other Resources for College Students

Tutoring centers
Do you need extra help with your classes? A lot of people do. Many college campuses offer free tutoring to their students.

Mentoring and student support programs
Some colleges offer mentoring programs to new students. College mentors are other students or people who give support to new students.

Career center
Most colleges have career centers that can help you find a job while you are in school and when you graduate. Career centers also offer help with résumé writing, getting ready for interviews, and more.
Health

When you leave prison, you will need to manage your own health. This can be a welcome change, but it is also stressful. There are many different options for health insurance. There are many different kinds of clinics, hospitals, and doctors to choose from. There are paperwork, applications, and bills to figure out. Don’t be afraid to ask for help from family and friends as you figure things out.

In this section, we cover:
• Staying healthy during COVID-19
• Health insurance
• Regular and specialty doctor visits
• Dental and vision insurance
• Paying for medications
• HIV prevention, testing and treatment

Staying Healthy During COVID-19

At the time of this publication, the COVID-19 pandemic was still disrupting life. US deaths from COVID-19 have reached one million. There are now new variants of the virus that spread more easily and quickly, though most are less serious.

Here are the most important things to keep yourself and others healthy:

1. Get a vaccine and booster shots. Even if you aren’t at high risk, a vaccine will protect you and those around you. The vaccines have been tested on thousands of people. They are safe and effective at preventing serious COVID-19 infection. You should get a vaccine even if you already have had COVID-19. You can get a free vaccine at most pharmacies. If you are eligible for a second dose or a booster shot, get them! They will help keep you safe.
2. Wear a mask when you are with large groups of people, especially indoors.
3. Isolate if you are sick or have been around someone who is sick.
4. Wash your hands often.

If you get sick

COVID-19 can look like a lot of different illnesses. The most common symptoms are fever, cough, and shortness of breath. You might feel tired or achy. You might vomit or have diarrhea. Some show no symptoms while others become very sick and end up in the hospital on a ventilator.

If you have mild symptoms, you can treat the virus at home. Rest, drink plenty of water, take acetaminophen (Tylenol) for the fever and drink a warm tea with honey for a cough.

Emergency Warning Signs

Do you have trouble breathing, pain or pressure in the chest, or confusion? Are you too sleepy for someone to wake you? Go to a hospital emergency room right away or call 9-1-1. If you’re not sure if you should go in, call the COVID-19 Telehealth hotline.

• Central and Southern Illinois (Carbondale, East St. Louis, Quincy and Springfield): (833) 673-5669
• Northern Central Illinois (Alton, Peoria, Champaign-Urbana, Monmouth, Ottawa, Bloomington, and Pontiac): (218) 545-5100
• Northern Illinois (including Chicago metropolitan area): (866) 443-2584
If you think you might have COVID, you can get a COVID-19 test at many places in Illinois. Visit http://dph.illinois.gov/testing for the locations and hours of COVID testing sites. You can also call 2-1-1 to find a testing site or buy a test at a pharmacy.

Health Insurance

Getting medical care is costly! Health insurance can help pay for doctor’s visits, medications, vaccines, laboratory tests, and emergencies. Health insurance can also be expensive, but medical care can cost hundreds or thousands of dollars if you are not insured.

🌟 Getting care if you are uninsured. If you don’t have health insurance but need care, there are public and community health programs and clinics all over Illinois that offer free or low-cost services.

These community clinics provide:

- Vaccinations and immunizations.
- Full physicals.
- Nutrition and food stamp programs.
- STD screening, cancer screening, HIV/AIDS services.
- Dental care.
- Pregnancy and maternity assistance.
- Programs to quit smoking.
- Hearing tests and eye exams.

Find a public health program or clinic at www.illinoisfreeclinics.org. Our directory lists many of these clinics.

"Go to a community medical center. You can get a free full physical when you get out of prison. We have to make sure there are no underlying conditions that we aren’t aware of."
—Joe Joe

Medicaid and Medicare

Medicaid and Medicare are federal programs that offer assistance with healthcare costs. Most hospitals and health clinics accept Medicaid payments.

- Medicaid: Program for people who meet income requirements.
- Medicare: Program for those 65 years old or older.

To see if you qualify, visit www.healthcare.gov

You can apply to Medicaid or Medicare one of four ways:

1. You may be able to apply in prison before you leave. Talk to your counselor or clinical services.
2. Apply online at Illinois’ Application for Benefits Eligibility (ABE) page: abe.illinois.gov
3. Apply in person at a hospital or DHS Family Community Resource Center. You can find the nearest center by going online to: http://www.dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?module=12
4. Apply by mail or fax. You can call DHS to mail you an application by calling (800) 843-6154 (TTY (800) 447-6404). Complete the application and mail or fax it back to the nearest Family Community Resource Center.

Before applying you need to have a few documents ready:

- Income verification. This could be pay stubs, a financial aid award letter, a written statement from your employer, or a copy of your check stub showing your total income before taxes.
- Your Social Security number.
- Proof of residency—any official document that shows your address and name together will work.

When you fill out your Medicaid application, you can also apply for other benefits, such as SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program) and TANF (Temporary Assistance for Needy Families). See Resources to Meet your Basic Needs for more information about these and other assistance programs.
If you are receiving Medicaid or benefits from any of these other programs, report any changes to your income or dependent status as soon as possible. If you begin making more money than is allowed, you may no longer qualify for these programs. You will start to lose parts of your tax refund on a monthly basis. You can report changes through the ABE system, by visiting a Department of Human Services Family Community Resource Center, or by calling the Department of Human Services during normal business hours at (800) 720-4166.

"You have to be in charge of everything yourself. You’re not going to get called in later for a physical. The onus falls on you. “
—Pablo

Other Health Insurance Options

If you do not qualify for Medicaid or Medicare, there are a few other options.

- All Kids is a health insurance program for children in Illinois. It covers doctor visits, hospital stays, prescription drugs, emergency services, vision care, dental care and more. You must meet income requirements. See https://www2.illinois.gov/hfs/MedicalPrograms/AllKids/

- FamilyCare is a health insurance program for parents who live with children 18 years old or younger. It provides similar services to All Kids, and you must meet income requirements. Learn more here: https://www2.illinois.gov/hfs/MedicalPrograms/AllKids/Pages/FamilyCare.aspx

- You may be able to get insurance through your employer or your school, if you are in college. If you are under 25, you may be able to still be on your parents’ insurance.

- The Healthcare Marketplace is an option for anyone who needs to get health insurance, but may not be able to get Medicare, Medicaid, or insurance through their employer. It is a federal program that works with health insurance companies to offer plans for individuals and families. After you are released from prison, you have 60 days to enroll. You can also enroll right after major life events or during the open enrollment period. Go to www.healthcare.gov or www.getcoveredillinois.gov or call (800) 318-2596 or (866) 311-1119 to talk to someone who can help you complete your application.

Dental and Vision Care

Get your teeth cleaned and examined regularly, if you can. Oral health is important for your overall health. Teeth problems can lead to bigger health problems in the future.

Get your eyes checked regularly, too. If you have vision problems like glaucoma, cataracts, or retinal tears it is especially important to take care of your eyes.

Dental Insurance and Vision Insurance

You may be interested in a healthcare plan that covers dental or eye care. Some dentists will accept Medicaid payments—ask them to find out. Dental and vision are not always included in health insurance plans, so think about your needs and check each plan before you enroll. There may be separate dental or vision plans that you can get.

Some health insurance plans offer vision care, which covers yearly eye exams and some of the cost of glasses and contacts. Check your health insurance plan to see what is covered because you may have to buy a separate plan for eye care. Medicare does cover eye exams, and Medicaid covers vision care for children.

Low Cost Dental and Eye Care

Here are some options for dental care:

- Find a dental school in your area by visiting this website: www.ada.org/en/coda/find-a-program

Dental students, under the supervision of professionals, can do dental work for a lower cost while gaining experience.
There are several programs that offer free or low cost eye exams and glasses:

- VISION USA (eye exams) - (800) 766-4466
- Walmart and Target have stores with eye shops where you can get an exam and glasses for cheap.
- Eyecare America (eye exams) - www.aao.org/eyecare-america
- InfantSEE (free eye exams for babies 6-12 mo.) - www.infantsee.org
- Sight for Students (glasses for children) - (888) 290-4964
- New Eyes (free glasses program) - (973) 376-4903
- Purchasing glasses online for cheap: Zennioptical.com and www.goggles4u.com offer frames starting at around $10. You will need a prescription.

Doctor Visits

It’s a good idea to establish a regular relationship with your doctor. Most health insurance plans require you to pick a primary care provider. This person will serve as your “medical home” and is usually a family physician, nurse practitioner, physician’s assistant, or internal medicine physician. Having regular visits with a primary care provider is the best way to manage your health. Go see this person instead of going to the emergency room or urgent care. This will save you money and time and keep you healthy.

A primary care physician can give you a full physical exam, perform lab work, and provide prescription renewals. It is recommended that you have a full physical at least once a year and complete routine exams. Below are age and sex-based recommendations for health screenings.

Your primary care provider can also refer you to specialists for some health concerns. One way to contact your primary care physician is by signing up through your hospital network’s online portal. This will allow you to access your medical records, send messages to your doctor and schedule appointments.

“Going to the office of my primary care physician was actually a pleasant experience. It was nothing like it was on the inside.”
— Pablo

Pharmacy

Some insurance plans will help you pay for expensive medical prescriptions, while others do not. If you are having trouble paying for your prescriptions, here are a few options:

- Ask your doctor or pharmacist if there is a generic version of the drugs you need. Generic drugs are much less expensive.
- Go to Goodrx.com to compare prices of prescription medications. It tells you where you can go for the best price. You can download their app on a smartphone.
- Stores like Target, Walmart, Costco, and Sam’s Club often have special programs where you can purchase generic drugs for very cheap ($4 for 30-day quantity or $10 for a 90-day quantity).
- Go to www.rxassist.org to find out if the medication you need is offered for free to people who qualify.

What Does Having HIV Mean?

HIV is a virus that spreads by attacking and killing healthy cells in the body. This happens all over the body, destroying cells or forcing them to create new infected cells.

HIV targets immune system cells, known as T-cells. T-cells fight off infection by killing cells that have been infected by germs. As more T-cells start dying, the immune system is open to attack. If the number of T-cells drops too low, the risk of infection increases and can lead to AIDS. When someone has AIDS, their immune system becomes too weak to fight off other infections. If untreated, people can die of AIDS.

Fortunately, people who have HIV today can live long and productive lives as long as they take steps to stay on top of their infection. HIV can be managed with daily medication, regular testing and doctor visits, and healthy lifestyle changes (exercise, stopping smoking, getting enough sleep, etc.).
Sometimes HIV testing is offered as part of the prison outtake process. We suggest you take advantage of this free testing, as knowing your status is very important.

Risk

The most common way for HIV to be transmitted is through sexual contact, but infected and untreated mothers are able to pass it on to their children. Avoid contact with blood, semen or vaginal fluid of sexual partners who are HIV-positive. Do not share needles or syringes and make sure to use protection (condoms) for any sexual contact.

Know the risk of spreading HIV to a sexual partner who is not HIV positive. Being treated with antiretroviral medications can reduce your chances of transmitting HIV to a partner. Taking antiretroviral medications regularly lowers the levels of HIV in your blood. This does not mean that the virus is completely gone, so take precautions and use condoms even though the risk of transmission is low. If you do not have HIV but are in a relationship with someone who does, you can take PrEP (Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis), which reduces the risk of being infected.

There are also certain sexual activities that can increase your chances of transmitting HIV. For more information about HIV transmission and risk factors, visit: www.hiv.gov/hiv-basics

Reflect

1. What are my health insurance options?

2. Who is my health point of contact—the doctor or nurse practitioner who I can call if I need help?

3. What are some ways I can stay healthy?
Trauma and Mental Health

Just about everyone who has been to prison has experienced trauma. Trauma is a mental health issue that many people face.

What is trauma?
Trauma is the emotional response you have during a stressful and possibly life-changing event. It can also be the result of toxic stress that builds up over time. Trauma is more common than people think, and its effects can be very serious. Traumatic events that you had as a child can have effects throughout your life.

“Trauma is something that all of us go through. You have to get to the point that you realize that what you’ve been going through is trauma. Nothing you went through is normal. It’s not normal to be secluded. Even before prison, we were on the streets, experiencing trauma and violence to the point that it became a natural thing. We became desensitized to those things. We didn’t think, ‘Oh wow, this is abnormal.’”

—Anonymous

“The residue of prison stays with you. Keys rattling means it’s a guard coming. You wake up with a heightened sense of alertness. You are late and you worry you have missed your chance. You can’t calm down. You have a pattern of sleeplessness. You are easily annoyed. Tense situations escalate into violence.”

—Kilroy

Trauma can come from lots of things, such as:

- Physical, sexual, or emotional abuse
- Neglect
- Witnessing violence
- Having a loved one with substance use or mental health issues
- Parent separation or divorce
- Poverty
- Being incarcerated or having a family member who is incarcerated
- Living in unsafe neighborhoods

People in prison, especially women, are more likely to have experienced trauma. There are strong connections between trauma, poor mental health, and incarceration.

Where to get help. If you have experienced trauma, you may benefit from treatment or counseling. Counselors can help you understand the effects of trauma on your well-being, your emotions, and your behaviors.

Trauma-focused treatments provide you with skills to better understand what happened to you. You can learn to cope with the emotions and memories connected to these scary experiences. The goal is to help you reach a healthier new meaning of what took place in your life.
Here are a few places you can go for help:

- Go to this directory to find a mental health provider: https://www.dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?item=43695. When calling to set up an appointment, ask if they provide trauma-focused treatment.
- Your primary care provider may be able to connect you to a mental health consultant located in your clinic, so ask if one is available.
- Many reentry programs provide trauma-informed care. Ask what services they provide.

Bouncing Back

When you face trauma or stress and overcome it, you can strengthen your ability to bounce back from hard things. Being able to bounce back instead of getting stuck is called resilience.

Being resilient does not mean that stress is not hard for you. It means you have taught yourself to better cope with hard things. Resilience can be learned. It is not a trait that only some people have. It is something that everyone has the ability to strengthen, like when you build muscle. It takes time and work but it can be done. There is hope!

If you feel stuck or are not making progress, seek help from a mental health professional. Seeking help is an important part of building resilience.

According to the American Psychological Association, there are four main areas of resilience. Work to improve your resilience in these four areas.

1. Build connections
   Connect with people you trust and who understand you. Remind yourself that you are not alone. If you have experienced trauma, it is common to want to isolate yourself. Fight that urge. Find a group to join and get active in the community.

2. Foster wellness
   Take care of your body. Your body needs good food, sleep, water, and exercise to fight off stress. When you take care of your body, you will feel better. There is a big connection between your physical and mental health.

   Practice mindfulness. Mindfulness is being in the present moment without judgment. It can be practiced in many different ways. See our mindfulness chapter. To learn more about mindfulness.

   Avoid negative outlets. When things are stressful it is tempting to want to turn to drugs, alcohol, or other negative ways of coping. This is like putting a bandaid on a large wound. Instead, try to focus on healthy things you can give your body to help you cope.

   “In prison I had ways to cope with trauma. I would exercise, draw. This allowed me to escape that mental state for a little while.”
   —Anonymous

   “Having a support group provides you with a reminder that there are other ways to cope.”
   —Kilroy

3. Find purpose
   Help others. Find meaning and purpose by helping others. Get involved with a community organization or help a friend who is struggling.

   Be proactive. Ask yourself, “What can I do about this problem?” Set achievable goals and break them down into smaller steps. Start working on these steps.

   Look for opportunities for self-discovery. Self-awareness can help you grow. Think about how you have grown as a result of a struggle, like being locked up. How have you become a better person? You may find that it helps you increase self-worth and appreciate your path in life.

4. Embrace healthy thoughts
   Keep things in perspective. You do not always have control of events in your life. But you do have control of how you make sense of things and respond to them. How you think about your situation impacts how you feel, so move those negative thoughts aside.

   Accept change. Being able to accept change is a part of life. There may be some things that get in the way of your goals. It is ok to accept some things. Focus instead on the things that are in your power to change and control.
Maintain a hopeful outlook. It is not realistic to be positive all the time. Allow yourself to feel upset for a little bit, but then focus on what gives you hope. What do you want and how can you make that happen?

Learn from your past. Look back at what has helped you in the past during hard times. Remind yourself of what has helped you find strength before. What have you learned about yourself from your past experiences?

“Advice for socializing outside? Learning coping skills and anger management. Being less abrasive and open-minded.”

—Earl W., EJP Alumnus

Caring for Your Mental Health

Know that if you are struggling with mental health problems, you are not alone. Most people who are incarcerated have a mental health disorder or have had one in the past. Being in prison can trigger mental health problems or make them worse. Your time in prison may cause trauma that affects your mental health long after you leave.

If you have mental health issues, seek treatment as soon as you are released. Reentry is hard. Mental health problems can make reentry much harder. Sadly, people who do not get treatment are more likely to return to prison.

There are mental health professionals who can help you. They can provide talk therapy and medication, if needed. They can help you learn to better handle stress and life problems.

You matter! Make your mental health a priority. When you do, you will experience deep personal growth and be able to better help others. You can learn to become stronger so that you can bounce back from hard things.

This section covers the following topics:

- Seeking treatment
- Types of treatment
- Attitudes about mental health
- Common mental health disorders
Seeking Treatment

Everyone can benefit from mental health support during reentry. Reentry is stressful. Even if you do not have a mental health disorder, you may benefit from talking to someone to help you adjust.

It is a good idea to schedule an appointment with a mental health provider before your release. Many community mental health centers have long waiting lists, so set up an appointment ahead of time. This will help you have the support you need when things are tough.

There are several different options for care, depending on what your needs are.

Crisis Care

Are you in a crisis? Are you worried about hurting yourself or others? Do you have suicidal thoughts? Are you seeing and hearing things that aren’t there? Are your symptoms so bad that you are having trouble functioning? Get help right away.

If you are in crisis, you may need an emergency evaluation to see if you need to be hospitalized. The types of treatments you get during a crisis are very brief. They are meant to keep you safe and get you stable. You’ll get connected to on-going treatment for when you leave the hospital. Be sure to follow up with a mental health professional in your community after a crisis.

Here are a few places you can turn to:

- National Suicide Helpline: Call (800) 273-TALK (8255); En español (888) 628-9454 National Suicide Prevention Lifeline http://suicidepreventionlifeline.org/ available 24/7
- National Online Chat: https://suicidepreventionlifeline.org/chat/ Lifeline Chat open 24/7

- Call 911 and ask for a C.I.T. (Crisis Intervention Trained) officer if you or someone you know is in immediate danger or go to the nearest emergency room.

Non-Crisis Care

If you need help, but it’s not an emergency, find a community provider for treatment. When you call, ask for a mental health assessment or intake with a therapist or counselor (for talk therapy) or psychiatrist (for medication).

These resources will help you find a community provider near you:

Who Provides Services?

There are different mental health professionals who can make a diagnosis and provide treatment.

- Counselors, Social Workers, and Family Therapists offer assessment, diagnosis, and treatment of mental health problems through talk therapy or counseling.
- Clinical Psychologists diagnose and treat mental health problems through talk therapy. They also can also offer testing of behaviors, emotions, and thoughts. This testing can be helpful for making a diagnosis.
• Psychiatrists also assess, diagnose, and treat mental health problems, but they take a medical approach and can prescribe medications.

Most mental health professionals have different specialties. If you are able, find someone who has training and experience working with the problems you face.

Types of Treatment

Mental health professionals offer many types of treatment. Often, it’s helpful to combine different types of treatment, like therapy and medication.

The most important part of treatment is not the type of treatment you choose but the relationship you have with your mental health provider. Make sure that you feel safe and connected to your provider so that you can benefit from treatment.

Individual therapy or counseling. Talk therapy involves working one-on-one with a mental health professional. Therapy can help you heal, grow, and move toward a more productive and healthy life. A therapist will help you learn to live your best life with a mental health disorder. Sometimes you will be able to overcome your mental health disorder.

Group therapy or counseling. This is similar to individual treatment, but you will do therapy with other people. These are not self-help groups. A mental health professional will lead the group. You will likely attend weekly sessions. The power of group treatment comes from the group members. It can be really helpful to have a support network of others who have similar challenges. Many groups target a specific problem, but some may be more general.

Family therapy or counseling. The goal of family therapy is to improve relationships and resolve conflicts. It can include your romantic partner, children, and other family members. It is often used with other types of treatments.

“I benefited a lot from [my support group]. Everybody in those meetings had a similar experience. We are at a place now where we can reflect on some of the things we went through. Maturity comes with age. They have been part of my unofficial therapy.”

— Anonymous

“Many conflicts arise because your family has no idea what you’ve gone through in prison. Or they don’t understand your diagnosis. Families need a guide for what it’s like for those of us who have been through prison, who have experienced trauma.”

Medication. Just as medication can treat heart disease and diabetes, medication can treat mental health problems. Medications are not always needed, but most people with severe mental health problems benefit from medication.

Some mental health disorders require medication because they are so serious. Bipolar disorder and schizophrenia symptoms cannot be managed without the help of medication. If you have these disorders, make sure you take your medication every day. Don’t skip doses. If you have severe anxiety or depression, you will also likely benefit from medication. Taking medication can help relieve symptoms so that you feel better. Combined with talk therapy, medication can help you lead a healthy and productive life.

Medications are prescribed by a psychiatrist after an evaluation. The evaluation will last between 30 and 60 minutes. After that, appointments will be brief (about 15 minutes). Your psychiatrist will monitor your medications and side effects. It takes time for your body to adjust to medications. It also takes time for your provider to find what works best for you. Many medications have side effects, especially when you first take them.
Warning: Don’t quit taking medication once you start feeling better. Feeling good may be a sign that the medication is working, not that you don’t need it anymore! Always consult with a psychiatric practitioner before stopping your medications. Stopping medications all at once can be very dangerous. Your psychiatrist can help you decide if it’s ok to stop. They can help you stop gradually and safely.

Paying for Treatment. Medicaid will cover mental health treatment. If you need to apply for Medicaid, the Health chapter tells you how you can apply for Medicaid. Not all mental health treatment programs accept Medicaid. Make sure to ask if the program accepts Medicaid when you call to make your first appointment. Some programs will also offer services on a “sliding fee scale” so you can pay what you can afford if you do not have insurance. Keep in mind that most programs that do accept Medicaid may have long waiting lists, so plan ahead. If possible, make your appointments before your release.

If you are enrolling in private insurance, make sure to select a plan that includes mental health treatment. When you make an appointment, ask if they accept your insurance. You may be able to see a mental health professional in private practice. This may decrease your waiting time for an appointment.

Attitudes about Mental Health

Some people feel embarrassed or ashamed of having a mental health disorder. These attitudes may have come from your family, your community, or from the media. These attitudes can make it hard for you to get better.

Everyone has a role to fight against these negative attitudes! The National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) offers some suggestions about what you can do to help:

- Compare physical and mental illness. Lots of people have mental health disorders, just as lots of people have physical health disorders like diabetes and heart disease. Getting treatment is a positive thing.
- Talk openly about mental health. Share your experience with people you trust.
- Educate yourself and others. Respond to negative comments by sharing facts and experiences.
- Be conscious of language. Remind people that words matter. Try to avoid words like crazy, or maddening that are all too common in our daily language.
- Show compassion for those with mental health problems, including yourself.
- Be honest about treatment. Getting mental health treatment is normal, just like other health care treatment.
- Choose empowerment over shame.

“When I first met with the group, guys would just sit there. They wouldn’t open up. So I opened myself up. I’d tell them, this is what’s been bothering me. Break the ice. Then someone else would talk about their experience.”
—Kilroy

—Anonymous

Reflect

1. What negative attitudes do you have about mental health disorders and treatment?
2. Where do these negative attitudes come from?
Common Mental Health Disorders

Several mental health disorders are common in people who spend time in prison. We describe them here so that you can know what they are and when you may need to get help. If you think you might have one of these health disorders, talk to a health professional who can evaluate you and provide a diagnosis.

Major depressive disorder. Everyone feels sad once in a while, but not everyone feels depressed. Symptoms include:

- Feeling sad or uninterested in things most of the time.
- Changes in eating and sleeping habits.
- Feeling low energy and having a hard time focusing.
- Feeling tearful, empty, hopeless, or angry and irritable.
- Feeling pretty miserable but not understanding why.
- Some people have chronic pain or digestive issues.

Do these symptoms last for at least two weeks? Do they get in the way of your everyday life? You may be depressed. Talk therapy or medicine can help.

If you are severely depressed, you may also have thoughts of wanting to hurt yourself or die (this is a big concern for women who are recently released). Severe depression may also cause you to hear or see things that are not there. If you have these severe symptoms, go to the nearest emergency room right away or call the suicide hotline: (800) 273-TALK (8255)

Bipolar disorder. Most people have changes in mood at times. If you’re stressed, you might feel angry or scared. If you lost someone you love, you might feel sad. Hormone changes can also affect moods.

If you have intense mood swings that last for several days, you may have bipolar disorder. People with bipolar disorder have extreme shifts in mood, energy, and ability to function. These mood shifts include episodes of depression (above) and mania. Signs of mania are:

1. Increased self-esteem and feeling like you are on top of the world.
2. Less need for sleep.
3. Talking a lot and often fast.
4. Having so many thoughts that you cannot keep up with them.
5. Being distracted easily.
6. Feeling restless. You might pace the room or bounce your leg.
7. Doing things that are risky and can cause harm: spending a lot of money, having unprotected sex with various partners, and using drugs or alcohol.

For some people, manic and depressive episodes can be very extreme. Symptoms can include seeing and hearing things that are not there. This can really impact your ability to function. If your symptoms are severe, get help right away. Less severe episodes of mania (known as hypomania) and depression may not impact your life as much.

Managing bipolar disorder requires help from medicine and talk therapy. Keep a record of your mood changes so that you know if you need to seek help.

Generalized anxiety disorder. Feeling anxious or stressed once in a while is a normal part of life. If your anxiety feels out of control, you might have an anxiety disorder. Generalized anxiety disorder is when you worry a lot and are nervous about everyday things, even things that you have no control over, for no apparent reason. You might feel like something really bad is going to happen. Anxiety leaves you feeling restless, tired, irritable, and tense. It can impact your ability to focus and sleep.

If these problems do not go away and begin to impact your relationships and responsibilities, get help. Talk therapy can help. Medication can help when symptoms are severe.

- Problems with thinking. (having a hard time organizing your thoughts, forgetting things, not being able to focus, struggling to make decisions).
- Delusions (false beliefs that are not based in reality).
- Hallucinations (seeing or hearing things that aren’t really there).
- Disorganized speech (not being able to put words or sentences together).
- Lacking skills that people usually have (the ability to express emotion, be part of activities, and engage with others)
These symptoms can have a big impact on your life. If these symptoms are present for at least a month, get help.

Schizophrenia. Some people can have a distorted sense of reality. This is known as schizophrenia. It is a severe mental health condition that requires medication to manage. Talk therapy can help you build life skills to cope. Schizophrenia involves a range of problems with thinking, behavior, and emotions. Signs of schizophrenia can vary, but it usually involves:

- Problems with thinking. (having a hard time organizing your thoughts, forgetting things, not being able to focus, struggling to make decisions).
- Delusions (false beliefs that are not based in reality).
- Hallucinations (seeing or hearing things that aren’t really there).
- Disorganized speech (not being able to put words or sentences together).
- Lacking skills that people usually have (the ability to express emotion, be part of activities, and engage with others)

These symptoms can have a big impact on your life. If these symptoms are present for at least a month, get help.

Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). Some traumatic events are so shocking, scary, or dangerous that they can change the way we think and feel long after the event has passed. It’s natural to feel scared, nervous, or depressed after something bad has happened. If these feelings last for over a month, you may have post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD).

Common symptoms of PTSD include:
- Having nightmares or flashbacks.
- Avoiding people or situations that remind you of the event.
- Feeling on edge and anxious a lot.
- Feeling depressed.
- Trouble remembering things.
- Feeling emotionally detached.

Medications and talk therapy can be useful in working through these symptoms.

Personality disorders. Your personality is who you are: the thoughts, patterns, feelings, and behaviors that define you. Sometimes people can develop personality disorders—patterns and traits that are harmful to themselves and others. For people in prison, the two most common personality disorders are:

- Borderline personality disorder: Having unstable moods, behavior, and relationships. Feeling emotionally unstable, worthless, insecure, or impulsive. These feelings or behaviors can hurt your relationships with others.
- Antisocial personality disorder: Acting in ways that show a lack of care about other people. For example, lying, breaking laws, or acting impulsively. Not caring about their own safety or the safety of others.

Since personality traits are pretty stable over our lifetime, these disorders can be hard to treat. Despite that, it is not impossible. Often treatment includes long-term therapy. Medications tend to not work as well for these disorders.

Multiple disorders: Mental health, substance use, and personality disorders

Many people who are in prison have more than one mental health disorder. People who have depression are more likely to have anxiety, too. Many people who have a mental health disorder also have a substance use problem. Some people have a mental health disorder, a personality disorder, and a substance use disorder.

If you have more than one of these disorders, let your providers know about everything you are struggling with. If you address one problem and not the other, you may find it difficult to fully recover.

"What I felt was most difficult when I first got out is figuring out how to relate to other people. You have both the lack of ‘normal’ experiences that most people have as late-teenagers and young adults. Plus you have the negative effects of long-term imprisonment."

—Greg A.
Substance Use Disorders

Do you have difficulty controlling your use of alcohol, illegal drugs, or medications? If so, this is one of the most important chapters you will read. As you know, drug and alcohol problems can make it much harder to get a job, form healthy relationships, find housing, and stay out of prison.

We urge you to get help. Your reentry success depends upon it! As you begin to recover, your mind will clear and you will be better able to rebuild your life.

For many, prison is a time to get clean from drugs or alcohol. But just because you were clean in prison doesn’t mean that you are fully recovered. Many people find that problems with drugs or alcohol return when they are released.

Reentry can be a time of stress, anxiety, and fear. You’re trying to rebuild your life while also dealing with the trauma of being locked up for years. Perhaps you have used drugs and alcohol to cope with difficult feelings in the past. Recognize that this puts you at greater risk of relapse.

“What ends up happening is you get out and you realize your issues don’t end. Now you have to deal with other issues. You get hit with all this stuff. You start to get into bad habits again, revert to old coping mechanisms. You have alcohol available, you have drugs. The bottle becomes more available than the gym.”

—Anonymous

There is hope. Know that many people recover from substance use disorders, and you can, too. We honor your efforts. Recovery isn’t easy and you may have setbacks. We believe in YOU and your ability to recover.

This chapter covers the following topics:

• Where to get help
• Safer drug use
• Treatment programs
• Peer support groups
• The road to recovery
• New cannabis laws
Where to Get Help

Let’s be honest. The first few days, weeks, and months after release are really challenging. This is why it’s a good idea to make plans to get help before you are released.

It’s best if you can set up a time to meet with a treatment provider within 2-3 days of release. Join a support group, such as Alcoholics Anonymous, right away or make an appointment to see a counselor. Don’t wait to get help.

Here are a few places you can start:

- Call 311 (Chicago) or 211 (rest of Illinois) to get connected to resources including substance use services and housing.
- Call 911 if you have overdosed and need immediate help.
- Call (800) FACT-400 (800-322-8400) for mental health and substance use emergencies (Chicago and suburbs). Get help from mental health professionals rather than police.
- Illinois Helpline: Call (833) 234-6343 or text “HELP” to 833234 if you or a loved one is struggling with opioids or other substances. They can help you find services near you. See also their website: https://ilhelpline.thesmartice.com/findhelp
- National Helpline: Call (800) 662-4357 for the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration’s national helpline. Get confidential free help from public health agencies to find substance use treatment and information. See their website: https://findtreatment.samhsa.gov/
- Illinois recovery home directory: https://www.dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?item=101165
- National sober house directory: https://soberhousedirectory.com/
- Peer support groups. Find an Alcoholics Anonymous support group by calling 855-977-9213 or going to aa.org. Find a Narcotics Anonymous support group by calling 1-818-773-9999 or going to na.org. There are also non-religious support group options, which we describe in this chapter.
- Safe injection equipment and overdose treatment: Go to https://anypositivechange.org for locations in Chicago.

Safer Drug Use

Many substance use treatment programs focus on getting clean or sobering up. You may need to pass drug tests as a condition of your parole. Many jobs require drug testing.

Some people find that quitting completely is the only thing that works for them. If they start drinking a little, this quickly turns back into drinking a lot. Groups like Alcoholics Anonymous encourage quitting completely and provide peer support to reach this goal.

Quitting isn’t easy. Many people are able to quit for a while, but then return to drug use on and off. If this is your experience, there are things you can do to reduce the harm of drug use in your life. There are ways to manage your drug use so that it doesn’t take over your life. Moderating your use of drugs or alcohol is also a worthy goal. Work with a counselor or program that offers substance use management.

Here are a few safety tips:

- Learn how to inject safely and care for your veins to avoid getting HIV or another disease. https://anypositivechange.org/better-vein-care/
- Know where to get safe injecting equipment. The Chicago Recovery Alliance offers supplies and equipment for safe drug injection: sterile syringes, clean cookers, cotton filters, tourniquets, sterile mix water. Look for their silver vans. https://anypositivechange.org/cra-services/. They can also help you dispose of used injection equipment safely.
- Learn the signs of overdose and how to respond. Teach your friends and family to recognize these signs, too. The Chicago Recovery Alliance has staff and volunteers who can provide injectable naloxone, a drug that reverses opiate overdose.

⚠️ Warning: Did you know that people who have recently returned from prison are at greater risk for overdose? If you stopped using drugs or alcohol while in prison, you may have a reduced tolerance for these drugs. This means that your body can’t handle the same amount of drugs that you took before. This can lead to overdose or even death.
Signs of an Overdose:
- Unresponsive or unconscious
- Slow or stopped breathing
- Snoring or gurgling sounds
- Cold, clammy skin
- Blue lips, discolored fingernails

What to do: Try to wake the person up. Call 911 if you can’t wake them. Start CPR if their breathing is slow or they have stopped breathing. Provide Naxalone (NARCAN®) if available.

🌟 Are you part of an organization that helps people who have substance use disorders? The Chicago Recovery Alliance trains service providers to administer nalaxone to those who overdose. This training saves lives!

Reflect

Whether your goal is safer drug use or quitting entirely, take time to reflect on your drug or alcohol use. Here are a few things you should reflect on, either alone or with a counselor:

1. Where do you use and when? Can you find ways to separate drug use from driving or working tasks?
2. Who do you use with? How are your relationships helping or hurting your recovery? How can you navigate these relationships to quit or be safer?
3. What are your personal rituals around drug use? Can you modify those rituals so that you use less or use in safer ways?
4. Think about your attitudes and emotions about drug use, such as shame and guilt. How are these emotions getting in the way of your recovery?
5. What are your emotional triggers? What are some more helpful ways to deal with difficult emotions?
Treatment Programs

There are many different kinds of treatment programs. You may need to enroll in an in-patient intensive treatment program or live in a recovery home. If your disorder is less severe, you may be able to receive outpatient services, therapy, or join a support group. Treatment should last long enough to change behaviors and thought patterns. For those with severe drug problems, at least three months of intensive treatment is recommended. After that, follow-up support can be helpful for months and even years.

There are three main types of treatment. Often, treatment programs combine all three.

- Cognitive-behavioral therapy. Meet with a therapist to learn how to manage stress and triggers that have led to drug use in the past. The therapist can help you find ways to motivate yourself.
- Medication-assisted treatment. Some medications can reduce your cravings and help you stop using. Doctors can prescribe medications such as methadone, buprenorphine, and naltrexone to help you overcome an addiction.
- Peer support. Many people find that a peer support group can help. Alcoholics Anonymous (aa.org) or Narcotics Anonymous (na.org) are two of the most common.

A good treatment program should also:

- Empower you. It should build upon your strengths. It shouldn’t shame you. It should help you take an active role in your recovery.
- Provide mental health treatment. Many people who have substance use disorders also have mental health problems. It is essential to treat both mental health issues and substance use issues together.
- Address past trauma. Many people use drugs to cope with past trauma. A good treatment program will help you develop effective coping strategies and recover from the effects of trauma and violence.
- Provide support services. Recovery is about more than getting clean. Good treatment programs offer services to help you rebuild your life. They may help you find employment and safe housing.

Paying for Treatment

Medicaid covers the cost of many substance use treatment services, such as counseling, therapy, medication management, social work services, and peer support. Our Health chapter explains how to apply for Medicaid. Not all treatment programs accept Medicaid. Before starting services, ask if they accept Medicaid.

If you are enrolling in a private insurance plan, choose a plan that covers substance use treatment. When making an appointment with a service provider or clinic, check that they accept your insurance.

Even if you do not yet have insurance, there are affordable clinics and programs that you can go to for help. Look for “sliding scale” services where you pay reduced fees depending on your income. We have listed a few in our directory.

Are you pregnant? Do you have children you are caring for?

For the sake of you and your children, reach out and get help. Many women are afraid their children will be taken away if their substance use becomes known. But continuing to use drugs or alcohol also puts you and your children at great risk.

As you are surely aware, society is not kind to mothers with substance use problems. You have likely sensed how harshly people judge you. You may have intense feelings of guilt and shame. We recommend that you seek out a treatment program that can help with the unique challenges women and mothers face. We have listed a few recovery programs for women and children in our directory.

Always let your doctor know if you are pregnant or think you may be pregnant before starting medical treatment for a substance use disorder. Some medications are not safe to take while pregnant or nursing.
Finding a Peer Support Group

If you are struggling with drug or alcohol use, join a support group to get help and encouragement from others. These groups are usually free.

In Becoming Ms. Burton, Susan Burton describes how her first Alcoholics Anonymous group meeting gave her hope:

> People stood up and shared their stories. . . . I rose, took a deep breath. “Look what drugs and alcohol have done to me,” I said, my voice quivering. My hands were shaking so much the styrofoam cup of coffee I held was wasting on me. But no one seemed to judge my piteous condition. The immediate compassion, the empathy, the love that rolled off these strangers was enough to put a sizable dent in my pain, my shame, my guilt, and all that sorrow. In that room, I found hope.

Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) and Narcotics Anonymous (NA) are the largest peer recovery organizations and have chapters throughout Illinois. Visit aa.org or na.org to find a meeting or online group. AA and NA use a religious approach, though they are not tied to a specific religion. Their 12-step process begins by asking members to admit that they no longer have control over their drug or alcohol use. Members are asked to turn themselves over to a higher power to find the strength to change.

There are non-religious support group options, too. These options focus on helping people find motivation within themselves. People learn to control themselves instead of looking to a higher power for help. Here are a few popular options, with in person and online meetings throughout the US:

- Self-Management and Recovery Training (SMART) peer support groups help participants resolve problems with any addiction. Go to smartrecovery.org or call 440-951-5357 to find a meeting or online community.
- Women for Sobriety is a peer-support program for women overcoming substance use disorders. Go to womenforsobriety.org or call 215-536-8026 to find an in-person or online meeting.
- Secular Organizations for Sobriety is a network of peer groups to help people maintain sobriety/abstinence from alcohol and drug addictions, food addiction and more. Go to sossobriety.org or call 314-353-3532 to find a meeting.
- LifeRing Secular Recovery is an organization of people who share practical experiences and sobriety support. They focus on empowering you to overcome your addiction. Go to https://lifering.org/ or call 800-811-4142 to find a meeting.

Ask your primary care provider for recommendations. Many community centers and churches also sponsor support groups or can direct you to others.

Approach your first meeting with an open mind and try to find out all you can. You may need to attend several meetings before you feel things are “clicking.” If you don’t feel you have found “your” group, keep trying. Chapters can be very different and members come and go. Look for:

- Regularly scheduled meetings
- Warmth and friendliness
- Some focus and structure to meetings
- Some time to mingle informally
The Road to Recovery

The road to recovery can be a long one. Don’t be too discouraged if you relapse. A relapse doesn’t always mean that the treatment isn’t working. Give it another chance. Recognize that if you stopped using once, you can again. You have developed skills that will help you next time. Ask if there is a different treatment that may work better for you. Sometimes multiple periods of treatment are needed.

Recovery isn’t just about stopping using. It’s about change. It’s about improving your overall health and wellness. It’s about living up to your full potential. The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) lists four main aspects of recovery:

1. Health
   - Overcome or manage one’s disease or symptoms.

2. Home
   - Find a stable and safe place to live.

3. Purpose
   - Take part in meaningful daily activities (job, school, family caretaking, etc).

4. Community
   - Build relationships and social networks that provide support, friendship, love, and hope.

Reflect

1. What treatment (medication, therapy, peer support group) have you tried in the past?

2. How have these treatments helped you? What worked and what didn’t work?

3. What kinds of treatment would you like to try?

4. Where can you go for help?

5. What does recovery look like to you?

6. Where are you on your road towards recovery?

7. What are some good short term goals you can work towards?
New Cannabis Laws

The US has a long history of punishing people, especially people of color, for minor drug offenses, such as possession of marijuana. Too often, people with substance use disorders are sent to prison instead of getting the treatment and support they need. The war on drugs has greatly increased the number of people of color locked up in the US.

You have likely heard that marijuana is now legal in Illinois. With this change, you may be interested in getting a pardon or record sealing for a marijuana-related offense. You may also be interested in using or selling cannabis. Below we list some things you should know about the new law.

What to do if you have a marijuana-related offense

If you were convicted for a marijuana-related offense (under 30 grams) before marijuana was legal, you are eligible for a pardon, record sealing, or expungement as long as no violent crime was committed. Cases will be reviewed by the Prisoner Review Board. If you have been charged with a marijuana-related offense, reach out to an Illinois drug crimes attorney.

Purchasing and using marijuana/cannabis

- Only adults (21 and over) can purchase cannabis.
- There are limits to the amount you can purchase: Up to one ounce of the flower (dried herb) and up to 5 grams of cannabis concentrate (hashish or tincture).
- Adults can consume cannabis in their homes or at certain approved places. Be careful: some businesses and landlords don’t allow it!
- You can use medical marijuana with a doctor’s recommendation.

Growing, selling, and transporting marijuana

- Only licensed dispensaries can sell marijuana.
- Only people who have transportation licenses can transport and deliver marijuana.
- You can’t grow your own marijuana.

Joining the cannabis industry

The war on drugs has had a devastating impact on communities of color and low-income communities. To address this injustice, the Illinois Adult-Use Cannabis Social Equity Program is making it easier for people in impacted communities to join the cannabis industry. If you want to get involved, you may be eligible for these services:

- Technical assistance for getting a cannabis business license.
- Preference for getting a grower, infuser, or transporter license.
- Reduced license and application fees.
- Low-interest loans for starting and operating a cannabis-related business.

Transportation

How are you going to get around? Transportation is important for your job, for spending time with friends and family, and for living a meaningful life. Unfortunately, it can cost a lot.

If you return to a city like Chicago you’ll have many transportation options. In small towns, your only choice might be a car. Below we discuss the options you might have so that you can decide what will work best for you.

This chapter covers:
  • Transportation options (buses, trains, taxis, bikes, cars, and more)
  • Buying a car
  • Driving legally
  • There are also buses for long trips. Some companies are Greyhound, BoltBus, and MegaBus.

Transportation Options

Buses and Metro
Save money by using public transportation. If you use the bus or metro often, you can buy a pass for a month or a year. This will make the cost of each ride cheaper. Students, older people, veterans, or persons with disabilities can get discounts. Here are a few ways to get started:

  • Do a google search for “public transportation” with the name of your city.
  • Visit the website www.google.com/maps. Enter where you plan to start your trip and where you’ll end. The website will give step by step instructions of what public transportation you can use.
  • For information on Chicago buses and metro, go to rtachicago.org. Learn more about discounts at transitchicago.com/reduced-fare-programs/

Trains and Long-Distance Buses
Here are a few good options for longer trips:

  • The Metra is a train system that connects to suburbs around Chicago. For information on the Metra, go to metrarail.com.
  • For longer distance trips, you can use Amtrak. It has service throughout Illinois and around the country. Go to amtrak.com/illinois-servicetrain for more information.
  • There are also buses for long trips. Some companies are Greyhound, BoltBus, and MegaBus.

It is always a good idea to compare prices between trains, planes, and buses, as well as between bus companies.

Ride-hailing Apps and Taxis
If you have a smartphone and a credit or debit card, you can get a ride-hailing app like Uber or Lyft. They can take you on short trips in your city. Ride-hailing services are just like taxis, but the drivers use their own cars. Before you ride, read these tips on how to be safe at uber.com/us/en/ride/safety/tips

You can use taxis in all major cities. They usually cost more than ride-hailing apps.

Biking
Biking is a good way to save money and exercise while you get to places. In some cities you can rent bikes. In other places, look for second-hand bike stores. If you bike, make sure you know the rules of the road. Usually, bicycles follow the same rules as cars. They have to stop at stop signs and stop lights. You must use hand signals to turn or switch lanes. And you must yield to pedestrians. Wear a helmet for safety. Below are some resources on biking:

  • Rent bikes to use in Chicago at www.divvybikes.com.
  • Chicago bike maps: www.chicagocompletestreets.org/streets/bikeways.
Carpool, Rideshare, and Carshare Programs
Another option for saving money is to carpool. You can look up carpool programs online (see pacerideshare.com) to carpool with strangers. Or you can ask someone you know if you can carpool and share the cost of gas.

If you don't need a car very often, join a carsharing program like Zipcar. Zipcar lets you reserve a car when you need it. You won’t have to pay for insurance, repairs, or any of the things that make owning a car so expensive.

Buying a Car

If you do buy a car, buy one you can afford. Don’t buy a fancy, expensive car unless you can afford it. Instead, buy a less expensive used car. A few tips:

1. Budget
   If you are taking out a loan to buy a car, make a budget. Decide how much you can spend on monthly payments. See the Finances, Credit, and Taxes chapter for more information on buying with credit and budgeting.

2. Research
   Do some research on the types of cars that will meet your needs. Think about what will be safe and reliable. Edmunds.com and Consumerreports.org are great places to start. You can look at how much the cars are worth by going to Kelley’s Blue Book (kbb.com).

3. Buy from a place you can trust
   Don’t go to car dealerships that say they sell to people with bad credit. Be suspicious of companies or people who push you into buying a vehicle before you are ready. Buying from a person can be cheaper, but it is also riskier than buying from a trustworthy dealer.

4. Check out the history
   Once you’ve found a car you like, ask the dealer if you can see its history report. Ask for the Vehicle Identification Number (VIN). You can check a car’s history online at websites like autotrader.com.

5. Mechanic
   If you are buying from a dealer, make sure that the car passes a mechanical evaluation. If you are buying from a person, ask a mechanic to look at it before you buy it.

---

Driving Legally

Car Insurance
You must have car insurance and a driver’s license to drive in Illinois. See the Getting your ID chapter for information about how to get a driver’s license. If you are pulled over and you don’t have insurance, you may have to pay a fine. You can also get charged.

When you have car insurance, you pay a monthly fee, and then the insurance covers some of the costs if you get in an accident. In Illinois, you have to buy an insurance plan that has these two things:

- Liability insurance: This covers the costs if you cause an accident.
- Uninsured and underinsured motorist insurance: This covers costs for you and your passengers if you get in an accident with someone who doesn’t have insurance, or not enough insurance.

Some insurance plans cover most or all of the costs if you are in an accident. Some do not. Some have different costs if you caused the accident or if someone else did. If you get in an accident, you may have to pay more money each month for insurance.
Buying insurance can be confusing. Here are a few tips:

- Talk to an agent by phone or in person. Don’t sign up online.
- Find out what the maximum amount of coverage is for the plan. This is the amount they will pay if you hit a car, compared to the amount you have to pay.

Car Registration

In Illinois you have to register your car. You will have to renew this registration every year, for a fee. If you don’t register your car or renew it you can get a big ticket.

There are a few ways to register:

- Online at www.cyberdriveillinois.com.
- In person. Go to www.dmv.org/dmv-office-finder.php and find your local DMV office. Then go to www.dmv.org/car-registration.php to find what to bring with you to the DMV.
- Car dealers may complete the registration paperwork for you.

Car Inspection

In Illinois your car also may need to get inspected for emissions and safety every two years. Not all cars need to be inspected. To find out if your car needs inspections, go to www.ilsos.gov/regstatus and type in your vehicle VIN (Vehicle Identification Number).

Rules of the Road

Be safe when you drive! We care about you! Don’t drink alcohol. Don’t text or use your phone while driving. Pull over to make a call. Wear your seatbelt; it reduces your chance of death in the event of a serious accident by 50%!

---

Reflect

1. What transportation options do I have right now?

2. What do I need to do to prepare to get a car?
Technology

Technology has changed a lot in the last few years. If you have been inside a long time, you might feel stressed by all the new technology. Don’t worry! You’ll be able to figure it out.

You will need phones and computers for a lot of things after you leave prison. You will use them for work, banking, communicating with family, making appointments, meeting with parole officers, ordering pizza, watching TV shows, paying bills, shopping, applying for jobs, and much more.

Ask your family and friends to help you learn how to use a cellphone, smartphone, or computer. Learning how to use them can be fun! Play around with games, news, sports or even watch cat videos! Playing can help you learn to use them. Take your time and get used to the technology that you use—soon it will feel like second nature.

This chapter covers the following topics:
• Getting a phone
• Technology basics
• Using the internet
• Email accounts, passwords, and security
• Smartphone apps
• Social media
• Video conferencing

Getting a Phone

We recommend getting a phone when you get out. You will need a phone to keep in contact with family, friends, your employer and your parole officer. There are three types of phones:

• Basic cell phones let you call people and send text messages. They are cheaper and easier to use.
• Smartphones can make calls and send text messages, and they can also get on the internet (more about the internet below). Smartphones have programs (called “apps”) that can do things like play music, give driving directions, check the weather, take pictures, and go on social networks like Twitter and Facebook. A smartphone can help you find jobs, look up services, find your way around, and more.
• Landline phones are phones connected to people’s homes or businesses. They can’t move around. Fewer people are using landline phones these days, but they are still one of the cheapest kinds of phone.

Lifeline and SafeLink

Do you have Medicaid, SNAP, SSI, or Public Housing Assistance? If you do, you should also be able to get a free or discounted phone or internet. SafeLink will provide you with one of these for free:

• Smartphone
• SIM card. If you buy your own phone, they will give you a SIM card to put in it. A SIM card lets your phone connect to their mobile network.
• Phone plan. A phone plan lets you text, make calls and use data. Their basic phone plan limits how much you can do, but you can add more for a fee.

Lifeline is a program that works with SafeLink to lower the monthly cost of phone and internet. If you qualify, you can get up to $9.25 toward your bill. Lifeline can be used for phone or internet, but not both.
How to apply
When you apply for public benefits (such as SNAP or Medicaid), ask if you can apply for SafeLink and Lifeline as well. Ask a friend, family member, case manager, or counselor to help you apply for SafeLink at safelinkwireless.com. You can also get help by calling (800) 723-3546. You can apply for Lifeline at lifelinesupport.org. To apply for these services, you will need your contact info, mailing/home address and Social Security number. You will also need proof that you meet the income requirements. These services are typically limited to one person per household.

You can find SafeLink phones and service plans at many stores around the state, including Walgreens, CVS, Family Dollar, and Schnucks.

Phone Services and Plans

What if you need to buy your own phone? EJP graduates have suggested MetroPCS and Family Mobile (Walmart) as good, cheaper choices. They aren’t the best phones, but they won’t be too expensive. If you had a cellphone before you were incarcerated, ask your family if they still have the phone. It might still work. You may want to use it again or change the number. Contact the phone service provider for help with this.

All cellphones come with service plans that you have to pay every month. You have two basic options for service plans:

- Prepaid phone plans or no-contract plans. You pay at the start of each month. You can stop your service at the end of each month or switch to a different service.
- Post-paid phone plan with a contract. You enter a contract to pay a monthly fee for service. They add up your costs at the end of each billing cycle and charge you.

Phone plans have different options. Generally, the services will cover the following:

- Talk: How many minutes you can talk on the phone each month. Many plans these days have unlimited talk time.

- Text: How many text messages you can send each month. Many plans these days have unlimited text.

- Data: Data lets your phone go on the internet when you don’t have access to Wi-Fi (see Technology Basics below). If you only need a phone for calls, you may not need to purchase a data plan. You can use the internet on your phone for free at the library and many other public places and restaurants. If you do need data, start with a small amount, like 1 or 2 GB. You can always get more if you need it.

Phone service companies like T-Mobile and MetroPCS have different plans and rates. Some offer deals for sharing a cellphone plan with family members. Think about what you will use your phone for and how much you can afford to spend on it. Some phone or internet service providers may also offer discounts.

Technology Basics

Here are some technology basics to help you get started.

- Internet or world wide web: A network that connects computers and phones all over the world. Through an internet connection, people can share information, access resources, and communicate. Sometimes people call the internet the world wide web, or they will say, “you need web access,” which means you need to be able to connect to the internet.

- Online: When you are “online” you are connected to the internet. People might say, “Get online to access this resource.” This means that you can access the resource on a computer or smartphone through the internet.

- Smartphone: a phone that does a lot of the things a computer can do. It usually has a touchscreen surface, internet access, and you can download applications (apps). Apps have different tools to help with work, entertainment, money and more. Most people these days have a smartphone.

- Wi-Fi: To access the internet, you need to be connected to it. One way to do that is through Wi-Fi access. Wi-Fi access allows you to connect to the internet without using wires. You can access Wi-Fi for free at public libraries and some restaurants (McDonalds, Starbucks), or you can buy Wi-Fi access for your home.
• Data: Another way to connect to the internet is through a smartphone data plan. Data allows you to connect to the internet on your smartphone if you are in a place that doesn’t have Wi-Fi. Data plans can be expensive, and they usually have limits to how much data you can use every month.

• Web browser: A web browser is a program that allows you to access the internet on your phone or computer. Examples of web browsers are Google Chrome, Firefox, Internet Explorer, and Safari.

• Search engine: A search engine is what you use when you are trying to find information on the internet. First, you will open a web browser. You should see a bar at the top with a little magnifying glass. This is how you can use the search engine. You can type a question or web address into the bar and it will search for the information you need. Google, Yahoo, and Bing are search engines.

• Website: Organizations have “websites” where you can find information, resources, entertainment and more. There are many different kinds of websites on the internet.

• Web address or URL: This is the “address” or location of the website or resource on the internet. You type this address into the search engine bar to go to the website or resource. We have included many web addresses to websites in this guide and in the directory. Web addresses usually look like this: http://example.com. When you type in a web address, you can leave out the http:// or www.

Do you have a smartphone, laptop, or tablet? Free wireless internet is available at the library, as well as many restaurants, coffee shops, hotel lobbies, chain technology stores, and even parks! You may have to ask what the password is before you can log on with your device.

Most things on the internet are found using a search engine like Google. Open up a web browser such as Google Chrome, Microsoft Edge, Firefox, or Safari. The home page will have a search box where you can type in what you are looking for. Here are some tips for good searches:

• Start with the basics. Start with a simple search like “Where’s the closest Amtrak?” or “Pizza in Chicago.” You can always add more words if you need.

• Don’t worry about the little things. Even if you spell things wrong, it should still work.

Using the Internet

Make sure you have a way to get on the internet when you need to. Until you have your own device, you can borrow one from a family member or use a computer at the public library.
Email, Passwords and Security

You will need your own email address. Email is now used more than paper mail. One way to do this is through Gmail, because Gmail accounts are free. Type gmail.com into the web browser and click “Create account.”

You will select your own email username. It should be something easy for you to remember, like your own name, or some combination of your name, initials, and numbers. You will probably use your email to apply for jobs, so make sure your email address is professional. Your password should also be something easy for you to remember, but hard for other people to figure out.

You will probably use the internet to set up other accounts for things like paying bills or accessing files for school or work. Protect your information by keeping your password secret and changing it every so often. Don’t use the same password for every account you have. If you forget a password, you can usually change it by following instructions on the website. If you had email and other online accounts before you were incarcerated, you may want to reactivate them or close them. Change the passwords to keep everything safe.

If possible, do not put in sensitive personal information (like your Social Security Number or credit card information) at a public computer or over public internet.

Smartphone Apps

Most smartphones come with these basic apps:

- Text messaging
- App to make phone calls
- A camera
- A clock
- A map service
- A browser (for example, Safari or Chrome)
- A calendar
- A calculator
- An address book

You can also download more apps. They can be found in your phone’s ‘store’ (the app store or play store). Many useful apps are free. You will need to have either data or a Wi-Fi connection to download apps. You may have to enter your phone’s password to buy it. It should show up on your homescreen in just a few minutes. If an app costs money, your phone should give you the option to enter your credit or debit card information and will ask you to confirm the purchase before downloading.

Here are some apps you may want to use:

- Facebook Messenger is a text or video messaging app where you can communicate with family and friends.
- Facebook, Instagram and Twitter let you share and view photos and comments.
- Spotify lets you listen to music. It will shuffle the music and also play advertisements, like a radio.
- Banking apps help you manage your money and pay bills.
- Transportation apps, like Citymapper, can help you use public transportation or find your way around.
- Many parole officers use the BI SmartLink App. With this app your Parole Officer can connect with you without having to come to your house. See our Parole chapter for more information.

Be careful with apps. Use careful judgment about what you’d like to keep private. Be aware that apps can use up your phone data.

Social Media

Many people stay in touch with others and get news through social media. Social media are websites that allow people to talk and share photos. Some social media sites are used mostly for friends and family while others are used for jobs. Here are two popular social media platforms:

- Facebook is the most popular social media company in the US. People use this site to share photos, updates, and articles. It helps people stay in touch with family and friends; others use it for work. You can comment publicly on posts created by others or message users individually. You can also join Facebook groups to meet other people and get support. TASC, for instance, has a Reentry Facebook Group, Winner’s Circle, that has weekly meetings. Learn more here: https://www.facebook.com/TASC.HealthAndJustice. Signing up for Facebook is free. To sign up, type facebook.com/ into the search bar and click “Create Account.”

LinkedIn is a social network created for finding jobs. You can use it to talk with employers and share your resume. To create an account, type linkedin.com into your web browser and click “Join Now.” Search “How to Create a LinkedIn Account Wikihow” to learn more.

Staying Safe on Social Media

Be careful when sharing information on Facebook or other social media apps. You can change the privacy settings so that only your friends see your posts. Public posts can be accessed by parole officers or employers. Social media sites track what you do and they can use that to try to sell you things. Remember, the information that you see on social media may not be trustworthy. It’s a good idea to check with other sources.

Video Conferencing

Many people use video conferencing to talk to family, friends, and co-workers. With video conferencing, you can talk to multiple people at the same time and see people’s faces. Video conferencing apps can be a great way to stay connected to family members and friends.

Lots of meetings these days aren’t in person; instead, they use video conferencing. Many job interviews also use video conferencing.

Here are a few video conferencing options:

- Facetime
- Google Chat
- Skype
- Zoom

If you have a computer or phone you can download an app for these video conferencing services. Some are free.

In most cases, you will be a guest in a video conferencing meeting. This means you will get an invitation to your email with the link that says “Click to Join.” When the webpage opens, you may join via the app or your web browser.

There may also be an option to call in with your phone.

Video conferencing etiquette tips:

If you are in a group, mute yourself when you’re not talking (click on the microphone).

Be aware of your backdrop. It’s nice to turn your camera on so people can see you, but you can also turn your camera off (click on the camera icon) or use a virtual backdrop if you don’t want people to see you or your living space.

Reflect

1. What technologies do I know how to use?
2. What do I need help with?
3. Where can I go for help?
Legal Matters

After you are released, there may be times when you need to go to court or get legal help. For example, you might want to get your record sealed so you can get a better job. Maybe you want to get back custody of a child.

This chapter covers the following topics:
• Getting legal help
• Child custody
• Child support
• Fees and fines
• Sealing records
• Certificates of rehabilitation
• Executive clemency

Please note that we are not lawyers and do not provide legal advice. We try our best to help you understand your legal options. Ask a lawyer if you need more help.

Getting Legal Help

Pro bono
Figuring out the courts can be frustrating. It is best to get the help of a lawyer. Lawyers understand the rules and know how local judges and courtrooms work. Lawyers are often expensive, but there are lawyers who will work on your case for free (pro bono). These services are available through legal aid programs. See our Legal Services Directory for a list of legal aid programs.

Some cases can be handled without lawyers. These are called pro se cases. Things like sealing criminal records, family law, and small claims matters often don’t use lawyers. This is cheaper, but it is almost always better to hire a lawyer or find one who will work for free.

Pro se help desks
If you decide to file pro se, most counties offer pro se help desks. The service is free. There are workers who can help you with pro se forms, courthouse directions, and legal consultations. Call your county’s circuit clerk’s office for information. For cook county help desks, see this website: http://www.cookcountycourt.org/FORPEOPLEWITHOUTLAWYERS/HelpDesksintheCourthouse.aspx

Child Custody

Custody in Illinois has two parts:
• Parental Responsibilities: If you have Parental Responsibilities it means you can make choices about your child’s future. For example, where they go to school.
• Parenting Time: If you have Parenting Time it means you can spend time with your child. The court will decide how much time they will spend with you. Even if you don’t have Parental Responsibilities you can still have a good amount of Parenting Time.

Custody can be complicated. Many people hire a lawyer to help them. If you choose not to have a lawyer you will need to file a petition to modify custody. Petitions can be found online, or by visiting your county’s circuit clerk office. There will usually be a fee. Once your petition is filed and read, a hearing should be set to change custody.
Foster Care and Reinstating Parental Rights

What if your child is in foster care or with a relative? What if your parental rights have been terminated? You may still be able to get your rights restored. The first step is understanding how the process works. The second step is understanding where you are in your own case.

After your case has started, your child may be removed from your home. If this happens, the Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) will try to place your child with family members, or people who act like family members. DCFS may not know of all your family members, so let them know if there is someone they don’t know about.

You will need a lawyer if your child is taken by DCFS. Let the judge in your case know you can’t afford a lawyer. The judge will assign one to you.

DCFS has to try to help you get your child back. They will give you a list of things you need to do for your child to come home. This list may include:

- Parenting classes
- Counseling
- Continuing education
- Anger management
- Drug or alcohol classes
- Minor changes to your home

You will have to show the judge and DCFS that you are making “reasonable efforts” and “reasonable progress” to finish everything on the list.

It is very difficult to show you are making reasonable efforts while incarcerated, but it is not impossible. It is important to try to do the things on your DCFS list as well as you can. Try to keep records of this for your lawyer.

Once you leave prison, you can work to finish your list. DCFS does have to fairly let you complete their list. But the judge is the one who decides whether you get your child back.

If your child is out of your care for 15 months, the judge can terminate your parental rights. This means you would not legally be your child’s parent anymore. The 15 months starts when your case begins. That’s why it’s important to always keep track of your case and the timeline.

If you no longer have parental rights, it is possible to get them back. But it may be hard. You can file something called a motion to reinstate your rights. You can hire a lawyer to do this or do it yourself. In order to ask for your rights back, a few things have to happen:

1. At least three years must have passed between the termination of your rights and your asking to get them back.
2. Your oldest child must be 13 or older.
3. You must show a “substantial change in circumstances” since you lost your rights. Leaving prison and having a steady job and place to live can show a judge that your child should return home with you. (705 ILCS 405/2-27)

Child Support

If you don’t live with your child, you may need to pay child support. Child support is money that you pay to the parent who is taking care of your child. Child support lasts until children turn 18, or 19 if they are still in high school. You will pay a certain amount of your income in child support. The amount you pay depends on how many children you have. A judge may order you to pay for other things too, like healthcare, child care, or school costs.

Reducing payments

It is very important to pay your child support. If you don’t pay, you might have money taken out of your paycheck. You may be able to get your payments lowered, if you:

- Are suddenly making less money.
- Are incarcerated.
- Have large healthcare costs.

If one of these things happens to you, you need to let the court know as soon as you can. You’ll need to file a petition with the court. You can hire a lawyer to do this or do it yourself. Once you file the petition you’ll probably need to go to court to talk about your case.
If a court has ordered a suspension of your driver’s license for failure to pay child support, it is important to petition to reduce that payment. Many judges allow you to make payments according to your income. They will remove the suspension as long as you are doing so.

Getting Payments You are Owed

Are you getting child support? If your child care expenses have gone up, you can ask for more child support from your child’s other parent. Child care expense changes include things like:

- Medical bills for the child.
- New education expenses.
- A big change in your household’s cost of living.
- If the other parent is making a lot more money recently you can also ask for more.

If you are not getting the child support payments you believe you are owed, contact the Illinois’ Department of Healthcare and Family Services by calling (800) 447-4278, or by visiting their website: www2.illinois.gov/hfs/ChildSupport/Pages/default.aspx

Fees and Fines

There are many different fees and fines you may have to pay. You might have court fees or fines, like:

- Traffic tickets.
- DUI fees.
- Payments to the victims of the crime you were convicted of.
- Other fines related to the crime.
- Fines and debt for failing to pay child support.
- Parole or probation fines, such as fees for anger management or parenting classes, and fees for any required registration.

Even small fees can make it hard to get back on your feet. Still, it's important to plan for how you will pay these fees or fines. Not paying your fees or fines can get you in more trouble.

- Officials can hold those fees against you if you return to jail.
- Sometimes people are returned to jail for not paying fees, especially if they “willfully” do not pay them.

But there is good news. There are programs that can help you with your fees. Here are a few we are aware of.

Waivers for Court Fees

In Illinois, there is a state waiver program for court costs for people who earn up to 400% of the federal poverty level. You can apply for this waiver to get rid of your fees. Unfortunately, you can’t use these for traffic offensive fees.

Removal of Past Child Support Debt

In Illinois, the Clean Slate program can help with child support. The program removes your child support debt if you agree to pay regular child support payments moving forward. To apply, you must complete an application. You must also show proof that you could not make your child support payments because you were incarcerated, unemployed, or very sick. You also have to provide proof of your current income or ability to pay. You will need to make regular child support payments for six months. Once you do this, your child support debt will go away. Learn more here: https://www2.illinois.gov/hfs/ChildSupport/FormsBrochures/Pages/hfs8253.aspx

Sealing Records

Sealing your record means Illinois employers can’t ask about your record. This could make it easier to find a job. You can try to get your record sealed once you have been off of parole for two to three years, depending on the charge.

Sometimes it is also possible to get a record expunged. An expunged record is erased. This means nobody can see it anymore. This usually only happens if your charges were dismissed.

“It’s hard to make a decision between paying fines and staying out of jail, or paying bills and having somewhere to live.”

— Anonymous
All crimes can be sealed except these:

- DUIs
- Reckless driving
- Crimes involving mistreatment of animals
- Sex offenses (misdemeanor, public indecency and prostitution can be sealed)
- Domestic battery
- Violations of orders of protection

To begin the process of sealing your criminal record, submit a petition to seal. You can get a petition at your county circuit clerk’s office. This form can also be found online at https://www2.illinois.gov/osad/Expungement/Pages/Expungement-and-Sealing-General-Information.aspx

Once you have filled out the form, submit it to the circuit clerk’s office of the county where you live. There is a fee for filing these petitions.

It is up to the judge whether your record is sealed. It won’t happen right away. In Cook County and Champaign County, they hold events called “expungement fairs” at least once every year. These fairs can help you learn more about expungement and sealing from volunteer lawyers. Check the website of your county’s circuit clerk’s office to see if they hold fairs like these. Sometimes they ask you to sign up for the fair ahead of time.

Certificates of Rehabilitation

These are official documents that can restore rights you lost because of your conviction, for example, the right to earn an occupational license or serve on a jury. Certificates of rehabilitation allow you to apply for jobs that require licenses issued by the state. These jobs include ones in child care, education, and transit.

Everyone is eligible for a certificate of rehabilitation except those with:

- Class X felony or murder convictions.
- Aggravated DUI or aggravated domestic battery convictions.
- Sex offenses that require post-release registration.
- Arson offenses that require post-release registration.
- Felony convictions for a crime that caused someone a permanent disability.

Illinois has two kinds of certificates of rehabilitation. The number and type of convictions you’ve had will determine which you should apply for.

1. A certificate of relief from disabilities (CRD). You can get one of these after some time has passed after your release. There is a waiting period of one year for misdemeanors and three years for felony convictions. This period begins after parole. A CRD will mean you can work in over a dozen jobs that people with convictions usually can’t do.
2. A certificate of good conduct (CGC) does the same thing as a certificate of relief from disabilities, and also allows you to run for public office.
To receive a CRD or a CGC, you must file a petition with the circuit clerk of the county where you were convicted. The petition is free. You can hire a lawyer, or you can do it on your own. Doing it on your own will take more time and energy.

Petitions of rehabilitation are granted if you meet three things:

1. Eligibility
   Your conviction is not one of the exceptions listed above.

2. Rehabilitation
   Judges will look at a lot of information to decide if you are “rehabilitated.” They look at how many times and how often you have been convicted, your job history, your schooling, if you went to substance abuse counseling (if your conviction is drug related), whether you do community service, and if you have done other positive things after getting out.

3. No risk to public safety
   You can convince a judge that you are not a risk to public safety.

As part of your petition, you will need to give the court these items:

Letters of recommendation
Show that you are “rehabilitated and not a risk to public safety.” These letters should come from people such as family members, counselors, clergy, or employers who can show how you meet the rehabilitation guidelines listed above.

A full criminal history
For details on what needs to be included, revisit the “Sealing Records” section. For more information on certificates of rehabilitation and other forms of relief see the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Cook County’s website. It may be useful even if you live outside of Cook County. Find information here: cookcountyclerkofcourt.org

If you need help getting a certificate of rehabilitation, contact a legal aid organization. Safer Foundation in Chicago may be able to represent you or at least point you in the right direction.

Executive Clemency

Another way to attempt to remove barriers in your way after incarceration may be to petition the governor for executive clemency. There are different types you can request including a pardon, expungement or pardon and expungement. Much of the requirements are the same as outlined above in the “Sealing Records” section including the details of your conviction.

You will need to explain why you are seeking a pardon, including opportunities that were denied to you because of your criminal record. You can also submit character reference letters from friends and family and former teachers and employers. After you submit the petition you are entitled to a hearing in front of the Prisoner Review Board. These take place four times a year, in Chicago and Springfield.

Many people chose to hire a lawyer to represent them as they file for executive clemency.
Finances, Credit, and Taxes

Thinking about money can be stressful. Take small steps toward managing your money, especially if you’re doing it on your own for the first time. Making smart decisions about your money can help have control over your life. Having control over your finances will help you avoid money troubles in the long run and feel more secure about the future.

In this section, we cover banking basics and how to open a banking account. Then we address budgeting, financial planning, and credit. At the end of this section, we go over filing taxes.

Banking

It’s a good idea to open a bank account so that you have a safe place to put your money. A bank account also helps you avoid the fees that come with check cashing and money transfer services.

A checking account keeps your money safe. It also gives you easy access to your money so you can buy things and pay bills. When you open a checking account, you get checks and a debit card. You can use these to buy things, pay bills, or get cash from your account using ATMs. Some checking accounts have monthly fees while others do not, so make sure you ask about fees.

There are many good reasons to have a bank account:

- Putting your paychecks in a bank account is cheaper than paying fees for check cashing services.
- Some employers put your earnings directly in your account.
- Many banks offer free access to online banking services, which you can use to keep track of your money, pay bills automatically, and transfer money between accounts.

Felony convictions for a crime that caused someone a permanent disability.

You don’t have to be a U.S. citizen or have a Social Security number to open a bank account. You can open an account using the Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN) assigned to you by the IRS, regardless of immigration status. Visit IRS.gov for more information about ITINs.

Choosing a Bank

Banks and credit unions offer different products to choose from, like checking and savings accounts, loans, rewards programs, and credit cards. Before choosing a bank, think about what you need. When you first go to the bank, ask to speak to someone who can help you understand their services and how they can meet your needs.

Here are a few things to consider:

- Will you travel a lot for work, fun, or visiting family? You may want to choose a bank that has many branches and ATM locations. Online banks are also an option.
- What fees does the bank have? Some fees might be an overdraft fee (when you take out more money than you have), fees for closing accounts, fees for foreign transactions, and monthly maintenance fees.
- Has a bank ever shut down your checking account? If so, banks might reject your account application. Don’t worry though, because some banks offer second chance checking accounts. Call and ask smaller local banks and credit unions about their account policies. Smaller companies tend to be more open to people who have had financial trouble.
• Does your employer, school, or community have a credit union? Credit unions are better in some ways than banks. See the chart on the following page comparing banks and credit unions.

• Is your bank or credit union backed by the government? If it is, that means that if the bank closes or has other problems, your money is protected. Make sure your bank is a member of the FDIC or NCUA.

• Are you a veteran? If so, you qualify for a USAA account. USAA members and their families can often get good rates on loans. Visit usaa.com for more information.

• Do you have bad credit? Many banks use a database called ChexSystems to check your bank customer history, but they don’t always pull your credit report when you apply. Ask them what their policies are.

Using Bank Cards for Purchases

If you’ve been in prison for a long time, buying things at the store may look very different. Perhaps you carried around cash in the past or wrote paper checks. Most people these days use debit cards or credit cards rather than paying with cash.

Here are some card options:

• Debit cards look just like credit cards, but are different. Most debit cards are linked to a checking account, and you can only spend money that you have in your account. Debit cards can be used anywhere that you use a credit card. You can also use your debit card to get money from an ATM.

• With prepaid debit cards, you can load money onto the card when you get it, then use it to make purchases. Prepaid debit cards are often used by people who can’t get a bank account. You might use one if you haven’t been able to get your ID yet. Bluebird by American Express and Chime are prepaid debit cards with no monthly fee.

• The Link Card is Illinois’ electronic benefits transfer (EBT) card for food stamps and/or cash benefits. You can use it just like a debit card at stores that accept EBT. Most grocery stores, dollar stores, pharmacies, and gas stations accept Link Cards. To find out more about applying for a Link Card, see our Resources to Meet your Basic Needs chapter.

• With a credit card, you are borrowing money and will need to pay it back. We talk more about credit cards in the next section.
• There are also gift cards where people can put money on the card and then give it to someone to use like a debit card. Some cards—like a Visa Gift Card—can be used at any store, while other gift cards only work for specific stores.

For debit cards and Link Cards you will need to make a 4-digit PIN number, which is like a password. Before you use your card, make sure you have your PIN number set up. Usually, there is a number on the back of the card that you can call to set up the PIN number. Illinois’s EBT customer service number is (800) 678-5465. When using a debit card or Link Card, make sure you know how much money you have. If you don’t have enough money your card may not work.

It can be embarrassing if you don’t know how to use a card. Here’s a brief guide (summarized from Wikihow) about what to expect when you check out at a store.

1. After the cashier scans your things, they will ask you to pay.
2. There will likely be a card reader on the counter. Card readers look a little bit like calculators. They usually have a screen with instructions to follow.
3. The screen on the card reader may ask if you agree to pay the amount on the screen. You may have to press “enter” or “yes” to continue.
4. Next, the screen may ask you to swipe your card. Other times, the cashier will let you know when the machine is ready for you to swipe your card.
5. For some card readers you’ll swipe your card on the right side (black stripe facing down and to your right). For others you’ll stick the card in the bottom of the machine (stripe facing down) and leave it there until the screen lets you know that you can take it out. Don’t worry if you don’t get it right the first time. Turn the card around and try again. Lots of people make mistakes and have to swipe their cards a few times or get help from a cashier.
6. The card reader may ask whether you want to pay by “debit” or “credit.” Hit the “debit” button if you are using a Link Card. If you are hit debit, it may ask you to enter your 4-digit PIN number. Once the screen says “Approved” you should get a receipt. You can take your items and your receipt and leave.
7. Some debit cards allow you to get cash with your purchase. The card reader screen will ask if you want cash, and you will enter the dollar amount you would like. The cashier will then give you the cash. The amount will come out of your bank account.
8. If you are using a credit card, you may be asked to sign a paper receipt or sign the screen with a special pen that is attached to the card reader. It will ask you to press “enter” or “accept” when you are finished. Once you have finished signing and get your receipt, you should be ready to go.

Remember: It’s OK to ask for help! Lots of people have problems using their cards. The cashiers are there to help you.

“The first time I went to the store by myself, I got up to the front of the line and didn’t know how to pay for my groceries. I saw this contraption for a card that looked real complicated and didn’t know how to use it. A long line of people were behind me and getting restless when I was just standing there looking dumbfounded. I didn’t want to tell anyone I had been locked up and didn’t know how to use a link or debit card. I was embarrassed and panicked!”

Financial Resources

One of the easiest things you can do to manage your money is to make a budget. Budgeting can help you know where your money is going so you do not spend more than you make. There are thousands of different budget forms you can download online for free. Or you can make your own. To make your own, add up how much money you make every month. Then, make a list of everything you spend money on in a month and compare the two numbers.

You can find information online about banks, credit unions, account options, and strategies for saving your money. Some financial planning websites have a “chat” where you can ask an advisor a question and get an answer right away. Here are some resources for help with money:

- Learnvest.com and Mint.com: financial planning.
- Thesimpledollar.com: understanding money and budgeting.
- Nerdwallet.com: budgeting, banking, credit, financial planning, investments, mortgages, car and health insurance.
- Annuity.org: budgeting, personal finance, credit and more. Two resources that may be especially helpful are: annuity.org/financial-literacy and annuity.org/annuities/types/income.

Avoiding Scams

You don’t want to become a victim of a scam. Visit this website for a list of common scams and their warning signs: fbi.gov/scams-and-safety/common-scams-and-crimes.

New types of scams are going on now during the COVID-19 pandemic. Visit these website for information on some of the scams to look out for:

- fbi.gov/coronavirus

⚠️ Disclaimer: Please remember that we are not telling you you must use any of these websites or services. The resources listed here are suggestions. It is important to think on your own about any advice you are given.

Here are a few scams to avoid:

- Be suspicious of emails or calls that offer you lots of money or “free gifts” if you pay a small fee. If the reward sounds too good to be true, avoid it.
- Beware of companies that try to push you into signing up for something immediately. Only sign up for services you understand. You can always ask them for more information if you are confused.
- Only give personal information (such as account numbers and Social Security numbers) to companies you know to be trustworthy.
- Never pay for a letter of credit.
Credit

You may be considering getting a credit card so that you can buy things with credit. Buying on credit means that you buy things now and pay for them later. A bank loans you the money, and you agree to repay the bank later. Usually, this means that you buy something with your credit card, and then you make monthly payments to the bank until the loan is repaid.

Keep in mind that when you buy with credit, you have to pay interest. Interest is an extra fee to the bank for borrowing the money. Interest rates can be very high. Think hard before you get any credit card, and make sure you do not sign up for too many. The more cards you have, the more payments you will have to make. Also, too many credit cards will have a negative effect on your credit. Credit card companies make money when people get deeper and deeper into debt. You do not want to be that customer!

A credit counselor at a nonprofit organization can give you good advice about getting a credit card. One example is credit.org, which offers free telephone counseling sessions.

Sometimes, credit cards can lead to a lot of trouble. If you buy too much with credit cards, it can be hard to pay your monthly payments. A service like credit.org can help you figure things out if you get overwhelmed. A good practice is to only buy things with your credit card that you can pay back within a month.

For some big purchases, such as buying a car, a house, or paying for college tuition, buying on credit makes a lot of sense. You may be unable to pay for a car all at once, but the cost becomes easier if you can spread it out over many months. Make sure to choose a car that is affordable so that you can manage the monthly payments. Try to get an interest rate that is as low as possible. Again, be cautious and talk to a credit counselor before going into debt.

If you decide to get a credit card or buy something using credit, your bank will look at your credit score first. A credit score is a number that tells them whether they think you will repay a loan. If you have a good credit score, it will be easier to get loans and lower interest rates. If you were in debt before you went to prison, you will need to take steps to improve your credit score. Credit scores range from 300 (bad credit) to 850 (excellent credit).

Here are some guidelines for managing credit:

Get educated.
Being uninformed can lead to costly mistakes. For a good primer on your credit score, check out this website: https://www.consumerfinance.gov/consumer-tools/credit-reports-and-scores/

Be smart.
Avoid businesses (such as car dealerships and payday loan offices) that advertise directly to people with bad credit. They often have extremely high interest rates. They are counting on you not being able to pay your debts. Do not support any company whose business model depends on your lack of money.

Be cautious.
Read the fine print carefully and understand the rules before you sign anything. Remember, what counts is what is in the contract, not what the salesperson promised.

Pay your debts.
If you’ve gotten behind on any of your debts—or have had debts fall into collections—pay them, or make a plan for starting to pay them. For information about managing debt, see this website: consumer.ftc.gov/articles/coping-debt.

Pay your bills on time.
Paying on time is a good habit and can improve your credit score. The easiest way to do that is by setting up an automatic payment with your bank on your bills’ due dates. Marking the dates on a calendar is fine, too.

Use credit cards wisely.
If you choose to have a credit card, don’t charge what you can’t pay back at the end of the month. If you must borrow money with a credit card to pay your credit card bills, it’s time to talk with a credit counselor.

“If possible I would suggest you have a loved one that you trust and who believes in you to add you to some line of credit much like parents do for their children. Trust me, you will need it.”
—Shaun
“Open a bank account. Work on building up your credit. If you get a credit card, use less than 30% of the credit limit, buy things with your credit card, and then use the 30 day grace period to pay the bill in its entirety. That’s the slow way to build credit.”

Tax Basics

Once you start earning money, you will have to pay federal and state taxes. The amount you pay depends on how much you make and who lives with you. Things like childcare, disability, and healthcare costs will also change how much you pay. Taxes are taken out of your paycheck.

Every year, you must file your taxes. When you file taxes, you let the government know how much you have earned and how much you have paid in taxes. You can also tell them things like if you have children, disability, or healthcare costs. The government decides whether you have paid too much or too little in taxes. In many cases, you will find that you have paid too much, and you get a tax refund. If you have paid too little, you have to pay the amount you owe. If you do not file your taxes, you have to pay a fee and you will owe back taxes for the money you didn’t pay.

W-4 Form

Claiming Incoming and Exemptions. When you start a new job, you are asked to fill out an IRS Form W-4. This form helps your employer know how much of your paycheck should be withheld in taxes. It is important to fill out this form so that you can arrange to pay taxes month by month. If you don’t fill it out you’ll have to pay them all at once at the end of the year. To learn how to fill out a W-4 form, visit the following website: wikihow.com/Fill-Out-a-W-4.

Filing taxes

Every year, you will need to file your federal and state taxes by April 15. Many people choose to file their taxes in January so that they can get a tax refund sooner. To file taxes, you will need a W-2 form from your employer(s). Employers will usually give you W-2 forms in January.

Next, you will need to decide which type of tax return to complete. Some of the more common forms are:

- Form 1040 (U.S. Individual Income Tax Return)
- Form 1040A (U.S. Individual Income Tax Return)
- Form 1040EZ (Income Tax Return for Single and Joint Filers With No Dependents)
- Form 1040NR (U.S. Nonresident Alien Income Tax Return)
- Form 1040NR-EZ (U.S. Income Tax Return for Certain Nonresident Aliens With No Dependents).

Because filing taxes can be confusing, many people get help from a tax professional called a certified public accountant, or CPA.

Simply bring your W-2s and any other IRS forms to their office. For a fee, they will file your taxes for you. This means you won’t have to worry about mistakes or spending a lot of time on your taxes. This is a good idea for people who have multiple jobs or other complicated tax situations. If you are looking for a CPA, ask someone you trust to recommend one.

There are also online websites that can help you file your taxes. These websites cost less than a tax professional. If you have a simple tax situation you might want to use a website. The website will guide you through your return using a series of questions and automatic calculations. Remember to read all instructions and offers carefully. It should be free to file your federal tax return, but most online services charge to file your state tax return. Some of the most used online tax filing websites are:

- e-file.com
- turbotax.intuit.com
- hrblock.com
- taxact.com
- jacksonhewitt.com

Some places offer free tax help for people. See this website to check if there is a program near you: irs.gov/individuals/free-tax-return-preparation-for-qualifying-taxpayers.
Voting

In Illinois, you can vote if you are a US citizen, 18 or older. While you lose your right to vote if you are convicted of a felony and are in prison or jail, you can vote once you are released. You can vote even if you are on parole, probation, mandatory supervised release, or electronic monitoring. You cannot vote if you are released on furlough or living in an IDOC Adult Transition Center (ATC).

If you lost your right to vote because of a felony conviction, you must re-register to vote after release.

When you are released, IDOC should give you a “Civics in Prison” handout. It explains how to register to vote. If they did not give it to you or if you no longer have it, call the Chicago Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights at (312) 630-9744 to get one.

Your vote matters. Less than half of the people in the US vote. This means that only a small number of people choose the people who make the laws that apply to all of us. Your vote can make a difference, especially at the local and state levels.

US federal elections (for US President, US Senators, and US Congress Representatives) happen every 2 or 4 years, on the first Tuesday in November. State and local elections can take place in any year, at any time. During any federal, state or local elections, you may be voting for state leaders, county state attorneys, local officials, and sometimes judges. There may be other important offices and issues on the ballot.

In order to vote, follow these three steps:

STEP 1
Register to Vote.

This can sometimes be complicated. But please do not let that stop you! Volunteers at the non-partisan Election Protection hotline (866) OUR-VOTE can help you for free.

In Illinois, you need to show two forms of ID to register. Pick two:

- Illinois state ID or number
- Illinois driver’s license or number
- Social Security card, or the last four numbers of your Social Security number
- Medicare or Medicaid card
- Birth certificate
- Mail that is addressed to you, at the address you wish to register under
- Credit or debit card in your name
- Military ID card
- Illinois vehicle registration or insurance card
- Illinois college or school ID; Work ID;
- LINK or public aid card
- Lease or mortgage in your name
- U.S. passport or passcard
There are three ways you can register to vote.

- Online: https://ova.elections.il.gov/
- Mail: Go to https://elections.il.gov/Default.aspx then go to the tab that says “Information for Voters.” Print out the form, fill it out, and mail it.
- Same day: To register on election day, you must show two forms of ID. One of the IDs must show your current home address. People who are homeless or who recently moved can vote this way. Tell the poll workers that you wish to do “election-day registration.”

After registering online or by mail, you should receive a voter card. It will have your name and will tell you where to vote, and when. If you don’t receive this card or if you misplace it, contact the Illinois State Board of Elections online at elections.il.gov/Main/ContactUs.aspx, or via phone at (217) 782-4141, or (312) 814-6440. You can also call (866) OUR-VOTE.

STEP 2

Learn About the Candidates and Issues.

This guide cannot tell you how to vote. But you can learn about candidates and issues by listening to the news, talking with people you trust, and looking up candidates and issues online. You can also find voter guides and ratings for judges online.

STEP 3

Vote!

In Illinois, you are not required to show ID to vote. No one should ask you for an ID unless you are registering on election day. But it is a good idea to take your voter registration card and ID with you just in case. Normally, there are three ways that you can vote:

- In person, on election day or during the early voting period.
- By mail-in ballot. Contact your election authority or (866) OUR-VOTE if you need help requesting a mail-in ballot.
- By provisional ballot, if there are serious problems at the voting location. Because these ballots are not counted unless voters come in later to verify their identity, this kind of voting is not the best option. Call (866) OUR-VOTE if you run into this issue while voting.

You can take notes, voting guides, and this voter information into the voting booth. It’s a good idea to do this, because there can be a lot to remember.

Take your time. Do not let anyone rush you. If you need help, ask a poll worker. They cannot tell you who or what to vote for, but they can answer questions about the process. They can help you mark a ballot if you have difficulty reading or if your English is limited. You can also request a ballot in other languages.

Call (866) OUR-VOTE if you run into any problems while voting.
Veterans

This section covers VA benefits and services. For assistance with VA benefits and services, contact a VA representative by calling (800) 393-0865 or going to the website: www.state.il.us/agebncy/dva

Transferring Benefits to Your Family

In general, you will not be able to receive your VA pension while you are incarcerated. After you go to prison, you will still get your benefits for 60 days. After that time you may still get the checks, but you have to return the money to the VA.

If you have an injury or disability that is 80 to 100% related to your military service, you can receive 10% of your pension while incarcerated. You cannot receive any of your pension for injuries or disabilities that happened after your service. Veterans who are incarcerated can still get other benefits, including education and training, healthcare, insurance, vocational rehabilitation and employment, and burial services.

While you are incarcerated, you can transfer your pension to your family (spouse, children, or parents who rely on you for money). They must have financial need to get the benefits. This is called apportionment.

You (or an adult you are giving your benefits to) should apply for apportionment within one year of the day you were incarcerated. To apply, mail a letter to the Chicago VA Regional Office (VARO) at 2122 W Taylor St. Chicago, IL 60612. Your letter should say who you are and whom you want to transfer your benefits to. You must also complete and mail VA Form 21-0788. To get the form, ask a counselor or family member to download the form from this website: https://www.vba.va.gov/pubs/forms/VBA-21-0788-ARE.pdf. You can also tear out and use the form in the back of this book.

Once they get your application, the VA will review it. They may ask your spouse or children’s guardian to fill out the same form. They will let you know if the apportionment is approved, and your family will retroactively receive your benefits. That means that your benefits will be saved and given to them, starting 60 days after your incarceration.

Questions? Have someone call the Illinois Department of Veterans Affairs (IDVA) at (800) 827-1000.

Reinstating Benefits After Release

You can have your benefits start again 30 days before your scheduled release date. If you are in prison, ask your counselor or someone on the outside to help you contact the IDVA. They can call (800) 393-0865 or go to www.state.il.us/agebncy/dva for help.

The VA has a reentry program called Health Care for Reentry Veterans (HCRV) Program. They offer:

1. Post-release assessments.
2. Referrals to medical, psychiatric, and social services, including employment and housing services.
3. Short-term case management after reentry. All VA Medical Centers have reentry staff. Contact the closest VA Medical Center to begin receiving services.

Female Veterans. VA Medical Centers have program managers who help female veterans. They offer help with VA benefits and healthcare. Contact the closest VA Medical Center to find a program manager who specializes in female veterans.
Filing Disability Claims

Do you have a disability related to your military service? You can file a disability claim online or in-person. You can get disability benefits in prison and once you are released.

To file an online claim, visit the website https://www.ebenefits.va.gov/ebenefits/apply and create an eBenefits account. You will need your medical records and any other proof of disability for your claim. You can also apply by filling out a paper application at a VA facility, or mailing the claim to a VA facility. You can find VA facilities in Illinois by visiting: https://www.va.gov/find-locations/. Check out this website to learn how to file a claim: https://www.va.gov/disability/how-to-file-claim/

The VA does not accept all claims. In fact, they reject almost all claims the first time. Keep trying. The process can be complicated, so you may wish to get help from a Veterans Service Organization (such help is free). Some veterans hire a claims agent or an attorney. You can search any of these options at this website: www.ebenefits.va.gov/ebenefits/vso-search

Health

After you leave prison, you can get care at VA medical centers. You can enroll in their system by visiting a VA medical center, or by phone at: (877) 222- VETS. You can only receive care if you were honorably (or generally) discharged. You can receive treatment for injuries unconnected to your military service.

Not all VA healthcare is free. Your insurance will be billed for care, and you will have to pay part of your bill inpatient, outpatient, extended care (nursing home care), and medication costs. Some of these services may be free if your income is below a certain limit or if your illness is connected to your service. For more on eligibility, go to https://www.va.gov/health-care/eligibility/

The VA also offers mental health and substance abuse treatment at VA medical centers or at Vet Centers (depending on the treatment). Visit https://www.va.gov/health/vamc/ for a list of VA Medical Centers.

⭐ VA Medical Centers have program managers who help female veterans. They offer help with VA benefits and healthcare. Contact the closest VA Medical Center to find one.

Housing

The VA’s Health Care for Homeless Veterans (HCHV) program provides help for veterans who are homeless. This includes benefit help, case management services, and help getting housing. Contact the closest VA Medical Center to get services.

Employment

The VA has employment help and job training for honorably (or generally) discharged people. Local Veterans Employment Representatives (LVER) and Disabled Veterans Outreach Program Representatives (DVOP) help veterans find jobs. Call Illinois’ employment office at (217) 782-7100. The Homeless Veterans’ Reintegration Project (HVRP) helps veterans with:

- Searching for jobs.
- Vocational counseling.
- Occupational skills training.
- On-the-job training.
- Trade skills certification and licensing.
- Job placement assistance.
- Referral to supportive services.

Contact the Illinois Department of Veterans’ Affairs for more information: (800) 437-9824.

Vocational Rehabilitation and Employment services help veterans with disabilities related to military service. They offer help finding a job, job training, and advice. To connect with this program, call (800) 437-9824 or visit https://www2.illinois.gov/veterans/Pages/ServiceOffices.aspx

Veterans Industries and Compensated Work Therapy programs help homeless and near homeless veterans with physical, mental health, or addiction problems. These programs contract with businesses to provide paid work for these veterans. They also have therapeutic housing. For more information go to https://www.va.gov/health/cwt/

Beginning to Heal

Prison hurts in a lot of ways. People who are incarcerated sometimes push others away to protect themselves from that pain. Some people stay away from relationships, grieving, and emotional self-care to stop themselves from feeling helpless. Or they may want to protect themselves from being vulnerable with distance and indifference.

“My family thinks that because I’m free, all my problems are over, but really we carry all this baggage with us. The coping mechanisms we had on the inside are still with us, and they create barriers on the outside.”

—Pablo

Healing is a part of moving forward and reconnecting the pieces of your life. It is a process, and it requires you to be both vulnerable and strong. It might sound hard to be vulnerable. You need to let yourself feel the pain of incarceration. Opening up to yourself and being open to trusting others is a big step toward getting your life back.

Prison is often traumatic. Recovery will take time. The work towards recovery is a form of healing. Vulnerability is not weakness. It is not weak to ask for help. Getting help from a professional is a good option. Support groups and individual counseling can help you deal with trauma that may have happened while you were in prison. See the Mental Health section for information on finding support.

“Ditch that machismo and ask for help. It’s out there. It’s not a bad thing. Everybody needs it.”

—Pablo

This section addresses a number of aspects of wellness that can help you heal and move forward. It is based on suggestions given to us by EJP students.

What is wellness? Wellness is a complicated subject. It means something different for everyone. After you leave prison, wellness is about making meaning out of your experiences. It also means making these experiences a part of who you are and who you want to be in the world. It is about forgiveness, healing, caring for yourself, and reconnecting with others.

Emotional wellness means being respectful of yourself and others. It means you are aware of your good or bad feelings and accept them. You express your feelings to others in healthy and constructive ways. It also means you think about other people’s feelings and perspectives. People may think differently than you. Knowing how to disagree respectfully is key to healthy relationships. You may have other unresolved issues you’re dealing with, such as grief, anger, or depression. Be patient and realize the path to emotional wellness can be a long one.
“Reach out to somebody. One of our coping mechanisms that’s prevalent with individuals who are incarcerated is that we retract ourselves, isolate ourselves to try to deal with it, with the psychological hurdles we’re going through.”
— Pablo

Physical wellness is taking care of your body. It is important to stay active and healthy. You can consider finding a gym, jogging, walking, biking, practicing yoga, or looking up free at-home exercise videos online. It’s good to eat healthy and drink plenty of water. Practice safe sex by using condoms. For those with addiction issues, getting help through counseling or recovery programs can be a really positive step. You can read more about healthcare in our Health chapter.

Social wellness means you look for healthy relationships with many different kinds of people. As we discuss in the Preparing for Reunification chapter, reentry is a time when you will strengthen old relationships and build new ones. While it can be difficult to put yourself out there, it can also lead to meaningful, healthy relationships. See our Building Healthy Relationships chapter.

“Advice for socializing outside? Learning coping skills and anger management. Being less abrasive and open-minded.”
— Earl W., EJP Alumnus

Spiritual wellness is thinking about a larger meaning or purpose to life. This can, but does not have to, involve religion. You may decide to join a church, synagogue, or mosque. You may also decide to join a support group to find community and purpose. Set aside some time each day to be open, listen, and think about what’s going on inside. Practice mindfulness or meditation. See our Mindfulness chapter.

“Take a breath. You’re going to be in for a ride, and you better pack your patience.”
— Pablo

Occupational wellness is contributing meaningfully and respectfully in your job. Your job may not be your perfect job. But how you do it is entirely up to you. What strengths do you bring to the table? Bring those to your work. Invest in yourself by investing in what you do. Find ways to do a little extra and try new things if you are able. Take the time to realize the value of the work you do, and honor that. Also, beware of toxic work environments. Some jobs can be unhealthy, physically, emotionally, or otherwise.

Environmental wellness means being aware of Earth’s resources and trying to create a healthy environment. There are many ways to contribute. You can grow vegetables in a community garden or volunteer to help with community clean up. Spend time in nature, even if it’s at a local park, to help you feel healthy.
Building Healthy Relationships

Prison makes it hard to stay connected with family, friends, and loved ones. Reentry removes some of these barriers, but it can be a hard time for both you and your loved ones. Rebuilding healthy, positive relationships will require time, patience and openness. You’ve changed while in prison, and so have your loved ones. It’s going to take time to get to know each other again.

Since you’ve been gone a long time, you may struggle to feel like you belong. You and your loved ones may feel uncertain about each other. You may wonder if you can trust each other.

Your relationship with loved ones may go through different stages when you return home. Things might start out great (the “honeymoon” stage) but get harder as you spend more time together. This is a common experience and we’re here to help!

<td>You and your loved ones are excited to be back together. Everyone’s at their best, but anxiety is under the surface.</td>
<td>You and your loved ones might feel uncertain about your relationship and question motives. Are you going to stick around? Do you still want to be together?</td>
<td>You and your loved ones may test each other to see if it’s OK to share feelings and be yourself. Can you trust each other?</td>
<td>You may struggle with how to get involved in family routines. What roles will you play? How can you be part of family life again?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

You don’t have to face relationship challenges alone! Here are a few places you can go for help:

- Look for a family-oriented reentry program. Phalanx Family Services, for instance, offers programs to help people and their families reunite after prison. Learn more at https://www.phalanxgrpservices.org/ or call 773-291-1086.
- Take a class. Anger management, parenting, communication, or marriage and family classes can help you develop skills that will make your relationships stronger.
- Get counseling or therapy, either alone or with your partner or family. See our Trauma and Mental Health chapter.
- Join a returning resident support group. Organizations like Precious Blood Ministries and First Followers offer supportive circles where you can share your struggles with others who share a similar background. They can provide advice and support.
- If you are in an abusive relationship, call the domestic violence hotline: 1-877-863-6338

There is no “one-size-fits-all” solution to the challenges people face when reuniting with loved ones. Below, we share advice about common challenges that people face when reuniting with loved ones. We cover the following topics:

- Sharing (self-disclosure)
- Parenting after release
- Dealing with difficult emotions
- Anger management
- Institutionalization
- Domestic violence
Sharing (Self-Disclosure)

Many people survive prison by becoming closed off and guarded. They seldom share things with others. But being closed off can hurt your relationships. Family members can also become closed off. They might only share positive things during their visits or visit rarely because it’s too painful.

Tony explains why many people are closed off from their family members in prison:

“You keep [your family] at an arm’s length because you know you could lose them. A lot of us watched family members die. Family members get sick. Family members move away. You’re watching the world go past you, and to keep that family interested in your life and to keep yourself interested in their life is really hard because you can’t experience that life with them.”

Isolation helps people cope in prison, but it’s not always helpful on the outside.

There are risks to sharing. You may worry that your loved ones will reject you if they know how you feel. You may worry that you will hurt others if you share what you have experienced. You may feel embarrassed to admit that you need help. You may feel that your family members won’t be able to understand what you have gone through. All this can make you afraid to share.

Keep in mind that closeness doesn’t happen overnight. You can choose what to share and when. When building relationships, most people share slowly. They take small steps and wait to see how people respond. Here are some tips for learning to open up to loved ones again:

- Start with the easy stuff. Share what you like to do for fun. Ask them what they like to do. What movies do they love? What do they do to relax?
- Spend time together. Take long walks. As you do, share some of your feelings, fears, and goals. Invite them to open up, too. Start small and see how they respond.
- Avoid criticizing or trying to offer advice when your loved ones share things with you. Just listen. Be positive and supportive.
- Be willing to talk about your relationship. How has your relationship changed? How can you perform your share of the work?

Keke describes the small ways he shares his life with his children and invites them to share their lives with him:

“I take time out of my day, even five minutes, to call them and see what’s going on. I text them every day, every morning... I talk to them and get their point of view and see what’s going on, try to spend time. I tell them I love them, how you are doing, how your day is going, what you got planned. Little simple stuff. I let them talk.”

David notes that if you want your children to open up to you, it helps to not be critical. He shares this advice:

“In prison I became more educated, more aware. My relationships with my children became complicated because I had the tendency to correct them in their behavior. I was bombarding them with advice, and the more I did this, the more they were pushing me away. I had to learn to relax, to not be overbearing.”
Pablo also notes the importance of listening:

“Be ready to hear some truths. Listen attentively. There is a lot of lived life in your absence. Everybody was in a bad situation. As we were surviving, so were they. Don’t approach it with judgment. Try to be understanding with your family and with yourself.”

Keke notes the importance of being open and honest with your partner.

“The most challenging thing is [to] be honest with [your partner]. If she’s taking time out of her life to stand by you, give her your life. [Don’t] feed her a fairy tale. . . Don’t come out trying to feed nobody no dream and definitely don’t feed yourself a dream.”

Keke prefers telling people right away about his past. “I tell them in the door,” he says.

“I learned from my experience that if you lay your cards out in the open, you get a better understanding. Nowadays, people google so much. Both of you have to be honest with each other. So that’s what I do. I let them know right in the door. This is me. I’ve been to prison twice. I’m doing this, I’m doing that, trying to get myself together.”

Tony also prefers being open:

“It’s a little weird, a little awkward, to just come out and say, hey, I just spent ten years in prison. But I’ve never been one to be shy. I’ve always been real open about what I went through because it lets other people know that, look, just because I was in there doesn’t mean I have to keep going back and forth, back and forth.”

Heather, on the other hand, is more reserved:

“I don’t really mention [that I was in prison] to people. But, I guess it helps to have moved away to a different state, so really not that many people know me. They just know what they see of me now. They don’t know... I made mistakes in the past. And I’m kind of comfortable with it. So, if I was to meet a guy or something and start dating, I wouldn’t just throw all my dirty laundry out front. I’d get to know him. But if things were working out really good, I’d tell him all about it, and if he didn’t accept it, then he probably wouldn’t be the guy for me anyway.”

Tony concludes,

“When you meet somebody, if it scares them that you’ve been to prison, then you know what? That’s not the person that you need to be with.”

Sharing Your Past With Others

If you are in the habit of closing yourself off, it can be hard to make new friends. We offer a few methods for doing so below, and you can choose what you think would work best for you. Tony explains:

“You spend so much time keeping people at arm’s distance. You never let anybody get close. [When you go into prison] you’re so young, you’re so vibrant, it’s so easy to have friends, to have relationships, to have people that are close to you. But when you come home, you’ve gotten so used to keeping people at a distance that you just continue to do it. It’s hard to make new friends.”

When meeting new people, it can be hard to know how much to share about your past. Not everyone will be accepting of who you are. Roberto talks about the challenge of getting to know people and deciding how much to share.

“How do I get to know people? How do you create a personal brand so that all the good things you offer are not eclipsed by the fact that you spent a significant amount of time in prison? How do you open a conversation with someone when you’re trying to remain private, and also take into account all of the negative stigma that’s attached to being incarcerated? You’re just meeting people and you don’t want to share too much about yourself. There’s so much negative stigma. You have to break through that wall. On the other hand, if you do, it’s still no guarantee that they are going to relate to you and understand what you’re going through.”
Asking for Help and Setting Boundaries

If you’re used to being closed off, it may be especially hard to ask for help from loved ones. Pablo notes:

“My family thinks that because I’m free, all my problems are over, but I need assistance with the most basic things. That does make me somewhat defensive, and I’ll end up trying to do things on my own and then I crash and burn.”

His advice? “Ditch that machismo and ask for help. It’s not a bad thing.”

It can be embarrassing to have to ask for help. As Joe Joe explains:

“What we’re competing with is not feeling like a helpless infant all the time. We’re so used to being rejected that we don’t reach out much for help.”

Lee, whose partner was incarcerated, argues that “healthy adult relationships aren’t about putting your needs in the back seat.” She explains:

“You want to be considerate and not wear out your welcome. The effect of that is that maybe you’re not expressing the things that you need. It’s OK to say, ‘Hey, I need you to do this thing for me.’ Learn to communicate what you need.”

Joe Joe offers this final piece of advice regarding asking for help:

“If you strive to lighten someone’s load rather than adding to it, they are going to be more receptive to helping you. This is what really wins people over and will help get you where you need to go.”

Some people going through reentry struggle to set boundaries with their loved ones. Your loved ones are happy to have you back. They may pressure you to get involved or do things you aren’t ready for yet. They may ask you to do too many things at once.

It’s OK to step back and take things slow. It’s OK to say no to things and let them know that you aren’t ready yet.

“You have to take things slow. All these new experiences, it can be extremely overwhelming. All those people tugging at you – those are extra stressors. Listen, take care of yourself.”

—Ricky

“I love a good challenge. I was pulled into a monkey bar contest, into diving off the high board. But these old bones are not the same as they were. You don’t want to injure yourself.”

—Kilroy

“We’re coming out feeling beholden to people for what they’ve done for us while we’re inside, or for our loved ones. That clouds our judgment, our best interest. Realize you can’t help anybody if you’re not helping yourself. Being selfish is not a bad thing. If love is directed inwards, it can radiate outwards. You can’t help anybody if you’re not helping yourself.”

—Pablo

When you are deciding how to share your past with people, consider these guidelines:

1. Is the other person important to you? If so, sharing may help you be closer.
2. Is there a risk to sharing this information? Could they tell others or make it more difficult for you to get a job? Could they use it against you in other ways?
3. Is it appropriate to share? Sometimes it’s wise to not share too much with strangers. What do they need to know about your past?
4. Will the other person be willing to share, too? Good relationships are built on reciprocity (a willingness to share on both sides).
5. Is sharing going to help or hurt? Think about the effect your sharing will have on the other person.
Parenting After Release

If you are a parent, you may be nervous about reuniting with your kids. You may feel guilt for what your kids have gone through while you were locked up. Some parents need or want time to get their feet on the ground before getting their kids back. These feelings are normal.

You may feel pressure to make up for lost time with your kids or to be a super parent. No matter what, resist the urge to parent out of guilt.

Lots of people have unrealistic expectations of parents, especially mothers. They are expected to spend lots of time and money on their kids. They should be there emotionally for their kids at all times. They should place the needs of their children above their own needs at all times. They should have a clean house and money to put their kids in good programs. Parents who cannot or do not meet this ideal are often seen as bad.

These “super parent” ideals are impossible to live up to. And that’s OK. Resist the urge to parent out of guilt.

Don’t be too hard on yourself. You are going to make mistakes. We all do. Take mistakes as an opportunity to learn. Be willing to learn from your children, too. Building a healthy relationship with your children will take hard work, love, and compassion. It will take time and patience, but it is definitely worth it.

Some relationships may never entirely heal. Accept that your children and loved ones may not want the same kind of relationship you once had.

Here are a few things you can do to make the process easier to reunite with your family:

- Educate yourself. Read books and attend classes about parenting. Raising a child is always hard, so get all the tools you can.
- Get counseling or therapy. It can help you heal and provide tools for you to be a better parent. See our mental health chapter.
- Do things you enjoy. Meditate. Take some time to do things for yourself, if you can. See our meditation chapter.
- Talk to other parents, especially those who have spent time in prison. Join a mothers group or a parents group. Share your experiences, fears and dreams.

“Don’t be too gung-ho. Trust has to be reestablished. If they’re angry, don’t try to invalidate their anger. Talk about it. Don’t pretend that the separation never happened, because it did. Try to seek counseling.”

—Josephine

“When you’re locked up, you have all this time to sit and think. You have ideas of how you want things to go, and then you get out and, of course, those are just ideas. . . . Take care of yourself and everything else will fall into place. . . . You can’t stress out over everything that you have no control over. Don’t give up hope. There’s always hope. And love overcomes a lot of stuff.”

—Heather

“Always remember that reconciliation and restoration are two different things. You may reconcile, but the relationship may never be restored. Just grieve properly. Be OK with that. Don’t walk around forever with the grief on your back. If you’ve done all you can, it will be OK.”

—Josephine

“There will be people in your life who will remain after such a long journey, and there will be some that fall to the wayside. Don’t look back. Keep looking forward, looking inward. Seek inward happiness.”

—Pablo
Dealing with Difficult Emotions

In prison, you may have bottled up difficult emotions instead of working through them. Maybe you pushed aside feelings of fear, guilt, or anger and instead told family members that everything is going to be OK. Your family members may have done the same.

Here are a few of the emotions you might feel as you reunite with your loved ones.

- Fear is your body’s reaction to danger or uncertainty. You may fear that nobody will love you because of the things you’ve done. You may be afraid that your children won’t accept you. This fear can cause you to withdraw from them even more.

- Sadness is feeling unhappy or discouraged. You might feel discouraged that your children don’t know you or that your sister doesn’t want to talk to you.

- Grief is a profound feeling of loss. You might feel a sense of loss for the years you spent in prison, away from your family.

- Guilt is feeling bad about yourself, often for something you’ve done or haven’t done that makes others suffer. You might feel guilt for not being around for your partner or kids.

- Anger is something you feel when someone or something has done you wrong. You might feel angry about what prison has done to you, or angry about something a loved one has said.

People experience emotions through their mind and body. For instance, fear can tighten your chest. You might feel sick to your stomach or start sweating. Some emotions can help you change and grow. Others can keep you from growing and harm your relationships.

Expect some of your repressed emotions to surface. Sounds, tastes, and smells can trigger memories from the past. You’ve lost partners, friends, and parents. Expect to feel rage, sorrow, frustration, and grief.

“It if you have any emotions at all, you’re going to have guilt about making your family suffer... They suffer with you while you’re in there. To them, you’re kind of dead because you’re not around any longer. There is guilt. And we don’t like to show it because, hey, we’re tough guys.”

—Tony

“I was looking at videos with a friend and a song came on. I found myself crying for no apparent reason. I lost my father when I was locked up. That was one of his favorite songs. I had never had the opportunity to mourn. All of the pain came forward.”

—Pablo

It’s normal to feel these emotions. It’s what you do with these emotions that matters. Pushing aside difficult emotions instead of facing them can harm your relationships. Learning to recognize, express, and manage emotions can help you have healthier relationships.
Here are some tips for managing emotions in healthier ways:

- Identify your feelings. Let them wash over you. They won’t last forever. Give yourself time to feel them. Don’t bury them. Doing so can cause these feelings to build up even more.
- Express your feelings in helpful ways. Separate people from actions. “I’m angry about something you have done,” not “I am angry with you.”
- Recognize the difference between feeling and acting. Just because you feel a certain way doesn’t mean you have to act on it.
- Accept responsibility for your feelings. Try not to blame others for the way you feel. Instead of saying, “You’re making me angry,” say “I’m feeling angry.”
- Change your perception. Think about what caused you to feel that way. Are there different ways to think about what happened that are more helpful?

Therapists or counselors can help you work through and manage your emotions. It may help to go to family or couples therapy. Some organizations, such as Phalanx Family Services, offer support for families working through the challenges of reentry.

In prison, you may have walked away from difficult emotions and conflicts. Perhaps you had space to think through difficult issues before facing them. On the outside, you may be expected to directly address issues with your loved ones rather than walking away. You may feel pressure to respond right away when you’d rather take your time.

Pablo explains what happens when you retreat instead of talking about how you are feeling with loved ones:

“When you retreat, it telegraphs to the other person that you don’t care. When you remain silent, people may think you’re brushing them off.”

It’s OK to take some time to think before talking through a problem. As Lee explains, “It’s OK to say, ‘I need time to think about this, I can’t give you an answer right away.’”

But too often when people retreat, they never come back to it. If you need some space, commit to talking about it later.

Anger Management

As with other emotions, it’s normal to feel and express anger. It gets to be a problem if it is out of control, aggressive or constant. It’s a problem if it hurts the people around you.

Anger is a secondary emotion. For example, “He embarrassed me, then I got angry.” Getting to the root of why you were embarrassed can help the anger subside.

You may have to take an anger management class as a condition of your parole. These classes can help you learn some basic skills for managing your anger. A therapist or counselor can also help. Anger management classes or therapy may cover topics such as:

- Causes behind your anger and triggers
- Expressing anger in better ways
- Time out and reflection
- Understanding how your anger affects you and others

Need to find an anger management class?

If it’s required for parole, you will need to make sure that it offers a certificate. Often there is a small fee for this certificate. Ask questions to make sure. You can take online or in person classes.

To find a low or no-cost class, try the following resources:

- Go to a DHS Family Community Resource Center and ask if they can recommend anger management classes you can take. https://www.dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?module=12
- Ask your parole officer or your healthcare provider for some suggestions.
- Local universities and colleges sometimes offer anger management classes for the public.
- Local community centers and nonprofits often offer anger management classes as well.

Here are some anger management tips, modified from experts at the Mayo Clinic:

1. Think before you speak

   In the heat of the moment, it’s easy to say something you’ll later regret. Take a few moments to collect your thoughts. Allow others to do the same.
2. Once you’re calm, express your anger. As soon as you’re thinking clearly, express your anger, concerns and needs clearly and directly. Do so without hurting others or trying to control them.

3. Get some exercise. Exercise can help reduce stress that can cause you to become angry. If you feel your anger building, go for a run.

4. Take a timeout. Give yourself a short break when things get stressful. A few moments of quiet time might help you handle things better.

5. Identify possible solutions. Instead of focusing on what made you mad, work on resolving the issue. Does your child’s messy room drive you crazy? Close the door. Is your partner late for dinner every night? Schedule meals later in the evening or agree to eat on your own sometimes.

6. Stick with ‘I’ statements. To avoid placing blame, use “I” statements. Be respectful and specific. For example, say, “I’m upset that you left the table without asking to help with the dishes” instead of “You never do any housework.”

7. Use humor to release tension. Humor can help you face what’s making you angry without getting out of control.

8. Relax. When your temper flares, put relaxation skills to work. Take deep breaths. Imagine a calm place or repeat a calming phrase, such as “Take it easy.” Listen to music or go for a walk. Practice mindfulness (see our Mindfulness chapter).

9. Know when to seek help. Learning to control anger is hard for everyone at times. Seek help if your anger seems out of control, causes you to do things you regret or hurts those around you.

Reflect

1. Think about a time when you felt angry and it got out of control. What happened? Why did it get out of control?

2. Now think about how you could have managed your anger better. What are some things you can try next time you get angry?

Institutionalization

Many people who have left prison continue to suffer the mental effects of being locked up long after they leave. Institutionalization is how your thoughts, speech, and actions are influenced by being locked up. You and your loved ones may not be aware of all of the many ways prison has impacted you. This can cause all sorts of conflicts and misunderstandings.

Some people who leave prison suffer from Post-Incarceration Syndrome (PIS), a syndrome similar to Post-Traumatic Stress Syndrome (PTSD). Time in prison can make mental health problems worse. It can make people more isolated and be more violent. It can lead some people to feel that they have no purpose. It can make people fearful and hypervigilant.

Here are just a few of the many ways that time in prison may have impacted you and your relationships.

- “I closed myself off as a way of coping.”
- “I have these defense mechanisms. I’ve learned to telegraph assertiveness and square up when faced with conflict.” – Pablo
- “I had hangups about talking to regular, free people. I didn’t feel comfortable.” – Ricky
- “When I get upset, my posture says I’m ready for a fight.” – Pablo
- “In prison, we got up early. I’m up in the middle of the night. Up early in the morning.”
- “In prison, you have to watch your back. Now on the outside, I can’t sit with my back to people. I have to be at the back of the room so I can see everyone.” – Kilroy
- “I’m loud because in jail, people tend to scream. Everyone has to speak over each other if they want to be heard.” – Antonio

The tools you used to survive in prison were “blunt tools,” as Pablo describes. You may have survived by being closed off, aggressive, and hypervigilant, by being loud and watching your back. These tools can drive your loved ones away on the outside.

You will need to add new tools to your toolbox — tools that are more delicate. They include listening, communicating, and being patient with each other. Have honest talks with loved ones. Invite them to help you recognize when you are acting in an aggressive way. Practice adjusting your body language.

It will take time for you and your loved ones to understand just how much your time in prison has impacted you. You may need counseling or help from a support group to work through these issues.
Domestic Violence

Domestic violence isn’t just an anger problem. It’s about control. Domestic violence is when one person exerts power or control over another person in a dating, family or household relationship.

It can take many forms, including:

- Verbal abuse (threats, name-calling, intimidation)
- Physical abuse (pushing, slapping, choking, destroying property)
- Controlling behavior (keeping you from seeing people, going places, or spending money)
- Emotional abuse (making you feel like you are worthless)
- Sexual abuse (unwanted sexual activity, often using force)

In some families or cultures, these behaviors are not seen as wrong. It’s hard to break away from domestic violence when the attitudes about relationships around you are not healthy. It may take some time to change your way of thinking. It may take some time to realize that what you are doing or experiencing is wrong.

If you are in an abusive relationship, seek help. Making the decision to leave is hard. It can be risky. It takes courage to leave, especially if you fear for your own safety or the safety of your children. It’s hard to leave if you depend on the other person for money.

Begin by calling the Illinois Domestic Violence hotline: 1-877-863-6338 or 1-877-T0-END-DV. This confidential, free 24-hour hotline provides support, information, and referrals. It can put you in touch with resources in your area. Even if you are not ready to leave the relationship, the hotline can help you get through hard times. It can help you take the next step.

The Illinois Department of Human Services website has a list of places where you can go for help: https://the-network.org/

If money is keeping you from leaving a partner who is abusing you, there is an Emergency Crisis Fund for survivors of domestic violence. It is managed by The Network: Advocating Against Domestic Violence. For more information contact Emergency@The-Network.org.

We have listed transitional housing and emergency shelter options in our Housing Directory. Many of these shelters serve people who are leaving an abusive relationship. Some provide protection if you fear for your safety. In our Health Directory, we have listed a few counseling resources available to people who are facing domestic violence.

If you are the abusive partner

If you have been abusive to a partner or family member, reach out to get help. The first important step is to acknowledge you have a problem. You can change, but it will take work. You may be required to stay away from your partner until you are in a better place, or you may choose to stay away for a while to keep them safe and give them some space.

To get help, consider attending a Partner Abuse Intervention Program (PAIP). You may be required to attend a PAIP program by the court. This program is for people who control their partners with physical abuse, emotional abuse, sexual abuse, or economic abuse (withholding money). The program can help you:

- See that it is NOT ok to abuse a partner
- Learn to take blame and credit for actions
- Learn nonviolent and non controlling ways of communicating and behaving

The program typically lasts 24-26 weeks. You’ll get training from certified domestic violence professionals about how to stop abusing your partner. A counselor or therapist can also help you work through these issues.

To find a PAIP program, call the State of Illinois Domestic Violence Help Line at 1-877-T0 END DV (877-863-6338) or 1-877-863-6339 (TTY) or check out the IDHS Office Locator: https://www.dhs.state.il.us/page.aspx?module=12

Reflect

1. What does a healthy relationship look like to you?
2. Think back on your relationships with your family or loved ones. In what ways were they healthy? In what ways were they unhealthy?
3. Where are the places you can go for help if you are in an abusive relationship?
Mindfulness

If you practiced mindfulness while in prison, you no doubt know how helpful it can be. You will find that mindfulness is helpful on the outside, too. If you’re new to mindfulness, welcome! This chapter will introduce you to some simple but powerful practices you can begin today.

Mindfulness looks different for all of us. You’ll see this in the stories we share from people who have practiced mindfulness in prison. The chapter covers these topics:
1. What is mindfulness?
2. What are the benefits?
3. How do I meditate?
4. Meditation scripts
5. Meditation resources
6. Meditation groups

What is Mindfulness?

Mindfulness is about paying attention to the present. It is about noticing your thoughts, emotions, and how your body feels. The key is to not judge or give yourself a hard time. When you are aware of your five senses or your mind, you are being mindful!

Mindfulness is not about fixing what is wrong with you. Instead, it is about accepting what is going on inside you. It’s about being gentle and kind to yourself. It helps us stay connected to the moment. We can then respond in a non-reactive, caring manner.

Though mindfulness has its roots in Buddhist meditation, it is not a religion for most people. Instead, it is a way to explore your mind and body. Some people see mindfulness in every religion. Prayer can be a form of mindfulness.

“If you would have told me a year ago that prison meditation was a survival skill I might have chuckled. After one short year of mindfulness practice, I’m starting to realize it might be just that.”
—Prison Mindfulness Program Participant
Mindfulness has many benefits. It can help you manage stress and control your emotions. It even changes how your brain works over time. It can help you not get stuck in unhelpful thought patterns. It can help you be happier. Other benefits include:

- Being better able to fight disease
- Lower blood pressure and heart rate
- Having greater mental focus
- Better handle of emotions
- Lower anxiety and depression
- More growth after trauma
- More self compassion
- Less burnout

“The value of mindfulness based meditation in prison is the equivalent of an oasis to a desert-beaten man”

How Do I Meditate?

Meditation is the most common way to practice mindfulness.

No formal training is required to meditate
There is no one right way to meditate, no “good” way, and certainly no “bad” way. If you can breathe, you can meditate.

Practice alone or with a group
Find someone who knows how to meditate to get you started. You can meditate alone or with a group.

When to practice
In the beginning, try to meditate for 5 or 10 minutes. Increase the time bit by bit. Try different times of the day: morning, evening, or afternoon. Try to practice every day, but if something comes up, that’s OK! Let go of what you think should happen.

How to sit
Many people meditate sitting down with their eyes closed or open and looking down a few feet in front of them. Sit in a chair or cross-legged on a pillow, floor, or bed. Sit up straight, but be relaxed. Rest your hands in your lap or on your legs.

Common difficulties
It’s common to feel restless, bored, and sleepy. Your mind may wander. That’s totally okay. You don’t need to get rid of thoughts when you are meditating. Do your best to notice and label your thoughts when they come: “thinking about the past,” “feeling restless” or “feeling bored.” Then see if you can return your attention to your breathing. Meditation takes practice. Do your best to be curious and not judge, no matter what happens.

Meditation and trauma
When we practice meditation, sometimes our mind digs up long-hidden memories that are traumatic. This may create anxiety and stress. Meditation can be a tool to process these emotions, but it is not a cure-all. If focusing on the body brings up traumatic memories, try focusing on a safe image or sound. If difficult memories keep coming, talk with a mental health professional. Look for a meditation group for people who have experienced trauma.

Meditation Scripts

Many begin their meditation journey by using meditation scripts, or words they can read or listen to while meditating. Read each script slowly to get used to it. After a while, you can say the words silently to yourself. Give each step about 1 minute, but feel free to go at your own pace.

“I don’t always follow a specific regimen other than just to breathe in times of stress. This sounds simple enough but it can be very difficult, especially when you are not practicing regularly.”
—Anonymous
A Seated Breath and Body Meditation Practice | Abbreviated from Mindful Magazine

• Begin by getting comfortable, sitting up straight but not rigid, in a position of ease. Close your eyes or lower your gaze toward the floor.

• Take a few deep breaths. Get a sense of how you’re doing at this moment physically, emotionally, and mentally. Is there tension or tightness anywhere? Is your mind busy or calm?

• As you breathe in, bring a beginner’s mind, noticing things for the first time. As you breathe out, bring the same sense. Rest your awareness on the breath.

• Begin to sense your body sitting here. Feel into your whole body. What are your senses telling you? You may feel warm or cold. You may be itchy. Perhaps some areas don’t have any feeling at all – a blank. Spend the next minute feeling these sensations. Allow them to come and go.

• If your mind wanders, where is it wandering to? Are you remembering something? Are you feeling anger or regret? Are you practicing what you will say to someone? Notice your thoughts as if you were sitting in a movie theater, watching images come and go on the screen. Notice the thought or emotion as if it were someone else’s thought, not yours. Notice an opening up in yourself as you become more aware, more accepting.

• Come back to the breath. Breathe in and out. Notice how the whole body expands when you inhale, and contracts when you exhale. The whole body is breathing.

• As you end, congratulate yourself for taking time to meditate. Realize that you can take a few minutes to meditate whenever you wish.

“

“Our thoughts are just thoughts, not the truth of things, and certainly not accurate representations of who we are. In being seen and known, they cannot but self-liberate, and we are, in that moment, liberated from them.”

—Jon Kabat-Zinn

“Have you experienced disappointment with freedom? I have and that is not something to be ashamed of. This is more common than you think. My life after release is nothing like I envisioned it. I romanticized freedom and for some reason I feel more locked up out here. I constantly ruminate on these disappointments. Ruminiation occurs naturally when you allow your mind to take control. Mindfulness has taught me how to take control of my thought process. This has allowed me the freedom to take life as it comes and adjust as needed.”

Gratitude Meditation | Mindvalley Academy

Gratitude practice can help us tap into hope. It can help us boost our mood. That said, it’s not easy to focus on the positive when you feel stressed. Be patient with yourself as you try this meditation. You can always return to the breath if it feels too stressful.

- Sit in a comfortable position. Take a few deep and slow breaths.
- Think about something that’s troubling you. It’s best to start small. Name something that annoys you. Perhaps the room you’re in is cold and drafty.
- Now see if you can flip it to something positive. For example, perhaps the room is cold and drafty, but it’s raining and you’re able to stay dry.
- Continue to think of things or experiences that you don’t like. Do your best to find something positive about each thing or experience. Challenge yourself. Maybe they are helping you learn or grow. Perhaps you notice how you have kept going even when things are hard. Maybe you have found new ideas you didn’t have before.
- You can also simply repeat, “I am grateful for _______” and notice what comes up.

• If you stop, notice how you feel when you stand. Notice how it feels when you start moving again.

Mindfulness in Daily Life: Brushing Your Teeth

Being mindful doesn’t mean you have to sit and be still. Think of all the things we do in a day. Most of the time we’re not fully aware of what we are doing. Our minds wander off. Mindfulness can be practiced in things we do every day, like washing dishes or brushing our teeth. Brushing your teeth is a great mindfulness activity because we repeat it over and over.

- When you brush your teeth, don’t just get lost in thought. Gently bring your attention back to the body each time your mind wanders. What can you see? What can you hear? What’s the color of the toothpaste? What’s the smell? What flavor is it? You don’t have to think too much. Just try to notice things.
- Now, gently focus on how you feel. Notice your arm moving from side-to-side. Notice the sound of the toothbrush against your teeth. Feel the bristles against your gums, against your teeth.

Mindful Walking | Adapted from Mindful Walking, Segal, Williams & Teasdale Mindfulness-Based Cognitive Therapy for Depression

Mindfulness is about being aware of what we’re doing, thinking, and feeling. Mindful walking is simple. You can do it without people knowing what you’re doing. Many people walk everyday, but most of us don’t focus on the process of walking and how the body feels.

- Standing still, become aware of your feet. How do your feet feel when they touch the ground? Flex your knees a few times to get a sense of how your feet and legs feel.
- When you start walking, notice how you move your weight into each leg. One leg “empties” and the other leg takes over to support your body.
- With one leg “empty,” allow the other heel to rise slowly. Move it forward, feeling your leg. Place it down to get ready for the next step. Feel your weight move to this leg.
- Continue walking. Notice how your feet, legs, hips, and upper body feel.
“The ride home from Lawrence was a bit difficult. I was noticing everyone was on their phones and all I had to do was look out the window. As if I already didn’t stand out enough. For Christ’s sake I’m carrying a cardboard box for luggage. I don’t know if it was the COVID but people were standoffish. This probably was a good thing because I had several panic attacks. I don’t know how I would’ve handled sitting right next to someone when I’m constantly on guard of my personal space for protection. Thank God for mindfulness. Meditation didn’t always work but I immediately recognized it when it was needed.”

Phone Apps

There are lots of free mindfulness phone apps. These apps offer guided meditations, timers, calming sounds, soothing voices, tips, and more. Some provide tips on how to sleep better or be less anxious.

These phone apps can be used on the bus or train, at work, or before bed. You can choose long or short meditations. Want to learn how to download a Phone App? See our Technology chapter.

\[\text{Meditation Groups}\]

Meditation groups are great ways to connect with others and practice. If you are a beginner, they can help you learn. They can provide support to help you keep going when you feel like quitting. These groups come in many forms. Some are face-to-face while others are online. Many groups begin with a few friends meeting in one person’s home. Some groups have met for many years.

See our online directory (reentryillinois.net) for a few meditation groups in Illinois.

Some meditation groups may describe themselves as Buddhist, using words like “Sangha” (community), “Zen” (meditative state) or “Vipassana” (insight). Many groups are open to anyone joining their group.

You may be able to find a mental health mindfulness group. These groups are more structured. Here are two mental health mindfulness programs that may be helpful:

- Mindfulness Based Stress Reduction helps people with chronic pain. It can help people cope with stress of all kinds.
- Mindfulness Based Cognitive Therapy helps people develop more mindful ways to deal with stress, anxiety, and depression. It explores patterns of thinking and helps people shift to more helpful attitudes.

“Remind yourself that the deepest stillness and peace does not arise because the world is still or the mind is quiet. Stillness is nourished when we allow the world, the mind and the body to be just as they are for now, moment by moment, and breath by breath.”

—Williams & Penman, Mindfulness

“It is common to question your purpose. I do so repeatedly. My relationships aren’t exactly as I had envisioned. Mindfulness meditation provided me the space and compassion to accept people as they come. I learned to let the little things go and focus on what makes that person special to me.”

—Prison Mindfulness Program Participant
Connecting with others is hard for many people after release from prison. You were separated from your family and friends. Now you may feel loneliness and isolation, especially if the people you were close to are no longer around.

Getting involved in your community and making new friends may help you begin to heal. This might mean working to make a difference through politics, organizing, and volunteering. This may mean writing letters to elected officials, campaigning, voting, participating in government events, talking to people in your community, and volunteering.

Community Organizing and Advocacy

Community organizing is when community members join together and push for their needs and rights. A community can be people who live in the same area, or people who have something in common. Community organizing can look like:

- Going door-to-door
- Public speeches
- Organizing meetings
- Gathering information about the community needs
- Sharing information to educate the public
- Developing community leadership
- Organizing fundraisers

Community organizing is a tool for making your voice heard and creating positive change. You would be surprised by what you can do when you join together with others to make sure your community’s voice is being heard.

There are many organizations that do community organizing online and on the ground. Now that you are out of prison, you can help them in important ways. You can help change the laws that affect people who have been in prison. EJP graduates have run, volunteered with, coordinated, and been employed by groups including:

- Community Support Advisory Council (regular monthly meetings to support the parole process) www.illinois.gov/doc/communityresources/Pages/CSAC.aspx
- Edovo (Education Over Obstacles) edovo.com
- Illinois State Commission on Criminal Justice and Sentencing Reform http://www.icjia.org/
- Give up the Streets (GUTS)- https://www.facebook.com/GiveUpTheStreets/
- Ex-Cons for Community and Social Change (ECCSC)- https://www.eccsc.org/

You can contact these groups and many others to find out how you can get involved in your community. See the Advocacy Resources in our directory for more ideas.

“Get involved in advocacy work. If we want to change the process, we have to lead the process.”
—Marlon C.
Getting Involved in Your Community

Religious Organizations
Churches, synagogues, mosques, or other religious communities can help you find meaning, purpose, and fellowship. Many religious organizations have classes, support groups, and volunteer opportunities. Don’t worry if it takes a while for you to find the place that feels right for you.

Libraries
Public libraries organize events and classes. They have book clubs, social gatherings, and concerts. Many also have a space where people can post information about community events, group meetings, and even job openings. Visit your local library’s website or stop by in-person to find out what your library has to offer.

Reentry Program
If you live in a town with a reentry program, consider volunteering your time there. Even if you didn’t use this program, you could help people who are getting out now. Let them know you are happy to help. With some luck, you may even be able to turn your volunteer work into a paid job.

City & County Park Districts & Forest Preserves
Your town or city probably has a park district, and its website will include information about the parks in your area. Take time to visit these parks and spend time in nature. Many park districts offer sports programs and leagues, as well as other recreational programs.

Events and Activities
In many cities you can get free alternative papers weekly. They usually have information on concerts and local events and classes. The same information should also be on the paper’s website. A simple Google search can also help you find events in your area.

“...You always have to see the silver lining in the clouds, no matter how murky they are. I think that’s the main advice that I could give to someone. Just don’t give up. Because it’s hard. Don’t make no mistake about it.“
—Marlon C.

“Don’t give up. Do what you can to promote change. Take the time out to try to mentor some of these young people that are out here in the hopes that, one day, we can bring about changes. Instead of wondering when somebody else is gonna do something about it, I need to remember that I’m somebody and try to do what I can.”

Serving Your Community
Volunteer work gives you the chance to make friends, solve problems, and do some good for your community. It is also good for your health. Making new friends can prevent feelings of sadness and make you feel less alone. Watching how your work makes your community better can give you a sense of pride and fulfillment.

If you are out of work, volunteering can also help you get new skills to add to your resume. You may also meet new people who can help you network and find new job opportunities. Volunteering expands your life in ways that may surprise you. You may discover new abilities or find new interests.

Some places you can volunteer are:

• Senior living centers and nursing homes
• Humane societies
• Homeless shelters
• Food banks
• Local churches

Call or visit these places to ask how you can help out. You can also do a Google search for volunteer opportunities in your community.

IDENTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS

In order to process your request through this office we require identification to be provided.

A photo copy of a NON-EXPIRED, GOVERNMENT ISSUED PHOTO IDENTIFICATION. Such as a Driver’s License, Passport, FOID card, Active Duty Military ID, Veterans Administration Issued Photo Medical Card, or a Federally issued Tribal ID card. ALL identification MUST have a photo, identifying information such as name, date of birth and an issue and expiration date. If any information is contained on both sides of the ID, ensure a copy of both sides is made.

If your ID has expired and has an extension sticker, ensure a copy of the sticker is also made.

If your ID has expired LESS THAN 6 MONTHS, please include one additional document showing your name and current address created within the last 6 months. Examples include legal mail such as a bill or financial statement sent to your current legal address.

If your ID has expired MORE THAN 6 MONTHS or you DO NOT HAVE VALID ID, you will be required to submit TWO forms of documentation with your name and current legal address listed. Documentation in lieu of an ID must be dated within the last 6 months.

First Item – You must provide one or more of the following; Medical Card, Auto Insurance Card, Voter’s Registration Card, Paycheck Stub with Imprinted FULL information, Bank, Financial, or a Credit Card Statement.

Second Item - You must provide a piece of current mail you have received showing your full name and current legal mailing address. Examples include current utility bill, phone bill or bill for services you have received. You may submit multiple pieces of mail however ensure they are from different Agencies or businesses.

If you are currently incarcerated in a State or Federal facility, you will need to submit a dated copy of your prison intake or offender summary sheet containing your photo, name, date of birth and facility information.

If you have been RELEASED from prison WITHIN THE LAST 6 MONTHS, you may provide a copy of your release papers along with a copy of your prison photo ID. Please note that the release papers MUST show an address that you have been released to that matches the address you are using with this office.

If you are a State, Federal Agency or a Hospital, you may submit a copy of your work photo ID badge. The badge MUST have a photo, name, name of the Agency and an issue and expiration date along with any supportive paperwork required for the request. If your work ID does not meet the requirements, a copy of your government issued photo ID, Drivers License or Passport must also be included.

SOCIAL SECURITY CARDS ARE NOT ACCEPTABLE

ELIGIBILITY TO OBTAIN AN ILLINOIS BIRTH RECORD

Before a request for a copy of a birth record can be considered you must specify your eligibility to obtain it. ILCS410/535/25(4) states that copies of birth records may only be issued upon; The order of a court of competent jurisdiction; The specific written request by the person listed on the record if of legal age (18 or older) or by a parent or other legal representative* of the person to whom the record of birth relates; The specific written request by a Department of State, Municipal Corporation or the Federal Government

*77 Illinois AdmCode 500.10 refers to “Legal Representative” as either an attorney acting on behalf of a person named on the birth record; An agent authorized by power of attorney; A Court-appointed representative; An agent with written, notarized authorization from a person named on the birth record for the purpose of obtaining a copy for that person; Any other agent, approved by the State Registrar as a legal representative.

NOTE: Any person who, willfully and knowingly uses or attempts to use, or furnishes to another for use, for any purpose of deception, any certificate, record, report, certification or certified copy thereof so made, altered, amended, or mutilated; or, Any person who with the intention to deceive, willfully uses or attempts to use any certification or certified copy of a record of birth knowing that such certification or certified copy was issued upon a record that is false in whole or in part or that relates to the birth of another person is guilty of a Class 4 felony in the State of Illinois (ILCS 410/535/27 (f)).

Illinois Law (ILCS 410/535/25 (1)) requires advanced payment for the search of death record files.

Fees are subject to current Illinois Statute and administrative policy and may be non-refundable.

INSTRUCTIONS: All or part of a veteran's disability award may be apportioned (paid) to the veteran's spouse, child, or dependent parent. A surviving spouse's award may also be apportioned for the veteran's child or children. Print all answers clearly. If an answer is "none" or "0," write that or line through the space provided. For additional space, attach a separate sheet, indicating the item number to which the answers apply. Make sure to write the veteran's name and VA claim number on any attachments to the form.

IMPORTANT: If you are certifying that you are married for the purpose of VA benefits, your marriage must be recognized by the place where you and/or your spouse resided at the time of marriage, or where you and/or your spouse resided when you filed your claim (or a later date when you became eligible for benefits) (38 U.S.C. § 103(c)). Additional guidance on when VA recognizes marriages is available at http://www.va.gov/opa/marriage/.

PART I - INCOME AND NET WORTH

Report all income and net worth. Report the gross amounts before you take out deductions for taxes, insurance, etc. If you do not receive income or net worth from a particular source, write "0" or "none" in the space provided. Do not leave the space blank. Note: If you are the veteran or surviving spouse, report only your income and net worth. If you are the claimant or are filing on behalf of the claimant(s), report all income and net worth for all persons for whom an apportionment is being claimed. If you are claiming an apportionment as the custodian of the veteran's child or children, report your income and net worth and the income and net worth of the child(ren).

PART III - CERTIFICATION AND SIGNATURE

I CERTIFY THAT the foregoing statements are true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

1. SIGNATURE OF VETERAN OR CLAIMANT 2. DATE SIGNED

PENALTY - The law provides severe penalties which include fine or imprisonment or both, for the willful submission of any statement or evidence of a material fact, knowing it is false, or fraudulent acceptance of any payment to which you are not entitled.

PRIVACY ACT INFORMATION - The VA will not disclose information collected on this form to any source other than what has been authorized under the Privacy Act of 1974 or Title 38, Code of Federal Regulations 1.576 for routine uses (i.e., civil or criminal law enforcement, congressional communications, epidemiological or research studies, the collection of money owed to the United States, litigation in which the United States is a party or has an interest, the administration of VA programs and delivery of VA benefits, verification of identity and status, and personnel administration) as identified in the VA system of records, 58VA 21/22/28, Compensation, Pension, Education and Vocational Rehabilitation and Employment Records - VA, published in the Federal Register. Your obligation to respond is required to obtain or retain benefits. The requested information is considered relevant and necessary to determine maximum benefits under the law. The responses you submit are considered confidential (38 U.S.C. 5701). Information submitted is subject to verification through computer matching programs with other agencies.

RESPONDENT BURDEN - We need this information to determine whether an apportionment of VA disability or death benefits may be made (38 U.S.C. 5307). Title 38, United States Code, allows us to ask for this information. We estimate that you will need an average of 30 minutes to review the instructions, find the information, and complete this form. VA cannot conduct or sponsor a collection of information unless a valid OMB control number is displayed. You are not required to respond to a collection of information if this number is not displayed. Valid OMB control numbers can be located on the OMB Internet Page at www.reginfo.gov/public/do/PRAMain. If desired, you can call 1-800-827-1000 to get information on where to send comments or suggestions about this form.
